Pennsylvania Poultry Association Holds $150-A-Plate Fundraiser

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Traditionally the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation Fund Raising Banquet is a time of celebration. This year was no exception for 1,500 producers and agri-related representatives who attended the $150-a-plate dinner.

From the moment guests stepped through the doors of the Hershey Convention Center on Wednesday evening, festivities filled the air. Wrist corsages were presented to women. Producers and agri-industry representatives mingled, discussing business and pleasure as they sampled hors d' oeuvres and later dinner.

When John Hoffman, president of the Federation, introduced state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius, a standing ovation showed the loyal support the poultry association has for Brosius, who, last week, resigned under pressure.

Asked to speak extemporaneously, Brosius said his philosophy has always been that the government is here to help people and not the other way around.

Recently Brosius has been reading from writings of President

Rural Areas Becoming Dumping Grounds For Bottles, Cans

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Rural areas of the state are simply becoming "dumping grounds" for bottles and cans, which wreak havoc with farm equipment and cost individual farmers thousands of dollars.

The bottles and cans that litter rural farm fields have proven costly to one Dauphin County Farmer, totalling thousands of dollars in tire repairs, dead cows, and hours of labor, according to Ronald Kopp. Kopp operates a 100-milking-cow, 800- acre dairy with his brother Jay and family near Middletown.

A news conference organized by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) was held Monday at the [illegible]arm in Londonderry Township. The conference was called to promote legislation to place at least a five-cent deposit on bottles and cans.

"Our patience has run out," said Guy F. Donaldson, PFB president, at the news conference. "Bottles and cans are still being dumped along the roads, in our fields and front yards, and on public lands."

PMMB Staff Recommends Recapture Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board on Friday, after presstime, was expected to announce its decision on whether or not to extend a 30-cent over-order premium on Class I milk produced, processed and sold within the state, and for how long.

A hearing on the issue was held April 9 in the state Agriculture Building in Harrisburg.

Testimony supported an extension of a total 80-cent premium for at least six months, though some requested a year.

No testimony was presented that requested anything less or that opposed such an extension.

(It was suggested that a year-long extension would allow for the fact that the PMMB could always call a meeting if market conditions were to change to suggest a reduction in the premium. A six-month limit and unchanging conditions would require the PMMB to have to needlessly call another meeting to receive basically the same testimony from the same people.)

Maryland Spring Holstein Show Results Listed

KAREN BUTLER

TIMONIUM, Md. — The champion junior 3-year-old cow was senior champion and went on to take grand champion honors at the 27th Maryland Spring Holstein Show. A total of 231 entries were exhibited at the show, held April 12 at the state fairgrounds in Timonium.

Judge for the show was Brian Garrison, sire analyst for ABS Global in Ohio.

C. Delbon Astre Rhoda, the S-Duregal Astre Starbuck ET daughter shown by MD Dun-Loafin Farm, Burkittsville, impressed judge Garrision with her overall balance and beautiful udder. "She was just really well liked," said Paul Harrison of MD Dunn-Loafin Farm of their three year old cow. Rhoda, fresh in March, produced over 100 pounds of milk on her first two tests, and is projected at 24 or 25,000 pounds.

As a two year old she probably made 20 or 21,000 pounds, estimated Harrison. "We had her at Ohio for the Spring National Show, and she stood second in her class," he said. He credits his children Shannon and Butch for the cow's success. "They're the

National Egg Market

APRIL 16, 1997

Prices were unchanged. The market tone remained about steady. Demand was mixed, mostly fair, and best into food service and retail specials. Supplies were adequate to ample with graded large still the most available. Breaking stock supplies were at least adequate for the unaggressive demand, prices were unchanged to lower, and the market tone was cautiously steady to weak. Light type fowl supplies were adequate for full plant schedules.

New York Egg Market

Delmarva Broiler

APRIL 16, 1997

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was good. Seller offerings were in generally good balance and were clearing satisfactorily. Live supplies were moderate; weights were mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were higher at 59 to 72 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady. In the parts complex, buyer interest had tapered. Supplies were generally in a range of adequate to closely cleared.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

APRIL 11, 1997

Prices were unchanged to lower for all products except whites which were generally unchanged. The market tone was mixed from about steady to weak. Demand was light, and buyers purchased for immediate needs only. Floor stocks were adequate. Breaking stock and other shell egg offerings were at least adequate, and prices were generally lower. Liquid and frozen eggs processed under federal inspection in the East for the week ending April 5, 1997 were 20% more than last week, and 24% more than the same week last year.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
APRIL 16, 1997

Grain and soybean bids declined on improved weather conditions and slow export business. Wheat 7 to 13 cents lower. Corn 4 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 8 to 10 cents lower. Soybeans 2 to 4 cents lower. Wheat bids fell moderately lower again as traders correct some of the sharp gains from earlier in the week. Most of the damage to the hard red winter wheat crop has yet to be assessed but reports in many areas are severe. Warmer weather is expected to melt much of the snow in the Northern Plains. This is also a concern for spring planting. Export demmand has been very slow this week for wheat. Corn bids fell sharply lower as the improved weather conditions pressured old and new crop trading. Farmers are waiting to get into fields and the threat of flooding has limited declines. Good foreign sales for corn so far this week offered some strength to corn bids. Soybean bids followed wheat and corn bids lower, despite talks of another Brazilian port strike. U.S. Export Sales: Purchaser Commodity Tonnage Del date Nothing new to report. OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
APRIL 16, 1997

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers steady. Feeder heifers 1.00-3.00 higher. Stocker cattle stead "59very good on all classes. Oklahoma's wheat crop is probably in major trouble after three days of hard freeze caught ungrazed wheat in the boot stage. On the positive side last weeks rains provided 2-3 inches of moisture for spring pastures. Quality of supply average. Feeder cattle in medium to slightly fleshly conditions, end fleshy. Weigh-ups mostly average. Slaughter cows and bulls firm, except Breaker cows .75 lower. Packer demand moderate to good. Demand good for thin cows headed to graze-out after last week's freezing temperatures took its toll on wheat. Total of 300 cows and bulls sold with 60 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 8,900; last week 7,920; last year 8,951. Supply consisted of 83 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 14 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 3 percent cows and bulls. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 21-27, 1997

FULL PINK MOON, APRIL 22.

FEAST OF SAINT MARK

San Marco, the patron saint of Venice and protector of the fields, has his festival on April 25. Early spring peas, cooked with a creamy rice terrine or risotto-style rice, called "risi e bisi," have become the specialty of the day, along with "bisi col persutto," or peas with prosciutto. If your spring peas aren't ready, you could observe National Arbor Day instead, also celebrated on April 25. Whether you eat peas, plant peas, or plant trees, however, tip your hat to Saint Mark all the same in hopes of fertile soils and a bountiful year.

If you have once planted a tree . . . you have always in it a peculiar interest.

– Alexander Smith

TIP OF THE WEEK

Remove winter wraps from tree trunks now. Left on, they may harbor insects.

RISI E BISI

- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 cup white rice
- 1 cup petite frozen or fresh peas
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoon grated Parmesan

Saute onion in olive oil and set aside. Bring chicken broth to a boil, add rice, cover, and let simmer about 20 minutes, until liquid is absorbed. Add cooked rice to onion and sauté briefly, adding more olive oil, if needed. Add peas and cook until just warm. Turn off heat, stir in the parsley and the Parmesan, and serve.

Makes 4 servings, as a side dish.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Rain on St. Mark's Day (Apr. 25) betides ill for fruit crops.

It's bad luck to point at a rainbow.

A rainbow at morn, put your hook in the corn; a rainbow at eve, put your head in the sheave.

When April blows her horn (thunders), it's good for both hay and corn.

OPINION

Secretary Brosius Set The Standard

As Charles Brosius winds down his term as Pennsylvania's agricultural secretary, we want to commend him for his efforts on behalf of farmers in state government. We have had many great ag secretaries in the past and this is not to take away from anything they have accomplished. But Charles Brosius is one of the most respected, intelligent, and able administration officials we have ever had the pleasure to know or work with. While other departments in state government seem to lack the work ethic farmers so espouse, Manager Brosius had PDA working toward the expressed goals of making government user friendly and creating an atmosphere in Pennsylvania where farmers could farm, and agribusiness could do business.

Secretary Brosius paid little attention to what the party politics were in his staff members. His only concern was that they be knowledgeable, experienced, and competent in their work. That's why a number of very key people in PDA today are from the opposite party. And he did not hire more people than he needed just to give people political payoffs. This shed such a good light on Pennsylvania's agricultural community. And on the governor who selected him in the first place.

An accomplished business man in real life, Brosius brought this business acumen to state government. His work to secure export opportunities for agribusiness in Pennsylvania is noteworthy. When dealing with foreign governments or trade delegations, the personal touch is what really gives these visitors the confidence that they "have a friend in Pennsylvania" and an honest opportunity to do business here. Brosius gave our state government that personal face so needed in these dealings.

We could fill a whole page of accomplishments that lesser men could not have done in eight years. Brosius accomplished so much in just two years.

In all the talk and counter talk in the last several weeks on this issue, maybe the best summary statement came from Italo Cappabianca (D-Erie), the Democratic chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee in a letter to Gov. Ridge.

"Those of us who have come to know and work with Secretary Brosius have found him to be one of the more forthright, honorable, and qualified members of your administration," Cappabianca wrote. " He has represented our No. 1 industry with distinction, leading the Department of agriculture in a progressive and non-partisan way."

We thank you Secretary Brosius for your efforts on behalf of the ag community in state government. You have set the standard by which all future ag secretaries will be judged. Especially the next one.

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Evaluate Fields For Black Cutworms

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, reminds us that black cutworms are a very common insect of corn.

This insect is migratory, moving into Pennsylvania during late March through early June. When it arrives it prefers winter annual weeds such as chickweed, shepherd's purse, and several members of the mustard family as a feeding and breeding area.

Corn fields with a high risk of black cutworm damage are fields with heavy populations of these weeds. The adults deposit their eggs on the weeds and the larvae that hatch feed on the weeds until the weeds are destroyed by tillage or herbicides. At that time they move to corn plants if they are available and continue to feed on them.

Black cutworms can almost be entirely eliminated as a pest by destroying the problem weeds a minimum of 10 days before planting. The weeds must be completely desiccated or brown, leaving no feed source for that period of time. Otherwise, scout the field at two- to three-day intervals from emergence until corn is 12 inches tall and spray with an insecticide when black cutworm is found.

To Control Seed Corn Maggot

Seed corn maggot is a pest that feeds on decaying organic matter such as manure, plowed-down crop residue, and other similar materials, according Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

The adult flies are attracted to fields with decaying organic matter to lay their eggs. The larvae that hatches feed on the organic matter plus any germinating seeds. The problem is often made worse during cool, wet weather when germination and growth of the corn seedling is slow.

To control the seed corn maggot in fields with high organic residue, use a seed treatment containing diazinon or a soil insecticide at planting. The seed treatment is a much cheaper treatment if the field is not a risk for other insect pests controlled by the soil insecticide.

To Control Armyworm

Armyworms overwinter in Pennsylvania as partially grown larvae under plant trash and in clumps of grass and as pupae in the soil, said Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

The adult moth emerges from early May to early June, laying eggs on the leaves of grasses including winter small grains. This insect is a threat when corn is planted in fields which had winter small grains as cover crops or harvested as silage or planted in old hay fields or pastures.

This is especially true if the crop is planted no-till. Sometimes the armyworm will migrate from a small grain field to an adjoining corn field and cause problems.

When planting corn into fields with a high potential for armyworm, consider using a broad-spectrum soil insecticide. These will also control white grubs, wireworms, black cutworms, sod webworm, seed corn maggot, and stalk borer.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

April 20, 1997

Background Scripture:
Revelation 2:18-29
Devotional Reading:
Romans 2:1-11

When I was young — and knew everything — I denounced a lot of things about which I knew little or nothing. Brought up a Protestant I "knew" that holy water, confession and praying to the saints was not only wrong, but dangerous. Nurtured by a denomination that was socially quite conservative — at least then — I also was told that dancing, playing cards, and movies were works of the Devil.

I can be excused, perhaps, because I was so young and impressionable. I basically was accepting what someone else told me as the Gospel truth. Today, although I still don't use holy water, practice confession or pray to the saints, I no longer condemn these practices for I have learned that they can be very meaningful to some who do. I sometimes dance, play cards and go to the movies, because I have personally learned that these things by themselves are not evil. Much of that depends upon me.

So, I have a hard time with the Revelation of John in the letter to the church at Thyratira: "I know your works, your love and faith and service and patient endurance, and that your latter works exceed the first. But I have this against you, that you tolerate the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess . . ." (2:20). I confess that I do not know of any church that is praiseworthy for works, love, service, faith and patience, but is too tolerant. Most of my experience in the church has witnessed too little, rather than too much tolerance.

BEGUILING MY SERVANTS

But maybe the problem here is with the word "tolerate." Is the writer commending tolerance or is he condemning moral insensitivity? There is a difference and, if we read further in this chaper, we find that the concern with this Jezebel is a real one: she "is teaching and beguiling my servants to practice immorality and to eat food sacrificed to idols" (2:20). This is not a matter of prejudice against someone because her ways are different or they do not understand her and therefore are intolerant. What we have here is an indifference to evil consequences to what she is teaching.

How easily someone can lead us down the path to Hell! How quickly we follow the leader whose certainty overcomes our own reasoning! We are so gullible and we jump at the chance for someone to think for us. All someone has to say is "I got this from God . . ." and we are ready to follow them without question, particularly if, like Jezebel, they are sure of themselves and/or charismatic.

The "faith" to which we are called is not to put our belief in a leader who claims to know the mind of God. The trust to which we are called is to be given to God alone, not his intermediaries. We can think for ourselves and God expects us to do so.

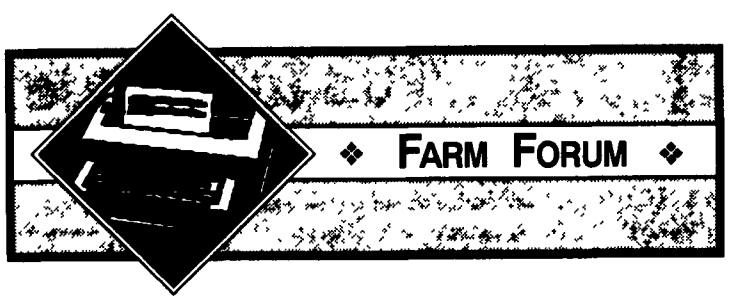
WHAT WORKS DESERVE

The key to the rightness or wrongness of anything is not in the arguments made for or against it, but in the bottom line: "By their fruits you shall know them" — whether you end up with "grapes" and "figs" or "thorns" and "thistles" (Matthew 7:16). The activities of this "Jezebel" were harmful, not because they were different, but because they were ending up with "thorns" and "thistles."

The Lord does not judge us superficially. "And all the churches shall know that I am he who searches mind and heart, and I will give to each of you as your works deserve" (2:23). Who says "works don't count?" Works and faith go hand in hand.

There is only one leader into whose hands we can ever deposit our lives, our minds and our consciences. If we're going to follow the leader, let's make certain who is really leading.

(In October, Rev. & Mrs. Althouse will lead a 14-day tour to Turkey to trace the footsteps of Paul and John. For information, write: 4412 Shenandoah Ave., Dallas, TX 75205.)



Editor,

As America's family dairy farmers face a Holocaust-like liquidation, a few facts need to be aired.

1) Kraft and the major cooperatives manipulated the Nation Cheese Exchange, setting the official price at $1.325/lb. while they are actually receiving $1.489/lb.

2) Land O' Lakes has signed a contract with Alfa-Laval to supply the cooperative with 200 complete 1000 cow dairies per year for the next five years.

3) The CEO of Foremost Farms, Don Storhoff, has admitted that by increasing cheese production the major cooperatives caused the autumn milk price crash. Such practices are continuing to keep prices depressed, and bankrupting their members.

4) Dairylea has acquired Empire Livestock and the Erwin Feed Mill.

5) Of the Wisconsin dairies that are liquidating at the rate of 4/day, some of the largest are being bought, intact, by persons unknown, and the former owners are being hired to run them.

The major cooperatives and processors have for years worked together to depress the farm price of milk. This has resulted in the liquidation of many family dairy farms, leaving the remaining in weak financial positions. Often, a farm's major creditor is the very cooperative that is destroying them. As a result those cooperatives have now become so bold that they have revealed their plans.

The cooperatives will use the profits generated by the difference between the official and real price of cheese to acquire the remaining milk production facilities (dairy farms). Co-ops will own the farms, feed mills, livestock auction houses and plants. Once they have a vertical monopoly they will reap huge profits. They will manipulate the supply of milk and raise

TRIED AND TRUE.

When it comes to economical, season-long control of grasses and several key broadleaves in corn, nothing tops the performance of PROWL® herbicide. PROWL is the dependable choice for controlling foxtails. What's more, PROWL is the best preemergent herbicide for controlling triazine-resistant broadleaves like lambsquarters and pigweed. And it's the only preemergent herbicide for controlling velvetleaf. PROWL herbicide. Sound value. Solid foundation. Proven results.

Maryland Fruit Crop Damaged

WESTMINSTER, Maryland — The record cold temperatures we experienced last week have prompted numerous questions from consumers, news media and agricultural department personnel, concerning the effects on Maryland's fruit crop. The National Weather Service predicted that a Canadian air mass was headed our way trailing the earlier "Nor-Easter Storm" which brought snow to the New England States. This air mass arrived mid-week as predicted. Unlike typical spring frosts in our area, this air came in with high winds which lasted during most of the cold front. The ground and air were very dry for this time of year. Because the humidity was very low, the dew point was also quite low. These conditions (dry cold air) are more like the type of weather we experience in January and February.

On Wednesday morning (April 9), low temperatures dipped to 24-28°F from Central Maryland (Westminster) west. This was followed by a second blow Wednesday night and Thursday morning with temperatures ranging from 18-22°F. Areas east of Westminster were warmer and escaped the extreme temperatures with lows around 30 degrees.

We know from years of research and experience that about 10 percent of open blooms are killed at 28 degrees. More blooms are killed with every degree the temperature drops below 28. Because our mild temperatures in March encouraged fruit bud development, cherries, peaches, and apples were running approximately 7-10 days ahead of schedule. As a result cherries were in full bloom

International Trade Show Works For Pennsylvania

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

BROWNSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A local grain-moving equipment dealer and service business conducted its first international exporting deal as a result of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's first International Trade Event.

Two weeks ago, Jack Conrad, owner and president of EMM Sales and Service, signed a contract with a large, family owned grain-hauling business in Mexico to supply about $50,000 worth of customized Walinga grain vacuum equipment.

If the Mexican business owners are satisfied with the equipment, and the support provided by Jack's brother and field and service representative Dick Conrad, the deal could well represent a total of $3 million in sales for Conrad.

He was visibly happy with the prospects two weeks ago, as were the representatives of the Mexican business.

The Mexican company is TMU, which stands for Transportistas y Molineros Unidos, and it is owned and operated by the family of Francisco Pena, his son Rodrigo Pena and L Marco Antonio Pena.

The company hauls corn for human consumption to tortilla plants throughout the Mexico City region. It's a multi-billion dollar industry that Francisco started by hauling corn for himself and others, and that continued to expand until he became mostly a hauler.

However, up until now, the corn hauled by TMU has been stored in bags.

Right now the Mexican company is in a transition that Conrad said is similar to the transition that occured locally about 25 years ago — from the labor intensive individual bag hauling of grain — in this case corn for tortillas — to the use of bulk hauling and storing.

Conrad is in a position to help.

The Penas needed some equipment that could move grain from a flat storage into a truck bin, or storage bin without damaging the grain.

A PTO-driven grain blower that is manufactured by Walinga and modified older trucks can be modified by Conrad for the Penas' business uses.

Further Pena is to become a sole distributor of the equipment, through Conrad, in Mexico.

Part of the contract also provides that Conrad's brother Dick be in Mexico 20 days after TMU receives the equipment — it was to be trucked to the border town of Loredo, Texas, and TMU would take over the customs handling and final delivery.

For both the Penas and Conrad, the business deal is the result of more than two years of discussions and establishing a personal relationship.

It also represents a new world of opportunity for Conrad. While he has a relatively large distributorship region in the United States, this is his first international deal — the world is opening up.

And while the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has helped to create an environment for increased trading between Mexico, the United States and Canada, the reality is that for a small businessman, such as Conrad, the doors to trade aren't readily opened.

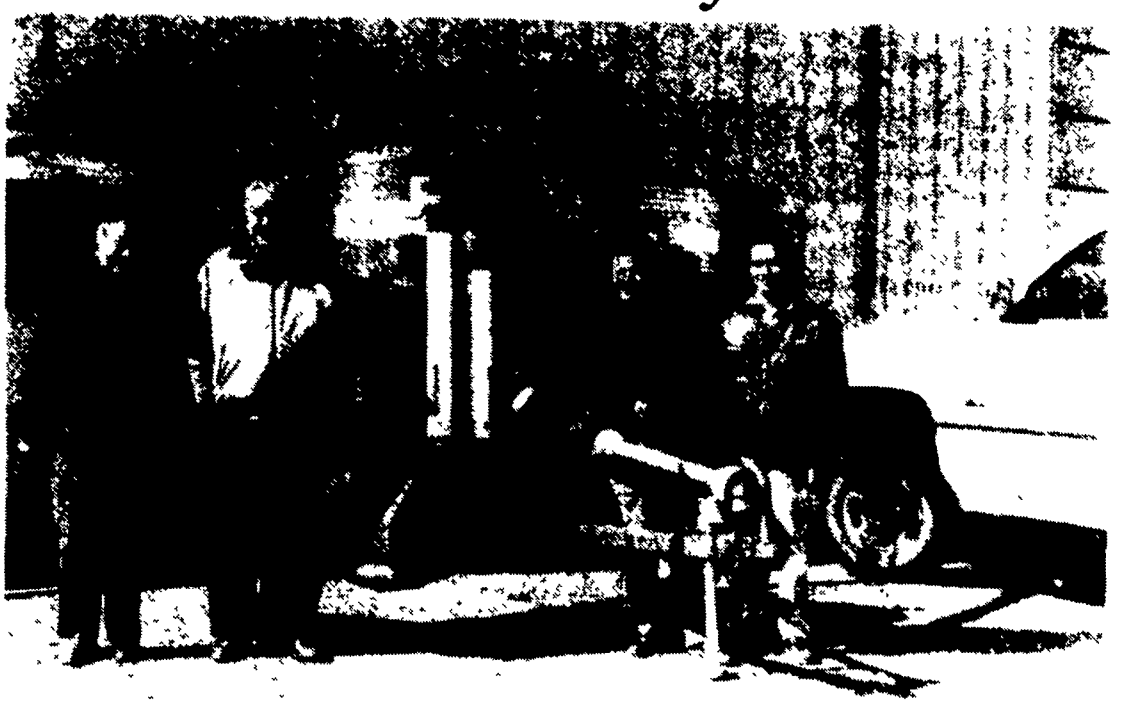
Large international companies have had trouble for years attempting to break into international markets because of not understanding the needs, traditions, or unique situations in the various markets.

Also, trade laws, local customs and language problems have also been obstacles.

For large companies with the ability to hire translators, research and development teams and pay for extended travel or expertise, the barriers to opening up trade have been sometimes very difficult to overcome.

For a business such as Conrad's, which has a fairly limited customer base, international dealings have mostly not been considered.

Conrad gave credit to the state Department of Agriculture and Gov. Tom Ridge for providing the opportunities for him to meet with potential international trading partners two years ago, at the first state Farm Show International Trade Show, held at a Harrisburg hotel.



From the left, Francisco Pena, owner of TMU in Mexico, and Jack Conrad, owner of EMM Sales & Service in Brownstown, as well as Rodrigo Pena and L Marco Antonio Pena, stand with a compact grain vacuum that handles grain with minimal damage. Conrad and the Penas met through the first International Day Event and recently completed a business deal that represents the first exporting for Conrads business.

Even before the fruits of the first trade show began to be realized, some questioned the state being involved in directly supporting a forum to link Pennsylvania businesses to international buyers. Despite second-guessers and detractors, it panned out well, according to businesses involved.

"It's the first time the state government has done more than collect my taxes," Conrad said, in praise of the International Day event.

Conrad said that after all the talk about helping small business, the International Day event was the first time that he has truly seen evidence that state government was actively doing something, especially for small business.

Under the direction provided by Gov. Ridge, the PDA developed a system of helping to promote exporting that incorporates a cooperative agreement with other state departments and a crew of regional people who help locate businesses within their region who might be interested in exporting, or who might have some commodity or service for sale that is of interest by an interest in another country.

Under Russell Redding, state deputy agriculture secretary for marketing, promotion and program service, the Bureau of Market Development has been turned into an effective link between Pennsylvania agribusiness and out-of-state and international customers.

For the Conrad/Pena relationship, the state was matchmaker, provided a translator, and also helped by attending local meetings and finding out information necessary to both parties in discussing their business possibilities.

But Glen VanDerSchaaf, a trade representative with the PDA Bureau of Market Development/ Domestic and International Trade Division, said Conrad is as much to credit for having the sensibilities necessary to be able to conduct business outside of the well-known community in which he lives.

VanDerSchaaf said that small business has very much opportunity to break into the international market, but it requires some fundementals that can't be taken for granted.

He said that honesty, integrity, commitment and developing relationships with customers are as crucial as having the desired product.

"It takes time to build that relationship," VanDerSchaaf said. "Your not going to make the sale the first time," he said.

But he added that for those who are truly seeking to establish their business outside of United States borders (other than Canada), the potential is there.

"Jack (Conrad) has vision," VanDerSchaaf said, explaining that while EMM Sales and Service was built upon serving animal feed grain businesses, he has been able to adapt to the human feed grain requirements of the Penas.

In fact, VanDerSchaaf said that both the Penas and Conrad have vision, and share a common history.

Both started off relatively poor, worked and saw opportunity to provide a service. For both, their endeavors resulted in expansion.

The Penas' TMU developed into a huge grain hauling business, but it is not without competition.

The Mexican government, which subsidizes the hauling of the corn for tortillas, wants more efficiencies. The Penas need to show they can be competitive.

EMM Service and Sales has the equipment they need, but they also need the company's ability to modify, repair and service equipment and provide technical support.

Both men have family operations and both are trying to create a future for their sons.

Conrad isn't alone in having conducted sales through meetings at the International Trade Show.

The PFB wants at least a five-cent deposit placed on bottles and cans as an incentive to recycle. Incidentally, a news conference was held at the Kopp Farm more than 13 years ago to show the need for a mandatory deposit on bottles and cans.

On Monday, Donaldson and Kopp walked along some of the road frontage of the Kopp Farm, picking up bottles, cans, and other trash that motorists illegally dumped from their vehicles.

Kopp said, "Bottles are the culprits of a lot of cut tires on our farm machinery." He held up a sharp piece of a brown beer bottle that could slice through a tractor tire, resulting in a repair job cosing between $50-$100, he said. It costs $800 to replace a tractor tire.

Kopp also pointed out a dire threat to the livestock — pieces of aluminum cans. Cans which are thrown haphazardly into hay fields get caught up in forage harvesters and shredded, mixing with feed. Kopp showed those who attended the conference pieces of the shredded cans that have ended up in the feed bunk.

Even though the harvester is equipped with magnets that can capture iron and steel, the magnets have no effect on aluminum.

Autopsies of dead cattle are expensive and are only performed, according to Kopp, when a chronic health problem is suspected. But what about a few downed animals that die of mysterious causes? Kopp said, "I have to wonder — is some of (the trash) getting into their stomachs and cutting holes in their stomachs and causing complications?"

It's hard to put a dollar estimate on the kind of financial losses tallied as a result of cows eating the litter-contaminated forage, Kopp admitted. But it could run easily into thousands of dollars.

Opponents of the proposed Bottle Bill have said that mandatory township recycling laws have done much to stem the flow of trash into farmers' fields. But "the recycling law is not working to solve the problems we have out here in the country," said Kopp.

In Londonderry Township, home to about 2,500 residents, there is no mandatory recycling law. However, townships bordering Londonderry, including Derry and Swatara and Lower Swatara, have recycling laws. Kopp said there must be some kind of financial incentive for people to recycle the cans and bottles. Now, however, people see no value in the trash and simply toss it out the window.

"Our society has become such a throwaway society," said Kopp, "that we don't want to take responsibility to dispose of any of our litter."

Kopp said one day he was working in the field and saw a pickup truck coming down the road. A man was leaning out of the passenger side window. Kopp saw an arm dangling out the window and a bottle went flying — the passenger was trying to hit a road sign as they drove by.

A lot of underage drinkers also drive the miles of road frontage and have to get rid of the "evidence," Kopp noted. He's seen whole cases of beer dropped out of the window and land on his field.

"It seems like weekends are our biggest time for litter. People are out partying and probably a lot of that is underage drinking. I found here yesterday cans, not even bottles, not even open yet, lying alongside the road . . . beer, mostly."

People don't have the incentive to keep the bottles and cans they buy, sometimes before they come home from work, for recycling. Many people won't make that extra effort to put that trash in the recycling bin, insisted Kopp.

A five-cent deposit on bottles and cans would change that.

Kopp held up a shart piece of glass from a broken bottle — a real culprit to tires on the farm.

Grounds For Bottles, Cans

On Sunday, Ronald Kopp, center, told those at the conference he and his wife Connie spent about an hour and a half picking up bottles and cans strewn about on his farm, using a two-wheel trailer hooked to a four-wheel vehicle. The trash was collected into this small wagon. From left, Louis R. Sallie, administrative secretary and chief administrative officer of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB); Kopp; and Guy Donaldson, PFB president.

"Even if we had a 5-cent deposit return on containers, and someone still chose to throw that can or bottle or whatever out into the roadside, there wold be people out there that could benefit by picking up the cans because they would have a nickel every time they picked something up," he said.

On Sunday, Kopp told those at the conference, he and his wife Connie spent about an hour and a half picking up bottles and cans strewn about on his farm, using a two-wheel trailer hooked to a four-wheel vehicle. The trash was collected into the small wagon. If a five-cent deposit existed, someone could collect enough nickels from deposits on the trash "to go to the movies or something.

"Kids could pick up trash along the road at five cents a can and have a little spending change for the weekend," said Kopp.

"Until we get some monetary reward for not littering, all the mandatory recycling we have is not going to be effective."

Kopp blames the lack of passage of the Bottle Bill by pressure from "large-manufacturer lobbying groups that are not taking responsibility for the problems we have out here in the country.

"Until this society realizes they are responsible for our future environment, this stuff is only going to fill up landfills."

At the conference, Kopp reminded those who are concerned with the future of farming about the "significant financial hardship" that this trash causes on the farm. Since the 1980s, when the first such press conference was held at the farm, "we still have the same trash stream out here, we still have the same problems with cut tires and shredded cans and bottles and so on."

Donaldson, of PFB, told those at the conference, "We were advised by legislators and some organizations opposing this approach to be patient, because the state recycling law would correct the problems in the rural areas. This law is extremely effective in the urban areas. However, it has absolutely no benefits for rural areas."

Donaldson told the media that the farm group supported the 1988 Municipal Waste Planning, Recycling and Waste Reduction Act which started curbside recycling.

Donaldson said PFB is urging members of the state General Assembly to approve H.B. 922, introduced by Rep. Arthur Hershey with 53 co-sponsors. The legislation would place at least a five-cent deposit on bottles and cans, making it worth the effort to recycle beverage containers instead of dumping them along the highway.

Donaldson said that 13 years and three months is long enough to wait for an action plan to clean up the bottles and cans being dumped in rural areas.

The PFB hosted state legislators at a banquet at the Ramada Inn on Market Square in Harrisburg. Earlier, the individual farmers carried bottles of root beer to their legislators. They explained the bottles had been purchased here at a local supermarket. The bottles have a deposit value in nine other states.

A hearing is scheduled Monday, April 21 in Room 140 of the main Capitol Building in Harrisburg on the proposed legislation.

The bill is in the House State Government Committee, chaired by Rep. Paul Clymer, according to a PFB release.

More than 400 farmers were in Harrisburg early in the week visiting legislators, seeking support for the Bottle Bill and other legislation affecting rural residents.

Also, similar meetings to discuss the Bottle Bill were held at other farms in the region. A demonstration of the problem with rural trash was held Tuesday at the George Moyer farm in Bethel. A trash pickup was held Thursday at the farm of Tim and Phylis Barlow, Chester County.

"We take great pride in our farm," Kopp said. "I get out there on my tractor and see all the trash. People inadvertently think it's just OK to throw it out here on the farmer's field.

"I'd like to encourage the legislature to really take a hard look at this and the citizens of Pennsylvania to take responsibility for the trash that's being thrown in the rural Pennsylvania roadsides."

Mandatory township recycling may be well in its place, Kopp noted, "but here in rural Pennsylvania it's not doing the job.

"The public has to take responsibility for throwing away the trash. And until we get some financial incentive for them to do that, I don't think it'll ever happen."

ones who take care of her," he said.

Reserve champion and reserve grand champion was C. Mapledeul Aerostar Hazel, a four year old shown by Chip Savage of Knoxville.

Savage Leigh Farm, consisting of Wayne and Cindee Savage and their children Chip, Jami, Kelli, and Ryan was honored as Premier Breeder and Exhibitor. Members of the Savage family swept the open classes, taking 10 first place ribbons for their Holsteins, and won 3 first place junior classes including best bred and owned for Jami's senior three year old cow Savage Leigh Skybuck Ashlee.

Senior champion and grand champion of the junior show was Ehrhardt Astro Jody ET, an aged cow shown by Kevin Ehrhardt of Baldwin. Judge Garrison also selected six year old Jody as best bred and owned in the open class. Jody, fresh 14 months, had a "tremendous dairy frame" according to Garrison. The judge not only liked her dairyness, but "her udder at six years was up way above her hocks," said James Ehrhardt of the six year old, who also won the total performance award in her class.

Jody's victory as grand champ of the junior show is made all the sweeter when you know the story of the last year of her life. When she freshened last March with twin bull calves, she kept spiking a temperature, explained James Ehrhardt. The family had to send her to New Bolton for 17 days, where veterinarians discovered she had an infection in a valve of her heart. "They didn't give her much hope," Ehrhardt said, "but Dr. Ray Sweeney worked on her, and got her to come around." A combination of IV penicillin and Gentocin was used on the cow, and Dr. Sweeney said she would probably dry up. "But it's been her best lactation," Ehrhardt said. "We brought her home and she was on penicillin through a muscle injection — 40cc's night and day for 49 days. But it was all worth it. Now she's bred back to Charles. She not only pulled through, she beat all the odds and went on to make the best show record she's ever done. Every obstacle that was in front of her she went through."

Last year she was junior All-American five year old. She was first at Madison and was high honorable mention for grand champion. And she was first at Harrisburg at the Eastern National show in 1996, and was reserve grand champion.

Reserve champion and reserve grand champion in the junior show went to Garstlyn Astre Amy, shown by Amy Iager of Fulton.

Amy also showed the junior champion of the junior and open shows, her summer yearling Royalty Stardust Gold.

Joe Graybeal Re-elected As Lancaster DHIA President

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster DHIA Board of Directors recently re-elected Joe Graybeal President for 1997. Graybeal was first elected to the Board in 1990 and re-elected in 1993 and 1996. He and his brother, Steve, operate a 400 dairy farm in southern Lancaster County.

In accepting the challenge of another term as President, Graybeal stated he would continue building on the success of the past years of Lancaster DHIA. "Quality service with low overhead expense will continue to be my goal for the future of this organization. Dairy farmers deserve quality DHIA service at reasonable costs."

Steve Hershey was re-elected Vice President and Dave Garber as Treasurer. John Wanner was elected Secretary. Rodney Denlinger continues as Chairman of the Lab Committee.

The Board is pleased with the continued growth of the organization. The Field Committee reported a total of 1,354 herds on test which is an increase of 105 herds in the past year.

Lancaster DHIA serves Lancaster, Berks, Dauphin, Chester, Franklin, Lebanon, and York counties. For more information call us at (717) 665-5960; FAX (717) 664-2911; Email - landhia @redrose.net

Prior to this year's second event, held during the Farm Show at the Hershey Hotel and Convention Center, business reports to the PDA estimated about $15 million in sales directly related to the event, with $5 million pending.

Conrad's potential $3 million in sales would be a boost to that figure.

Other potential deals are in the works.

But for Conrad and many others, there was little evidence to support the pie-in-the sky talk about international trade that was to come following the collapse of the Soviet Union, the North American Free Trade Agreement and the last round of the General Agreement on Trariffs and Trade that created the World Trade Organization.

When he started in business, the world was a much different place.

No matter what factor or characteristic of American life, today is different.

And business is different.

Conrad started working for Daffin Corp. when he was young, cutting grass and working for the owner. After finishing high school, Conrad went straight to work for Daffin.

He said that the owner made the statement to him that, "'If you get into agriculture, you'll never be out of work, because people always got to eat.' I stayed in agriculture ever since, working around feeding equipment."

Conrad also served in the National Guard for eight years in the motor section. "I always like to be around equipment," he said. "I always liked trucks and equipment."

Conrad's business started as a three-person service and repair business in 1969 after the local manufacturer of mobile feed mill equipment (Daffin Corp.), headquartered in Lancaster, was sold to Farmhand Inc., of Minneapolis.

The sale of the business moved the headquarters and jobs away and Conrad decided that, instead of transferring to Minneapolis with the company, there was enough work here to make a living — plenty of pieces of the milling equipment had been sold to farmers in the area and he could service and repair the equipment.

That strategy of focusing on a fairly limited geography had been key to the business, as is has for other agribusinesses — he knew where and who his customers were, where they lived and what they wanted.

After establishing his business, Conrad said in the early 1970s he got involved with handling pneumatic air equipment, and then diversifying into bulk feeds.

"Coming on in the 1970s, we saw a future in grain in the bulk business, rather than the mobile mills, and started to diversify at that point," Conrad said.

A fire destroyed his business in 1974 and about that time he met a representative of Walinga Inc. out of Canada. "I've been their main line distributer ever since," Conrad said.

He quickly began to work with the major mills and livestock industry people, especially poultry and swine feed operations where confinement housing and central feeding bins first became accepted.

He said at first bulk boxes were used to replace hauling grain in bags. Then boxes were replaced by bulk tanks.

He said Pennfield and Wengers were probably the first local companies to purchase the bulk tanks.

Conrad arranged for Walinga people from Canada to meet with local large grain and livestock producers to develop the equipment they needed for bulk handling.

Today, Conrad said there are about 3,000 pieces of equipment in the field that he sold.

He said about 98 percent of the Pennfield and Wenger fleet is equipment purchased through EMM — which stands for Eastern Mobile Mills, though it was consolidated to EMM when the company was incorporated 15 years ago.

The company today employs 19 people, including Jack, his wife and vice president Diane, a 25-year-old son, and Jack's brother Dick.

The small family business recently relocated in Brownstown as part of an expansion. An open house is scheduled to be held June 7.

Conrad's business has succeeded largely by anticipating the grain handling needs of the livestock industry and working with those needs and his own skills to find solutions.

NASDA Develops Policies

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Milk prices have declined sharply in recent months," Vermont Commissioner of Agriculture, Food and Markets and Chairman of NASDA's Rural Development and Financial Security Committee, Leon Graves said during the organization's Mid-Year Legislative Conference.

Considerable concern and hardship within the dairy industry has been the result of the fluctuation in milk prices.

In accordance with USDA's request for comments about the dominance of the National Cheese Exchange in calculating the basic formula price for milk, NASDA members urge a fast track mechanism aimed at separating the Basic Formula Price from the current formula pricing of milk.

A policy statement passed by the members of NASDA suggests that the national cash auction market, such as the National Cheese Exchange, was not intented to be an indicator of national supply and demand for commodities.

"Alternative measures may be more reliable indicators of market supply and demand for products and provide more stability in milk pricing."

NASDA urges USDA to immediately consider the possible adoption of an alternative pricing mechanims while, at the same time, continuing to pursue market order consolidation and reform.

NASDA is a nonprofit association of public officials representing the Commissioners, Secretaries, and Directors of Agriculture in the 50 states and four territories.

The association debated and passed other policy statements.

It urged President Clinton to involve the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) in the eradication of brucellosis from the wild populations of bison and elk living in the Greater Yellowstone Area and requested that the National Park Service (NPS) take responsiblity for managing the wildlife located in the Yellowstone National Park (the Park).

Brucellosis, a disease that causes stillbirths in cattle and undulant fever in humans, has been known to infect the bison of Yellowstone National Park since 1917 and in the elk of the Greater Yellowstone Area since the 1930's.

Until 1967, NPS officials conducted controls of both bison and elk in the Park in order to maintain the population of both animal species within the "carrying capacity" of the park.

However, NPS officials have since removed bison from the Park and transferred ownership of the Park's bison to other federal agencies and to private citizens.

"This action was taken without regard to the disease status of the bison," NASDA's members said in the policy statement.

"Further, the NPS has permitted bison herd in the Yellowstone National Park to grow to well beyond the carrying capacity of available forage. Seeking food, bison infected with brucellosis are migrating outside of the Park. In migrating outside of the Park, the bison raise the threat of spreading the burcellosis disease to disease-free domestic cattle and the possibility of being destroyed."

In an effort to reduce the number of bison being destroyed, the U.S. Department of Interior and USDA, earlier this year, proposed an "emergency plan" which would allow untested, infected, and exposed bison to migrate onto U.S. Forest Service lands outside of the Park.

"This emergency plan, however, fails to address the disease, the bison overpopulation situation, and the overgrazed conditions of the Park."

In reaction to the federal government's emergency plan, "NASDA members request that the NPS contract with USDA's APHIS to perform risk assessments in states surrounding the Park (Montana, Wyoming and Idaho) to determine if adequate surveillance is being conducted. If adequate surveillance is not being conducted, the NPS and APHIS are urged to ensure that both domestic animals and wildlife moving in interstate commerce are appropriately tested and found negative for infection of the brucellosis disease."

The NASDA also issued another policy statement concerning disease control.

"The future strategy for dealing with the Karnal bunt disease should be one of shifting the approach from regulating it as a quarantine significant pest to managing it as a quality pest," said the NASDA in a policy statement.

"According to plant pathologists, the disease that affects wheat, Karnal bunt, is a weak pathogen of minor production importance and should be regulated accordingly," said Gus Douglass, chairman of NASDA's Animal and Plant Industries Committee.

NASDA recommends that USDA shift its focus to this approach by Sept. 30, 1999. Further, commencing on March 1, 1997, NASDA recommends that every decision on any proposed action relating to Karnal bunt be evaluated in terms of its contribution to this new direction of managing it as a quality pest, while maintaining international markets.

Gov. Ridge, State Legislature Proclaim Grange Week

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 300,000 Grange members nationwide will celebrate Grange Week April 20-26.

In recognition of the event, Gov. Tom Ridge and the state House and Senate have officially proclaimed that week Pennsylvania State Grange Week and April 28 as Grange Day.

"(As) the Grange celebrates its 125 years of service under the creed 'people, pride and progress'," Ridge said, "the Grange remains dedicated to improving farming and rural life for all Pennsylvanians. Grange efforts to support agriculture, education, transportation, tax reform, rural development and health care have all reinforced the Grange members' leadership role in the community.

"The Grange is committed to the ethic of honest labor and willing service," Ridge said, "and has helped to sustain the quality of life enjoyed by our rural citizens."

The Pennsylvania State Grange will celebrate Grange Day on April 28 with educational workshops on such topics as: emergency preparedness in rural areas of the state; an Environmental Protection Agency proposal concerning agricultural production; insurance reform for the self-employed; and the role of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board in the dairy crisis in Pennsylvania.

Lt. Gov. Mark Schweiker will be the guest speaker for the workshop on emergency preparedness and his role as chairman of the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Council.

Similiar proclamations were passed in the state House and Senate. The House proclamation, sponsored by Rep. Sheila Miller, R-Berks, contained over 100 signatures and was unanimously approved by that chamber.

The Senate version, sponsored by Sen. Dan Delp, R-York, who is also the chairman of the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, praised the work of Grange members across the state.

"Rural and farm communities within this Commonwealth are vitally important to the welfare and economy of Pennsylvania," read the House proclamation, "and the Pennsylvania State Grange has been a proud leader in the movement to improve farming

Blue Seal Officials Open Hagerstown Feed Plant

Blue Seal Feeds, Inc., held a ribbon cutting ceremony for company officials at their new feed manufacturing plant in Hagerstown, Maryland, last Friday. On Saturday, the plant was open to the public for tours of the new, state-of-the art mill where visitors could get a first-hand look at how animal feed is manufactured.

Company President Norm Van Ord said the new plant has the capacity to produce 175,000 tons of feed per year for horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, rabbits, wild birds, dogs, cats, and other animals. The highly computerized, fully automated plant is designed to be an exemplary neighbor, environmentally friendly, and safe for employees. The plant contains 20,000 square feed of warehouse space plus storage capacity for 5,800 tons of more than 100 different ingredients, 65 of them in bulk. The Hagerstown plant will serve 130 independent feed dealers within a 250 mile radius and commercial dairy farmers within 75 miles. The new facility is capable of manufacturing mashes, pellets, crumbles, flaked and crimped grains, sweet feed, and extruded products. In the photo, officials cut the ribbon, symbolic of the opening of the new facility.

Pa. State Grange Members To Meet With Legislators

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nearly 400 Pennsylvania State Grangers will travel here on April 28 to discuss rural and agricultural issues with their state legislators during Grange Day activities.

This annual event is one way the PA State Grange attempts to bring government closer to the people. Grange Day in Pennsylvania is being celebrated on April 28 while Grange Week is honored by 300,000 National Grange members from April 20-26. That week has been declared Grange Week in Pennsylvania by the Ridge Administration and both the state House and Senate.

"The legislative reception and banquet is grass-roots at work as our members meet with the legislators to affirm Grange policy and express their concerns about rural and agricultural issues," said Brenda Shambaugh, PA Grange legislative director.

The Pennsylvania State Grange, with more than 31,000 members in 450 Grange chapters across the commonwealth, is dedicated to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians through legislative action, grass-roots initiatives, community service and offering member services like financial planning, a credit union and insurance programs.

Some of the issues which the Grange is working on and will discuss with their lawmakers include:

Local Tax Reform

SB2, which is similar to the bill last session, closely resembles long-standing Grange policy. The bill allows the local municipality and school district to create their own taxing structure.

"Grange policy is that not one formula will meet all needs across the state," Shambaugh said. "And, therefore, there should be control at the local level."

A companion issue is the changes to the Constitution for a homestead exemption. The Grange is pushing for that exemption to include agricultural buildings.

Insurance For The Self-Employed

The Grange has learned insurance companies are dropping self-employed individuals with high risk occupations like farming because they are not covered by workman compensation and insurance carriers will not write policies for them. Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Linda Kaiser will conduct a workshop at Grange Day to work with Grange officials to seek solutions to this serious dilemma.

Freedom To Farm Act

Also known as the Right to Farm Act, this is a Grange priority issue. The Grange seeks to limit local governing units' authority to restrict farming operations.

"The issue is that local ordinances are being passed with the intent of curtailing ag practices — particularly in developing areas," Shambaugh said. "The Grange is strongly committted to ensuring people have the freedom to produce food and fiber, the freedom to choose their livelihood and the freedom to be successful in that chosen profession."

Private Property Rights

The Grange is asking their legislators to support the Private Property Rights Act, according to Shambaugh.

"This bill will require the federal government to compensate property owners for regulatory 'takings' of their land," Shambaugh said. "Grange policy is quite clear on this issue: If the government 'takes' your land, then you have the unalienable right to be compensated for your losses."

1997 State Budget

Agriculture and rural Pennsylvania fared well in the governor's budget proposal.

The most notable improvement over the past five years is the governor separated the University of Pennsylvania Veterinarian School funding from other non-preferred funding. This means that if the state decides not to fund other non-preferred schools, the vet school is more protected.

"The Grange is pleased that the governor has taken steps to protect the funding for a valuable asset of the agricultural community," Shambaugh said. "The work being performed at the vet school today is ensuring a better agriculture of tomorrow."

Returnable Beverage Container Legislation

The Grange is glad there is renewed interest in the Legislature in a piece of legislation that the Grange has strenuously worked to have passed. Two representatives have introduced legislation seeking a 5 cent deposit on empty beverage containers.

"It has been determined by members of the agriculture community that the state's recycling program is not deterring people from throwing bottles and cans into fields," Shambaugh said. "One shredded can or glass bottle can cause irreparable damage in a herd and have a devastating effect on that farming operation."

Particulate Matter

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposes to revise standards for air pollutants, which, if adopted, could have a devastating effect on agricultural operations.

EPA plans to change the National Ambient Air Quality Standards for two air pollutants: ozone and particulate matter (PM). The new, tighter standards would create non-attainment zones across the country and subject a greater number of farms and ranches to air quality regulation. Dairies would also be affected and be tested for ammonia, dust, fuel combustion and diesel emissions.

"Since fuel and energy costs are the third largest non-argricultural input supply expense for American farmers," Shambaugh said, "the profitability of many crops will be dramatically influenced by motor fuel and electricity prices."

"We also don't believe there is sufficient data to support changing the standards," Shambaugh said. "We recommend additional research because agriculture may be even less of an emitter than previously recognized."

Capital Gains Tax Relief

Capital gains tax hurts agriculture and other businesses that invest in property and equipment by imposing a penalty when assets are shifted from one use to another. The tax discourages farmers from selling less valued assets and reinvesting the proceeds in more productive activities needed to keep their business growing and their operations competitive. Most capital gains in agriculture result from inflation, Shambaugh said. With the average length of time that farmland is held being at 28 years, the overall price level in the U.S. quadruples due to inflation. As a result, farmers pay huge capital gains tax bills in inflated rather than real increase in the value of their investments.

The National Grange supports a reform in capital gains taxes which would allow a 50 percent reduction in capital gains, making the effective rate 7.5 percent for those in the 15 percent bracket, 14 percent for the 289 percent bracket and 19.8 percent for the 39.6 percentile.

Grange Day activities in Pennsylvania include a legislative milk punch reception, legislative workshops and a banquet. Many individual Granges across the state will host special meetings, dinners and events to mark the annual celebration.

and rural life for all Pennsylvanians."

A legislative reception/banquet follows the workshops, which kick off Grange Day activities at 1 p.m. Nearly 400 Pennsylvania Grangers are expected to attend the festivities at the Sheraton Inn-East in Harrisburg. Non-grangers are cordially invited and can register by calling 1-800-552-3865 by April 18.

The Pennsylvania State Grange, with over 31,000 members in 450 Grange chapters across the commonwealth, is dedicated to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians through legislative action, grass-roots initiatives, community service and offering member services like financial planning, a credit union and insurance programs.

and apples were in pink or probloom when the temperature dropped in April. We believe that the peach and cherry crops were severely damaged in Central and Western Maryland. Apples buds sustained some thinning injury, but that should not have a negative impact on the total crop.

Over the next several weeks we will see how much of the peach, nectarine, plum, and cherry crop was damaged. We are not out of the woods until mid-May, there remains a potential for more frosty temperatures through that time. We are confident that the effect of the cold temperatures on the fruit crops in the Eastern and Southern parts of the state were very little.

The 80-cent premium reflects a relatively long-standing 50-cent premium (because of several years of very poor weather conditions) and a 30-cent additional premium added last fall because of low milk prices and high feed prices.

While the hearing was called to solicit comments on the over-order premium, the staff of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board offered an additional suggestion for consideration — to extend the PMMB's oversight of farmer's over-order premiums to those they receive from out-of-state processors.

David DeSantis, chief of the PMMB Enforcement and Accounting Division, outlined the out-of-state "recapture" plan.

"There are now dramatic forces in the marketplace that have the potential to reshape the marketing of milk in the Northeast," he told the board.

"Principally, the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR) of 1996 mandates the consolidation of federal marketing orders and the United States Department of Agriculture approved the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact, which is likely to start influencing the price of milk.

"These factors, combined with the ever-increasing ability of the industry to transport milk greater distances and a longer shelf-life for milk make the management of the milk market even more important," he said.

Considering the background and market factors, DeSantis said it is even more important that the Board set an over-order premium that works well; one that serves as a catalyst to maintain dairy stability and availability.

Furthermore, he said the Board should move now to deal with potential and anticipated opportunities for pricing battles that destabilize the market.

"It is vital," DeSantis said, "that the Board establishes a premium that properly reflects market forces and accounts, where possible, for the increased cost of production and reduced income of Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

"When the Board-mandated premium is set too low, especially in a period of relatively short supply, producers are motivated to supplement that premium by seeking from competing dairies the highest possible voluntary premiums — thus introducing another destabilizing factor into the marketplace," DeSantis said.

"Conversely, as supplies become more plentiful and the cost of production decreases, the Board must react to the market dynamics and adjust the premium accordingly.

"To account for these changes in mandated premium pricing that may appear in the marketplace, the staff of the Board recommends that the premium calculation be modified to account not only for Class I milk produced, processed and sold within Pennsylvania, but also for milk purchased from producers in Pennsylvania and utilized in a state that also has a mandated premium," DeSantis said.

"When another state establishes a premium, the premium paid to the Pennsylvania producers should be no higher.

"Bear in mind, we are regulating only the sale that takes place in Pennsylvania by the Pennsylvania producer to the purchaser," DeSantis said.

"The Board bases all payments to producers, at least in part, on the milk marketing area where the purchasing dealer is selling the milk.

"We are suggesting that these payments be adjusted to reflect the premium that may be in effect in the state where the milk was ultimately sold," he told the Board.

While it can be expected that the Board will grant the extension of a 30-cent premium for at least six months, it was decided during the hearing to consider the staff recommendations separately.

Several indicated that they would be filing opinions on the staff recommendations. (The last scheduled filing deadline to be June 9 for a response.)

Meanwhile, all representatives of the farm groups and others cited essentially the same data — generally provided by the federal milk market administrators and the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service — that documented that the average price of milk received by the farmer did not properly compensate, and is not expected to properly compensate, for its production.

Those testifying on the premium reminded the PMMB of the volatility in the milk market, the changing of the federal milk marketing orders as mandated in the '96 Farm Bill (FAIR), the high price of soybeans and protein supplements, the fluctuating price of grains and forages and poor investment/return ratios, beef prices and other facts and factors which affect the dairy industry.

All the facts were used to support a continued 30-cent additional over-order premium.

Those testifying included Robert Gabel, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Grange Dairy Committee; Robert C. Junk Jr., president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union; Jim Sleper, manager of marketing information for Milk Marketing Inc., Strongsville, Ohio; Harold Curtis, chairman of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Dairy Committee, and Joel Rotz, PFB dairy specialist; Dennis Schad, on behalf of Land O'Lakes (including the former Atlantic Dairy Cooperative with which it recently merged), Atlantic Processing Inc., Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Cooperative, The Coastal Region of Mid-American Dairymen, and Dairylea Cooperative Inc.; and state Rep. Italo Cappabianca, Democratic chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, who spoke on behalf of 13 Democratic members of the state House of Representatives.

AJCA AMERICAN JERSEY CATTLE ASSOCIATION

NEWS

AJCA Awards Research Grants

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Nine Jersey related research projects were awarded a total of $42,395 by the American Jersey Cattle Association.

The AJCA annually makes contributions to research that can advance knowledge of, or related to the dairy cattle breed. The funds are from interest income from the AJCC Research Foundation.

The AJCA board of directors approved the nine funding proposals out of 18 submitted.

The board decisions were based on the assumed relevance of the research to several AJCC priorities.

Those research priorities include work on nutrition, particularly in finding practical feeding methods to maximize production of valuable milk components; factors that affect the yield of products manufactured from Jersey milk; factors that affect net income, cow longevity and lifetime profit; optimal use of young sires; biological and economic efficiences of Jerseys; and factors that affect the management of Jersey calves.

Researchers and their respective institutions are to receive the designated funds to conduct specific investigations.

Those investigations include:

• Studying techniques to measure environmental heat sterss and methods to reduce heat of different breeds of dairy cattle in a hot-arid climate, by D.V. Armstrong of the University of Arizona and P.E. Hillman with Cornell University, $1,500;

• A study of the number of services needed for satisfactory accuracy in predicting conception rates of Jersey bulls, by John Clay, Ben McDaniel and John Wilk of North Carolina State University, Raleigh, $5,000;

• A study of the role of feed additives such as yeast and popylene glycol in the transition diets of Jersey cows, by Michael Hutjens, University of Illinois, Urbana, $4,590;

• Research into enhancing consumer acceptance of Jersey milk by reducing its content of saturated fatty acids, by Thomas Jenkins and Jean Bertrand of the Clemson University, in Clemson, S.C., $6,000.

• Research to discover the best way to choose dams of Jersey bulls to optimize genetic gain while maintaining genetic diversity, by Ben McDaniel and John Wilk, of North Carolina State University, and Cari Wolfe with the AJCA, $5,000;

• A study into the influence of clinical and subclinical mastitis during early lactation on reproductive performance of Jersey cows, by S.P. Oliver, F.N. Schrich, and H.H. Dowlen of The Univeristy of Tennessee, in Knoxville, Tenn., $6,000;

• A study into the effects on health and growth of Jersey calves from supplementing milk replacer with colostrum, by J.D. Quigley III and H.H. Dowlen of The University of Tennessee, $2,555;

• Research into hormonal changes associated with clinical mastitis during early lactation in Jersey cows, by F.N. Schrick, S.P. Oliver and H.H. Dowlen of The University of Tennessee.

The AJCA solicits research proposal annually. For more information contact Cari Wolfe, director of research and program development at the American Jersey Cattle Association, 6486 East Main St., Reynoldsburg, Ohio, 43068-2362, (614) 861-3636, or fascimile (614) 861-8040.

State Equine Council Sets Allegheny Trail Ride

BOALSBURG (Centre Co.) — On Saturday, March 8, 1997 Bonnie Darlington, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Equine Council, headed out very early in the morning for a long four-hour one-way trip through light rain and snow to Warren, to attend another meeting on trails. This was one of many that she has attended in the last year. But having met Brenda Adams-Weyant, Who is a Recreation Planner for the Allegheny National Forest when she attended one of our Pennsylvania Equine Council's state trail meetings, Bonnie was sure that this meeting was going to be one worth her time to attend. What she did not know was how worthwhile, because this meeting turned out to be one of the most positive meetings on trails that she has attended, and believe me she has attended more than her share of meetings in her day.

Both sides came together in friendship and worked out a plan which everyone felt would help preserve the trails on the Allegheny National Forest lands, and hopefully secure them for equine use for many years to come.

Forest Service Employees organized this meeting which was the second such meeting in an effort on their part to get the horse people to organize a volunteer horse club for the Allegheny National Forest. It was felt that there were too many horse people (250+) at the first meeting to accomplish the organization of such a club.

Brenda Adams-Weyant was the meeting coordinator and started with introductions. She felt that the 28 in attendance was a good number to meet and discuss the possibility of how to prevent problems on the Allegheny National Forest lands.

Out of this meeting formed a group of horsepeople which call themselves the Allegheny Regional Equine Trail Council (ARETC). This group voted unanimously to work under the umbrella of the Pennsylvania Equine Council to promote, protect and care for the Allegheny National Forest lands for equine use, as well as other user groups. They will work with the knowledge, approval, guidelines, and input from the Allegheny National Forest to accomplish their goals. Skip VerMilyea from Ludlow, McKean County, was voted in as temporary Chairman.

The conditions of the trails were discussed and possible solutions. It was decided that because of the conditions on many trails at this time of year is not a good time to do trail maintenance so this will be put off as a group until after the Pennsylvania Equine Council's trail ride in June, but if someone wishes to do minor repairs individually this is fine. Good ideas and suggestions (all friendly and caring) were discussed and for 3½ hours the group worked at the same goal of maintaining and preserving the land so that equine use can continue. Everyone at that meeting was to be admired for their unselfish comments and broad minded visions of the problems and possible cures, which produced results that everyone there felt was a good positive step in the right direction.

Bonnie asked that any horse person or group that does trail maintenance document (date, place, times, people involved, what was done, etc.) and if possible take before and after pictures and send them to Bonnie Darlington, PO Box 570, Boalsburg, PA 16827-0570 (814-364-9826), for her file which can be used to show others of the work that the horse people are doing out on the trails. Also if anyone sees a problem on the trail to notify the chairperson, Skip VerMilyea or Bonnie about the problem so we can work with the Forest employees to correct the problem.

The plan is: (1) To organize a group of horse people under the umbrella of the Pennsylvania Equine Council to watch over the Allegheny National Forest lands and report any possible problems then communicate and work together to resolve the problems. (2) To keep a good line of communication and cooperation going between horse people and land management as well as other land users. (3) To conduct educational Trail programs (4) to address any other issues necessary to promote, protect and care for the land and its use.

That meeting proved that communication and cooperation can go a long way toward correcting problems. We all know that there will be some problems along the way, but with attitudes and cooperation like the ones shown in that room on Saturday, March 8th, they certainly stand a good chance of solving any problems that come before them.

What a rewarding sight it was to see everyone working together and in such a positive way for the good of our woodlands. The professional way that everyone conducted themselves with both sides unselfishly and open mindedly taking in the concerns and needs of the other and both showing concern for the common goal, which is the good of the land and its continued use for the good of the people produced accomplishments which included more than a good plan to prevent many future problems and to develop good communications but there was also a renewed faith in mankind for each of us there that day.

It certainly looks like this cooperative group of land managers and horse people are well on their way to being classified as True Winners! Congratulations to all who attended that meeting for a job well done.

The next meeting will be at the Pennsylvania Equine Council's Allegheny Trail Ride on June 7 & 8th (There will be an educational Trail Seminar on Saturday, following the trail ride, 4 to 6 p.m.). For information on the Trail Ride, contact Doug Bentrem, 270 Purdy Rd., Burgettstown, PA 15021 (412-947-3411) Washington County. In the meantime all suggestions and ideas will be passed onto the Allegheny Regional Equine Trail Council's Chairman, Skip VerMilyea, 5 Overbrook Road, PO Box 31, Ludlow, PA 16333 (814-945-5523).

District Announces Cost-Share Program

KITTANNING (Armstrong Co.) — The Armstrong Conservation District has been awarded a cost-share program through the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to be allocated for the installation of perimeter and subdivisional fencing.

The requirements for eligibility of the cost-share funding are that the fencing: (1) must meet Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) standards, (2) is to be used for rotational grazing purposes, and (3) is to be integrated into a certified nutrient management plan.

To obtain additional information about this program or to sign up for consideration of cost-share funding, contact the Armstrong Conservation District office in the Armsdale Administration Building, R.D. #8, Box 294, Kittanning, PA 16201, (412) 548-3425.

Hershey Elected To National Board

By David Bigelow
Training Coordinator

GORDONVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Norman Hershey from Gordonville, Lancaster County was recently elected to the National DHIA board of directors.

Norman and his wife Kathy own and operate Springarden Farm and are active members of PA DHIA which is headquartered in State College, PA. The Springarden Farm was originally bought in 1837 and is still in operation while being on its sixth generation and already has been claimed as an eighth generation farm with the recent 1 year birthday of Tyler their grandson. The scenic set-up consists of 90 head of cattle and 300 acres of corn, alfalfa and soybeans. Currently son Michael works on the farm while the Hershey's have a daughter Michele.

Norman currently serves as vice president of the PA DHIA board of directors while representing district 10 which consists of York, Lancaster, Chester and Montgomery counties. He also serves as secretary of the local school board.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association is sponsoring a bus to the 1997 National Holstein Convention, set to be held June 25-28 in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The cost of the bus is $65 per person. Each person is responsible for their own hotel accommodations and convention tickets while in Grand Rapids.

Bus reservations must be made by Friday, May 9.

According to a news release, a total of 45 people are needed to signup by May 9. If the total isn't reached, the trip will be cancelled.

The tentative schedule for the trip includes departing promptly at 8 p.m., Tuesday, June 24 from State College, making a stop at Howard Johnson's in Mercer at 11 p.m., and arriving in Grand Rapids, at 8 a.m., June 25.

The return trip is to depart Grand Rapids at 7 p.m., June 28 and stop at the Mercer Howard Johnson's at 6 a.m., June 29, and finish back at State College at 9 a.m.

Bus reservations can be telephoned or sent by fascimile machine (fax). Contact the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801; (814) 234-0364, or fax (814) 234-1698.

the price at will. By the time the public wakes up, it will take years in the courts to undo the monopolies.

Who owns the cooperatives? I do not know. I do know that Dairylea was originally Dairymen's League, formed by a group of processors in NY City nearly a century ago. Investors in the city still owned it in the seventies. I would bet that some of those investors still own it today. One thing certain is that the farmer-members of the giant cooperatives do not own them.

I have often heard large Dairylea producers say that all they had to do was get rid of a few of the smaller farms, and then they would get rich. Rumor has it that Dairylea has contracted to build 10 3,000 cow dairies in the north country that will supply a new Dairylea cheese plant. Once Dairylea has its own megadairies supplying the milk for its plants, the next farms to go will be those large Dairylea producers who were looking forward to the demise of the smaller farms.

When I was a freshman in college, I had a biology professor who put a frog in a beaker of water and placed it over a Bunsen burner set on a low flame. The frog could have jumped out of the beaker at any time. The frog sat in the beaker as the water got hotter and hotter. When the water boiled the frog died. Family dairy farmers are sitting in a beaker and the water is about to boil.

Severe Cold Threatens Pennsylvania's Fruit Crops

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — The severe cold weather on April 9-10 in southcentral Pennsylvania has done considerable damage to the tree fruit industries of Franklin, Adams, and York counties.

Temperatures as low as 18-20 degrees were recorded the morning of April 9, while on the morning of April 10, temperatures of 22-23 degrees were experienced.

The extent of damage is strongly dependent on the stage of flower development. For both peaches and apples, different varieties develop or come into full bloom at slightly different times. This can have a direct effect on the frost hardiness of those flowers. Plant tissues turn brown after freezing events, but this browning reaction is temperature dependent. Therefore, since it has not warmed up much since the freeze on April 10, any estimate of total number of flowers killed is somewhat preliminary.

At the temperatures experienced and the stage of development of the peach flowers, up to 90 percent could have been killed. On the peaches that have been observed thus far, any flowers that were in full bloom have been killer but on the blossoms with petals still enclosing the flower parts, damage has been minimal.

For apples, depending on the variety, the percent kill could have ranged from nearly 100 percent to less than 20 percent. The king bloom or central flower is the first flower to open, and the percent loss of these, depending on variety, ranged from 0 percent to nearly 100 percent. The side blossoms on apple flower clusters are not as far advanced as king blooms, and the percent damage to these ranged from 0 percent to about 50 percent.

Although we are unable to give a definite answer on the status of the Pennsylvania peach and apple crops at this early time, it does appear that significant numbers of flowers have been killed. However, since on many trees only 10 or 20 percent of the flowers are required to make a commercial crop, it is possible that many Pennsylvania orchardists still will be able to harvest nearly a full crop of these fruits.

Recognizing that the most severe adverse economic impacts associated with Karnal bunt are the more than 50 foreign quarantines that have disrupted the traditional marketing of wheat produced in the United States, NASDA urges the USDA to continue its efforts to prevent additional quarantine restrictions and to negotiate with trading partners for reasonable phytosanitary requirements.

NASDA members also urge USDA to take the leadership in organzing an international science symposium in 1997 to consider the pest status of Karnal bunt and other smut diseases.

Such an international symposium should include both the international and regional plant protection organizations, in accordance with the International Plant Protection Convention (IPPC).

"The outcome of this symposium should be a scientific position statement for the global community," NASDA members recommend.

Policy Development A Tool

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — "Policy development is one of the most important facets of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, according to PFB President Guy Donaldson, Orrtanna, who also chairs PFB's state policy development committee.

Most members of the Adams County Farm Bureau think of policy development as once-a-year activity that flourishes just before annual meetings.

But in reality, it's an organized, year-round program that's ongoing in every county association.

"Policy development is the tool that gives every member a voice in helping solve the problems that affect his or her business," said Donaldson. It is an organized program for gathering the ideas and opinions of members on important issues. The policies it produces are the foundation of the county, state, and national farm bureaus.

"One thing that's important to remember," said policy development chairperson Chris Baugher, "is that policy is decided by the majority farmer opinion. Once a policy is adopted by the majority, it becomes the position of the entire organization." Policy guides the activities of the county and state association. Policy provides direction to the association offices and to the staff.

All ideas and resolutions do not become policy. There is a reason to this madness. Perhaps the idea is covered under present policy, or it is already a law, or maybe the member did not supply adequate background information for the policy to be enacted. If the issues are important to members of the organization, then it is the responsibility of the membership to explain reasoning for these actions to ensure the passage.

Deadline for resolutions to be submitted to the Policy Development Committee, chaired by Chris Baugher, vice president, is September 4, 1997.

Pedal To Preserve Lancaster County's Farmland Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust invites you to the kick-off of Lancaster Farmland Trust's first ever bike tour of Lancaster County, Pedal to Preserve. In celebration of this event, the Historic Strasburg Inn will host a press luncheon on Friday, April 18, 1997 at 1 p.m. at the Historic Strasburg Inn on Route 896 in Strasburg, Pennsylvania. Regional press are invitcd to attend the kick-off and will be served a complimentary meal courtesy of the Historic Strasburg Inn.

Both Lancaster Farmland Trust and the Historic Strasburg Inn ask that regional press call and RSVP no later than end of day, Wednesday, April 16, 1997. Questions and reservations can be directed to Kris Patterson, Director of Development for Lancaster Farmland Trust at 717/293-0707.

On the agenda for the press luncheon will be a discussion of Pedal to Preserve. The tour is a family event and is being launched with the help of the Pennsylvania Dutch Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Historical Strasburg Inn. All proceeds benefit the work of Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Pdeal to Preserve is scheduled for Saturday, June 21, 1997 and will route cyclists past several farms Lancaster Farmland Trust has preserved in eight local townships throughout the County. Bicyclists will leave from and return to the Historic Strasburg Inn and can choose from two tour lengths — a 18.5-mile ride or a 39-mile ride. During the course of the ride, there will be numerous water stations as well as several farms open to riders who are interested in touring a preserved farm. All participants must pay an entry fee and have the option of gathering sponsorships for the ride.

Lancaster Farmland Trust is a private, non-profit organization working to preserve the rich and productive farmland of Lancaster County, to support good stewardship of the land, and to encourage a thriving agricultural economy, recognizing that our farm heritage enriches the lives of all citizens.

Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative Holds Annual Meeting

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative held its annual meeting recently at the Edgewood Family Restaurant in Troy, Pa.

Stacy Mattocks, Bradford County Alternate Dairy Princess, and her sister, Holly Mattocks, dairy maid, greeted the gathering with milk punch and cheese.

Decorating the room was a large display calling attention to the member benefits enjoyed by the co-op members. Each table had a dish of M&Ms as a treat and a reminder Progressive Co-op is the major supplier of milk to Dietrich Milk Products in Middlebury Center. Dietrich manufactures whole milk powder for the confectionery industry. M&M Mars is one of Dietrich's major customers.

After a bountiful lunch, J.W. Welch of Mansfield, Pa., president, called the meeting to order. Douglas Stewart, treasurer, presented the financial statement. He stated that the co-op had a very strong financial position and is again paying a patronage dividend to its members. Progressive has paid a patronage dividend every year since its founding in 1985.

Welch discussed the cooperative's growth both in membership and volume of milk sold during the past year. He encouraged those present to talk to their neighbors about their excellent market, low hauling costs, and producer benefits.

James Patsos of United Ag Services was called upon to discuss current market conditions and to look into his crystal ball for 1997. Last year saw dairy farmers receive the best prices ever, though still below the cost of production for most dairy farmers. Recent decline in milk prices, although unacceptable, should turn around shortly. Milk prices for 1997 will average somewhat below the 1996 average. He also suggested that we are at the bottom of the beef cycle and could see improvement later this year.

Patsos presented quality awards to the following members: first to Ronald, Sally, and Michael Davis, Warren Center; second to Alice and Michael Stickler, Lawrenceville; third to Paul Allen, Granville Summit; fourth to Roger Alexander, Mansfield; and fifth to Richard Carnright, Mainesburg. All are Pennsylvania producers. United Ag Services presents quality awards to the top 10 percent of the producers in each of their cooperatives each year. A certificate and check were presented to each of the winners.

United Ag Services is a federation of five dairy cooperatives including Progressive. United supplies marketing, accounting, and management services to these cooperatives and small to medium size agricultural organizations. Anyone interested in their services or becoming a member of Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative can call J.W. Welch at (717) 549-7281 or United Ag Services at 1 (800) 326-4251. United's offices are located at 12 North Park Street, Seneca Falls, NY 13148.

Evanish Is FMS Manager

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Michael Evanish has been named manager of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Farm Management Service (FMS).

Evanish had been serving as director of training for FMS since 1989. In that capacity, he had been responsible for training all new FMS employees and keeping the service's account supervisors fully informed of the latest developments in tax codes, farm and financial management, estate planning and other pertinent information.

Evanish has been a member of the Farm Management Services staff since 1976 and served over 12 years as an FMBAService account supervisor in western Pennsylvania. "I've been involved in Farm Management Services for 21 years and truly hope to use that experience to help build FMS and to assist our clients in moving into the next century," Evanish said. "There's no doubt there will be a need for new and different ideas involving everything from tax planning to business management. Ways of doing business that worked in the 70s and 80s are not adequate as we approach the new millenium."

Web Site Supplies Critical Crop Production Information

PARSIPPANY, N.J. — The Growing Center™, a new World Wide Web site sponsored by American Cyanamid Company, provides farmers with a wealth of crop protection and production information and forums to discuss issues with other growers on the Internet. Web surfers can access the site at http://www.cyanamid.com/.

"Farmers have discovered the Internet as a valuable information tool," said Kaye Iftner, American Cyanamid business director, marketing communications. "The number of our customers who are on-line continues to grow as Internet access becomes more widely available. Our goal is to supply them with critical crop production information at any time of the day or night."

An easy-to-use guide to weeds that compete with corn and soybean crops features color photographs as well as descriptions of key weed characteristics. In addition to identifying weeds, growers can find information on Cyanamid herbicides appropriate for specific weed problems.

There's also a corn insect guide and a special section on European corn borer. "By plugging in the average number of egg masses per plant at various stages of growth, the farmer can quickly calculate the probable economic loss due to this pest," Iftner said.

Other tools include calculators for determining final corn stands based on kernal spacing, grain storage capacity, yields, and total acreage.

Messages concerning corn, soybeans, and precision agriculture may be posted in special discussion areas for other farmers and American Cyanamid specialists.

The Grower Center site also offers links to weather and futures market information.

PASA Launches Initiative Aimed At 'Growing Markets, Adding Value, Sustaining Farms'

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — This spring the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) launched a five-year program to increase farm profitability and enhance rural economic development by increasing opportunities for adding value to farm goods produced on the farm or in the community.

Called the Community F.A.R.M. Initiative (Community Farm Alliance for Regional Markets), this community-based, sustainable farm marketing effort will address a serious need identified by sustainable producers and non-farming consumers alike.

"It was natural for PASA to initiate this effort," said PASA Executive Director Tim Bowser. "Sustainable agriculture seeks to increase farm financial viability. Without the security of assured markets and without the ability to turn a profit, no farm is sustainable. Without the involvement of the larger community, no markets are assured."

With this initiative, he said, PASA will be developing "innovative market-based strategies for increasing farm profitability while enhancing local economic development opportunities for rural and urban communities in the commonwealth."

The initial phase of the program is being funded by a $343,000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich. which was established in 1930 to "help people help themselves through the practical application of knowledge and resources."

The first phase will focus on Western and Central Pennsylvania. To coordinate the effort, PASA has hired Allen Matthews, a third generation vegetable farmer from Washington County. According to Bowser, "Matthews brings an ideal set of skills to the task; he's a farmer who has done a wide variety of direct marketing and he has a great deal of experience in setting up collaborative partnerships, which is what this program is ultimately all about."

"This program is designed to promote strategies in Pennsylvania which will create outlets for locally produced goods, increase direct and retail sales, generate opportunities to add value through processing, engender cooperation between farmers, and strengthen the linkages between farmer, consumer, and community," Matthews said. "These marketing tools are out there, but they need to be developed within communities and integrated with sustainable production practices."

In addition to helping farmers increase profitability, significant efforts of the Community F.A.R.M. Initiative will focus on providing communities with the information they need to understand the economic and environmental benefits which local agriculture contributes. By increased understanding citizens will be better able to support their local farm community while gaining access to higher-quality foods.

"We feel that the demand is out there for sustainably and locally produced food. The problem is more one of market opportunity," said Bowser. "We are basically looking to develop strategies that can provide a new model for farm marketing and rural economic development while at the same time addressing issues of resource depletion, pollution, and social justice."

To do that, PASA will be looking to form broad partnerships between traditional farm concerns and less 'farm-traditional' sectors of the community. "We all need to work together," said Matthews, "and more and more people and their local officials are realizing exactly how much of a contribution agriculture makes to local and regional economies."

"Ag is still the number one sector of Pennsylvania's economy and it certainly is so in Washington County," Matthews said. "Farming and related businesses provide more jobs in Western Pennsylvania than high tech, but that's where we've typically thrown a lot of taxpayers' money chasing jobs."

Matthews cited several examples that the Initiative has already begun to draw interest. The Southwestern Pennsylvania Regional Development Council has engaged PASA to develop recommendations on the feasibility of starting up a 'New Generation Cooperative' such as those cropping up in the upper Midwest. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is providing matching funds for the development of a "Locally Grown and Sustainable" brochure that producers can use as a point of purchase educational material. PASA will also be working with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association on the development of a directory for the restaurant trade, of farmers and chefs looking to buy and sell locally, also funded by the state marketing matching grant program.

In addition the Community F.A.R.M. Initiative will be looking to develop regional marketing plans to support producer-only farmers markets, develop educational efforts to establish small-scale, value-added processing facilities on farms and within local communities, and to expand the concept of CSAs, or community supported agriculture operations, in the state.

In PASA's view, for agriculture to move forward in a positive fashion, it will be necessary to come full circle. According to Bowser, "For most of the history of our country, the food system was absolutely linked to community economic health, especially in rural areas. During the past 50 years, though, as agriculture has become increasingly industrialized, family farming has become increasingly unsustainable and so have communities.

"During the same time period, farm prices have remained the same or decreased while inputs, land, and equipment prices continued to increase. Farm profitability has dropped dramatically and along with it the number of farms — nationwide and in the state. We think that this Initiative can help turn this around by helping everyone to think more about how they produce, sell, buy, and consume food."

For more information about the Community F.A.R.M. Initiative, call Allen Matthews at (412) 632-3352.

Farm Credit Loans Available

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Farmers in Schuylkill County have been facing a series of events that have created financial difficulty.

Bad weather coupled with low prices has placed many farmers in a weakened financial condition. In many cases the farmer has a feasible plan to repay debt but needs additional capital to get the plan off the ground. Banks often refuse to lend money to farmers in this financial condition.

The United States Department of Agriculture has funding available for farmers for farm ownerships, equipment purchases, and general operating expenses. Loans are made to farmers who are denied credit from other commercial sources and generally carry lower interest than commercial loans. USDA has special funding targeted for beginning farmers, socially disadvantaged groups, general farm operations, and for farm purchases, and other farm improvements.

USDA also works with banks to guarantee loans when borrowers are unable to provide adequate security for the banking institution. This guarantee allows farmers to get needed credit from their normal lender.

Farmers looking for way to meet their credit needs should contact the Farm Service Agency located on the Gordon Nagle Trail at (717) 622-1555.

Simmental Tops Pa. Bull Test, Sale

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's 24th Performance Bull Test recently ended with a smooth-polled Fullblood Simmental finishing strong as top gaining bull over all breeds.

The Agnus breed was heavily represented with more than 35, and there were 15 Hereford, 13 Simmental, four Charolais, two Shorthorn, and a Buelingo!

Pennsylvania's test lasts for 112 days with a 21-day start-up period. Bulls are weighed every 28 days and their feed consumption is tracked using pinpointers. At the end of the performance test, the bulls are scanned for fat thickness and loin area, and frame scores are assigned.

Scrotal circumference is measured as well as a pelvic size measurement. The semen is tested for viability. Only the top 75 percent of bulls on test sell at the end of the test.

The top gainer was bred and owned by Bill and Karen Flagg of Warren Point, Elverson. This Fullblood son of AF Topflight395A had an average daily gain for the 112 days of 4.91 pounds with a ratio of 123. His feed efficiency was 5.06 pounds of feed per pound of gain. The top bull had a fat thickness of .26 and 13-inch loin area.

This bull was out of a Target daughter, who is also the daughter of the Flagg's 50 percent Fleckveih Athena donor cow. The Flaggs have had Athena progeny on test previously and they have finished top or second. Sire Power purchased the last Athena son at the Pennsylvania Bull test.

This top gainer was also the top selling Simmental bull. He was purchased for use in Ken Faust's Purebred herd, Faust Hidden Oaks, Gettysburg, for $2,500. Twelve Simmental bulls sold and averaged $1,338.

Department Of Agriculture Open House Attracts Large Crowd

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland Department of Agriculture's Tenth Annual Open House recently attracted more than 5,000 visitors to see the department's many programs in action as well as learn about Maryland agriculture.

Greeting the crowd was Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. He was joined by Maryland Comptroller Louis Goldstein and the American Honeybee Queen Lisa Anderson, who is on a national tour in support of agriculture.

"I was extremely pleased to see so many families enjoy their day at the Maryland Department of Agriculture. We had many activities going on throughout our buildings and all over our grounds to teach people what our agency does to serve each and every Maryland citizen," Riley said.

New this year was an opportunity to participate in ice cream making, courtesy of the University of Maryland, and an educational trailer provided by the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation to educate young people about aquatic science and the environment. Other highlights of the program included the famous hog calling contest and the hay bale toss. Throughout the day there were demonstrations in the weights and measures, state chemist, seed, plant protection and mosquito control laboratories and exhibits and food sampling of Maryland agricultural commodities. In addition, there was a petting zoo, a farm puppet show, a swarming bee exhibit featuring Bynoe the honeybee dog and a plantn propagation demonstration.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture began holding its Open House in 1988 to coincide with the celebration of National Agriculture Week, the third week in March. The event has grown each year and has become an important part of the State's early spring calendar of notable events and activities. The Open House is put on by MDA employees who volunteer from the headquarters building and from field offices from all across the State.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture is located at 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401. Visit the website on the Internet at http://www.mda.state.md.us.

Your Corn Planter: Is It Operating Correctly?

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The planting operation can be one of the most costly events that affect your yields.

The sins of planting will haunt you all season long. Mistakes made during the planting operation are usually permanent, unless you decide to replant the field at a later date. Plant stands that are established uneven and lack uniformity can reduce the yield potential of a cornfield even before the plants have hardly begun to grow.

Plant stand establishment is composed of two factors: 1. Emergence uniformity; and 2. Within-row spacing uniformity.

The planters used today have the ability to provide uniform plant stand establishment. When operated and maintained properly, today's corn planter can eliminate problems like tall-corn and short-corn syndrome, long gaps within the row or groups of crowded plants. The yield performance of an individual corn plant is dependent upon the availability of sunlight, water and nutrients. Uniform plant stands allow each and every plant to have an equal ability to perform. If corn plants have to compete unneccessarily for available sunlight, water and nutrients ... yield will be affected.

In order to obtain a uniform plant stand, planter maintenance and operation are critical. The best available planter, when operated improperly or not well maintained, may only be as good as the last planter eliminated from your operation.

Planter maintenance tips for preventing plant spacing variability are as follows:

- Perform servicing schedules as provided in the planter operation manual.
- With plate-type planters, match the seed grade with the correct planter plate.
- Planters with finger pick-ups should be checked for wear on the back plate and brush. Use a feeler gauage to check tension on the fingers, then tighten them correctly.
- Check for wear on double disc openers and seed tubes.
- Make sure the sprocket settings on the planter transmission are correct.
- Check for worn chains, stiff chain links and improper tire pressure.
- Lubricate all chains and grease fittings.
- Make sure seed drop tubes are clean and clear of any obstructions.
- Clean seed tube sensors of the planter monitor.
- Make sure coulters and disc openers are aligned properly.
- With air planters, match the air pressure to the weight and size of the seed being planted.

Starting the growing season with the best possible plant stand establishment can be a good start to obtaining the yield levels that your operation is capable of producing. Try to spend some time going over and maintaining your planter; it could be one of the best investments you have in this year's crop.

Thomas Jefferson. When Jefferson faced opposition and misunderstanding for his positions, he said, and Brosius quoted, "Politics has come to represent everything about government that I abhor."

Granting Brosius strength admidst the rumors and speculation concerning his dismissal is a quote by Jefferson: "The man who fears no truth has nothing to fear from lies."

Brosius spoke of the pleasure of serving as secretary of agriculture for two years and of his pride in the department's accomplishments. He expects that his replacement will continue ongoing projects. Since farmers represent less than two percent of the population, Brosius encouraged the audience to take a unified position and not let issues divide them.

Brosius ended his speech by referring to another of Jefferson's quotes: "I have served my country to the best of my ability and now I shall return to the farm I love."

The audience responded with another standing ovation for Brosius.

In other business, Federation Chairman Bill Trace of Trace Pheasantry paid tribute to Dr. Max A. Van Buskirk Jr., director of the PDA Bureau of Animal Industry. Buskirk, who is retiring after 17 years with PDA, has contributed much to the poultry industry especially in control of avian influenza and in salmonella Enteridis, Trace said.

A recently released 60-second radio spot was played for the audience. The radio spot is being aired in inner city areas where people are most skeptical of food safety. The radio message assures the audience that egg cartons marked with the seal of the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP) guarantees that the highest quality controls were taken to ensure egg safety.

Hoffman told of the appreciation the Poultry Federation has for the exceptional support from the PDA in providing testing, monitoring, and counseling for the program at no expense to the industry.

PEQAP is an outstanding example of what government and industry working together can do collectively when they cannot do it by themselves, Hoffman said of PDA's matching grant of $15,000 to fund the radio spots.

Hoffman presented Brosius with the master tape of the radio spot as a memorial of his help with PEQAP, which is lauded as the most comprehensive food safey program at the production level in the U.S.

Grammy-award winner Sandi Patty thrilled the audience with an assortment of gospel, pop, Broadway, and classical music. She reinacted her musical career progression from singing her first solo at age 2½ through her obsession to duplicate the musical abilities of Karen Carpenter and Barbra Streisand.

Since those early years, Patty has earned five grammy awards, 34 Dove awards, three platinum, and five gold albums.

The fundraising banquet provides 38 percent of the Federation operating budget for the year. Membership dues and sales from the Federation's Pa. Farm Show booth provide the remaining percentage.

Monies are used for promotion and to provide information on egg and poultry handling and products, to employ a full-time veterinarian to manage food safety programs for producers and processors, monitoring flock health, and legislative involvement on nutrient management and other protection and promotional efforts.

In addition to producers and agri-business representatives, long-time supporters of the industry such as Jay and Valeria Greider, former owners of Greider's Hatchery of Elizabethtown, attend the banquet.

For entertainment, grammy-award winner Sandi Patty sings gospel, pop, classical, and Broadway numbers.

Guy Martin, standing, discusses promotional responsibilities with Pennsylvania Poultry Ambassador Sheri Kreider and her parents.

About 1,500 poultry producers and agri-related representatives help themselves to a variety of hors 'd oeurves before the sit-down $150-a-plate dinner at the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation banquet.

Barbara Sherwood, left, pins a corsage on Joanne Keener. Each woman who attended the fund-raising event received a corsage.

By Competing, We Learn, According To State Soybean Winner

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Early on, Dwight Rohrer learned these basic tenets of growing crops:

• Learn and use the psychology of the plant and how it is "thinking."

• Keep the disc and the chisel plow in the barn in the spring.

Rohrer, who capped a successive line of soybean awards by winning the state competition, recalls a professor named John Yost who came up with those beliefs. According to Rohrer, Yost, who is a private crops consultant, once taught at Hesston College in Hesston, Kan. Rohrer obtained an associate's degree in ag production with an emphasis on agronomy from Hesston.

Rohrer has won a lot of soybean yield contests with the Manheim Young Farmers Association. But the 1996 Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest was his first statewide victory.

Rohrer, who believes competition lies at the heart of learning about improved ways to grow soybeans, won over seven other growers with a yield of 69.2 bushels per acre of Asgrow A4045, planted with conventional tillage — using a moldboard plow and a disc harrow.

Rohrer believes that to look at a farmer who grows crops successfully, "you see them pay attention." He believes that bringing great attention to details before planting and throughout the season — and also getting as many beans out of the field at harvest that is possible — are the keys to success.

Rohrer, who spoke with Lancaster Farming at his home on Wednesday this week, maintains 65 acres of land (about 60 tillable) on his farm near Manheim, in addition to some leased land. He grows about 25 acres of soybeans, 25 acres of corn, 15 acres of wheat and barley, and about five acres of tobacco.

In addition, Rohrer feeds from 100-150 head of steers in the fall and winter, of which use he makes of the corn he grows.

The basis for what Rohrer attempts to do with the contests was formed long ago when he began competing in power volleyball at Hempfield High School and in the Lancaster Recreation League.

He also plays in the Manor Brethren In Christ Church "A" League — and in competing he believes he learns to improve his game.

That same kind of thinking can be used when participating in yield contests.

Rohrer said he would challenge anybody to compete in the contest, and "we can learn from each other," he said, about planting and caring for soybeans.

"The stuff I do I'm sure is not perfect," he said. "I've tried things, things that have failed too, but you learn that way."

Rohrer, who works full time for Lancaster DHIA as a milk tester, is the seventh generation of his family on the farm and lives in a house built by his great-great-grandfather. The farm is in ag land preservation.

Rohrer's wife, Rosie, who operates Rosie's Creative Cakes, custom-designed cakes for all occasions, is also competitive — she has won several state cake decorating contests.

Rohrer, who intends to enter the state corn growing contest this year, said he didn't know about the statewide soybean contest until "I read about the contest in Lancaster Farming," he said. Last year, Dwight Hess from Marietta accepted the state honor and was profiled in the April 6 issue of the newspaper.

Rohrer plants full season beans and double-crop soybeans after wheat. "We rotate the crops pretty well," Rohrer said. Some years, depending on market price and other factors, Rohrer will plant more wheat or more beans.

Dwight Rohrer has won a lot of soybean yield contests with the Manheim Young Farmers Association. But the 1996 Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest was his first statewide victory.

Last year was a banner year for soybean production for Rohrer, with 20 acres of beans regular season and 40 acres of double-cropped beans, the "most beans I ever grew in one year," he said.

Cool, rainy, cloudy conditions in the summer hampered expected yields. Some years Rohrer contends he was able to achieve more than 70 bushels per acre of beans. Like the tobacco Rohrer grows, the soybeans are planted on some of the best, well-drained soils in the county. Rohrer said he learned early on to "manage the soil," a key for growing tobacco and soybeans.

Rohrer said, "I try to plant early, I try to save soil moisture — all the little things to do a good job."

Conventional beans are planted on 15-inch rows using a corn planter. The double-cropped beans are planted either on 7-inch or 14-inch rows, depending on what drill is used.

Preparing the soil is critical. Rohrer learned from John Yost, his college professor, to avoid using a chisel or disc in the spring because of the problems with soil compaction. The chisel and disc should only be used on soil that is dried out sufficiently.

Rohrer simply moldboard plows and then goes over the fields twice with a harrow. Even though there are some clumps in the field, and it may "look a little lumpy to some people," the soil remains free of compaction.

Because Rohrer doesn't have "thousands of acres" to manage, he can be choosy when working his fields. He has learned to pay attention to the details at planting time while working with other farmers.

Rohrer said that whether it involves taking care of pigs, chickens, or writing newspaper stories, "as you look at the successful farmer, you see them paying attention." Rohrer uses no fertilizer on his beans. Conventional beans were planted about April 15. He uses an incorporated preplant herbicide (Prowl) and a post-emergence herbicide (Pursuit) four weeks after planting.

The biggest weed challenge is Canada thistle, though he believes he's gotten the weed under control. He also faces challenges with triazine-resistant lambsquarters. Rohrer is making use of some STS beans to use more stronger herbicide products.

Rohrer attributes the use of the moldboard plow to gain better control of the weeds.

Rohrer takes a regular "Sunday morning walk" to inspect the fields to see how well the stands look, he said.

The soybean grower said he is fussy with custom combining.

"I like them to get all the beans in the bin and not leave them out in the field," he said. Harvest was Oct. 8.

Rohrer does a better job on price when he forward contracts the beans rather than pay the high cost of storage.

Rohrer's goal is to break the 70-bushel acre yield, which he believes he can do, considering his farm average is about 65 bushels per acre. He is looking toward a variety that produces four beans per pod.

Soybean growers, Rohrer believes, need to look toward the information that contests provide — it will help them "do a better job than our competitors," he said.

One thing he has learned is that,

(Turn to Page A38)

Rohrer, who believes competition lies at the heart of learning about improved ways to grow soybeans, won over seven other growers with a yield of 69.2 bushels per acre of Asgrow A4045, planted with conventional tillage — using a moldboard plow and a disc harrow.

Preparing the soil is critical. Rohrer learned from John Yost, his college professor, to avoid using a chisel or disc in the spring because of the problems with soil compaction. The chisel and disc should only be used on soil that is dried out sufficiently.

USDA Seeks Comment On Federal Order Consolidation

RICHARD M. MCKEE
Director
Dairy Division, USDA

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 1996 Farm Bill mandates that the current 32 Federal milk marketing orders be consolidated into 10 to 14 orders.

As part of this consolidation process, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is actively reviewing all aspects of federal orders and is considering possible options for improving the current system.

Although not mandated, the Department is considering various changes to the Class I price structure, classification of milk provisions, and as part of Vice President Gore's National Performance Review — Regulatory Reform Initiative, simplifying, modifying, and eliminating unnecessary differents in order provisions.

Three reports are available that discuss these issues in detail. A summary of each report has been enclosed for your reference.

Copies of the price structure report, consisting of a summary report and a technical report, classification report, and identical provisions report can be obtained from the Dairy Division, AMS/USDA, Room 2968, South Building, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, DC 20090-6456, (202) 720-4392.

These reports can also be obtained from any Market Administrator office or via the Internet at http://www.usda.gov/ams/dairy.htm under the "Federal Milk Order Reform" heading.

These reports were drafted by the Agricultural Marketing Service's Dairy Division.

The reports contain suggestions, ideas, and initital findings to provide a focal point for developing proposed rules to implement the order consolidation required by the 1996 Farm Bill.

Industry and public input on the reports and the submission of ideas or suggestions on any aspect of the regulatory program are requested.

We request that all ideas or suggestions be mailed to the Dairy Division at the above address or E-mailed to Milk_order_Reform-@usda.gov by June 1, 1997, although they will be accepted throughout the entire process.

As addressed in my Memorandum to Interested Parties on Oct. 24, 1996, interested parties are specifically invited to provide input on the probable regulatory impact of Federal order changes or modifications on small businesses.

A dairy farm is defined as a "small business" if it has a gross revenue of less than $500,000 per year, and a handler is a "small business" if it has fewer than 500 employees.

To obtain additional information regarding small business input, please write to the above address or access information at the Internet address.

Summary Of Pricing Options

Several options for modifying Class I pricing under the Federal milk market order program, representing a spectrum of views, are discussed in this summary report. The accompanying technical report summarizes all of the comments and proposals received by the Department related to Class I pricing under Federal orders.

Most Class I pricing concepts that were suggested would continue to employ a market-driven basic formula price (BFP), with an added differential.

Differentials are a composite of one or more of the following elements: 1. a fixed component; 2. a location adjustment; 3. an adjustor relating to utilization; or 4. the cost of balancing the market. Based on the pricing concepts received, the following options were developed.

Option 1A. Location-Specific Differential — $1.60 per hundredweight fixed differential for three surplus regions (Upper Midwest, West, and Southwest) within a nine-zone national price surface, plus for the other six zones, an added component that reflects regional differences in the value of fluid and manufacturing milk.

Option 1B. Modified Location-Specific Differential Option — $1.00 per hundredweight fixed differential plus an added component that reflects the cost of moving bulk milk to deficit markets.

Option 2. Relative Use Differential — $1.60 per hundredweight fixed differential plus a formula-based differential driven by the ratio of Class I milk to all other uses of milk.

Option 3A. Flat Differential Option — $1.60 per hundredweight flat differential, uniformly applied across all orders to generate an identical minimum Class I price.

Option 3B. Flat Differential Modified by Class I Use — $2.00 per hundredweight differential in markets where Class I utilization is less than 70 percent on an annual basis and a differential equal to $2.00 + $0.075 (Class I use % — 70%) in markets where the Class I utilization is equal to or exceeds 70 percent.

Option 4. Demand-Based Differential — $1.00 per hundredweight fixed differential plus a transportation credit based on location of reserve milk supplies.

Estimated Class I differentials are presented for each option to provide a preliminary basis for determining impacts that may occur. The report provides estimated differentials for the suggested 10 consolidated orders and for the current 32 Federal milk marketing orders.

The report concludes by soliciting comments on the options presented and poses a series of questions for the public to address when submitting comments back to the Department on the issue of Class I pricing.

Summary Of Classification Report

The Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 provides that all milk should be classified "in accordance with the form in which or the purpose for which it is used."

This has resulted in a system of uniform classification provisions that place milk used for fluid purposes in the highest use class, Class I, and other manufactured products in lower classes, Classes II, III, and III-A.

Currently, products packaged for fluid consumption such as whole milk, skim milk, buttermilk, and flavored milk drinks are classified as Class I products. Class II products include ice cream, yogurt, cottage cheese, and cream. Class III and Class III-A products include cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk.

Among the changes in classification recommended in the technical report are the following:

•Eggnog would be reclassified from Class II to Class I.

•Any fluid beverage having less than 6.5 percent nonfat milk solids would be reclassified from Class II to Class I.

•Cream cheese would be reclassified from Class III to Class II.

The technical report recommends changing the classification of milk used in nonfat dry milk from Class III-A to Class III. The report recommends that if Class III-A pricing is not eliminated, the following four alternatives be considered:

•Place a floor beneath the Class III-A price;

•Restrict III-A pricing to certain months or to certain markets;

•Provide an up-charge for nonfat dry milk used in higher-valued products; or

•Provide for a combination of these options.

Maintaining the classification of milk used to make nonfat dry milk in Class III-A is also an option, although not discussed in the technical report.

The technical report addresses Class III-A pricing because of industry concerns about the substitution of nonfat dry milk for fluid milk in Class II and III uses when the Class III-A price is substantially below the Class III price.

Summary Of Identical Provisions Report

Federal milk marketing orders contain numerous provisions that establish the regulations for the operation of the orders.

Over the years, the orders have been individualized to account for specific situations associated with a given marketing area. However, there are several provisions within the orders that are similar or that could be similar and still provide for efficient and orderly marketing of milk.

The technical report does the following:

•Suggests a model for establishing the consolidated orders and provides suggestions on the order language that can be adopted uniformly throughout all orders.

•Reviewed, simplified, modified, and eliminated differences in order provisions that: a. Define various terms used in the orders; b. Establish regulatory standards for plants and handlers; c. Provide for uniform reporting dates of milk receipts and utilization; d. Provide for uniform dates for payment of milk; 4. Provide for computation of a uniform price.

•Reduces performance standards to make it easier for producers to associate with a market.

At this time it is impossible to determine if there would be any financial impact on producers, handlers, or consumers as a result of any of these suggested provision revisions.

It is projected that there will be little impact on the overall program because the changes primarily provide for uniformity. There may be minimal impact on selected individual producers, handlers, or consumers, but this can not be determined until more specific information is developed regarding the orders (i.e., marketing area and pricing).

The suggested identical provisions will be applied to each of the suggested consolidated orders and determinations will be based on the marketing conditions of the given region.

One suggested change in the report that may stimulate some debate is the definition of a producer-handler.

The technical report suggests applying the most liberal standard to the producer-handler definition to prevent any producer-handler from becoming regulated as a result of milk order reform.

Producer-handlers have been exempt from full regulation because they assume the full risks associated with being a producer and a distributor of milk produced with only occasional and small volumes of milk being purchased from other dairy farmers.

if double-cropping beans, to use late group 3 or early group 4 beans. Many early varieties provide a plant that is too short and the pod comes out right at ground level, making it difficult to combine. The later groups provide taller plants which help at harvest time.

Rohrer enjoys the positive feedback he receives from the awards. He also enjoys being able to beat his neighbors at the challenge of achieving high soybean yields.

Like the tobacco Rohrer grows, the soybeans are planted on some of the best, well-drained soils in the county. Rohrer said he learned early on to "manage the soil," a key for growing tobacco and soybeans.

Sheep Show, Sale At Derry Ag Fair

BLAIRSVILLE (Indiana Co.) — The 1997 Natural Colored Wool Growers Association (NCWGA) Region 5 Sheep Show and Sale will be held at the Derry Agricultural Fair in Derry from July 7-12.

Derry Fair is located off Rt. 22, 10 miles south of Blairsville.

The sheep show is scheduled Tuesday, July 8 at 10 a.m. There will be four NCWGA classes: Fine, Medium, Long Wool, and Aged Class. Grand champions will be chosen in each class. The aged class is an addition to the Derry Fair. All entries must be NCWGA registered. The entry fee is $1.50 per animal.

For the NCWGA Breeding Sheep Sale, for lamb ewes, rams, aged ewes and rams, sale entry fee is $12 payable to the Derry Ag Fair. The sale is scheduled Friday, July 11. Entry deadline is June 25.

Also scheduled is the NCWGA Wool Fleece Show. A private treaty on the sale of fleeces is offered. Exhibitors must indicate weight, price, name, address, phone number, breed of sheep, and sex — this information should be labeled on your fleece. There is no entry fee.

Every NCWGA member is welcome. Region 5 comprises Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, and North Carolina.

For entry forms, contact Candace Burke, Region 5 Director, Burke's Little Twenty Sheep Farm, 383 Iron Bridge Rd., Freeport, PA 16229, (412) 295-4928. Send entries to Dave Durika, Derry Ag Fair, NCWGA Show and Sale, RD#3, Blairsville, PA 15717, (412) 694-8113.

Cornell Promotes Alan Taylor To Seed Science Professorship

GENEVA, N.Y. — Alan Taylor was recently promoted to professor of seed science and technology in Cornell University's Department of Horticultural Sciences at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station.

Taylor's research efforts include a range of projects from applied research in the field of seed science to more fundamental aspects of seed biology and mechanisms associated with seed quality and aging. In addition, he teaches a full semester course in seed science and technology on Cornell University's Ithaca campus.

"Seed quality is an important facet of crop production and can directly influence crop establishment, plant growth, and yield potential," said Taylor, who owns a national and several international patents on seed coating and sorting technologies. The overall objective of his program is the improvement of seed quality and seedling establishment. Primary emphasis is on vegetable crops seeds with less effort on agronomic and other seed species.

Enhancement of seed performance provides the potential for higher yields and helps insure profitability and competitiveness for New York State agriculture. More fundamental research provides contributions of national and global implications.

"Establishment of uniform stands of either small seeded or large seeded vegetable crops under New York growing conditions is a constant challenge," said Hugh Price, chairman of the Horticultural Sciences Department. "Dr. Taylor's research on seed quality and seed coating have contributed significantly to reducing the risks associated with field seeding of snap beans, onions and cabbage.

The Seed Science and Technology Program at Cornell is the only university-based program with capabilities for seed coating including pelleting, film-coating, and low volume application. Specialized facilities have been developed in Taylor's lab for those purposes and used for the application of chemical and biological seed treatments.

One practical application for the onion industry was developed in a cooperative project with Chuck Eckenrode. An experimental insect growth regulator called Trigard was developed for direct application to seed. "A section 18 has been issued for Trigard applied as a treatment and is available for use by the onion industry for control of onion maggot," said Taylor.

Coating is also a component in a process developed in Taylor's lab to enhance or improve seed germination in crucifers. This method includes first soaking seeds in controlled conditions in the laboratory, then coating, drying, and color sorting to separate the viable from the nonviable seeds. The process takes advantage of the natural occurrence of a fluorescent material called sinapine in seeds of the crucifer family. Dead seeds leak the material, and fluoresce under ultraviolet light. "The practical outcome is that we have been able to develop a rapid viability test, as well as seed sorting technology based on our ability to detect sinapine," said Taylor.

Another aspect of Taylor's research program is understanding how water affects seeds in storage and germination. As every gardener knows who stores seeds from one season to the next, seed moisture content has a major influence on shelf life. For good storage, it is important to keep seeds dry.

Taylor has also studied seed moisture content on large-seeded legumes (like beans) versus their susceptibility to mechanical damage and germination problems when the seeds are sown in cold, wet soils. In contrast to the low moisture preferred for storage conditions, higher moisture content helps avoid seed injuries associated with physical abuse and germination under stressful soil environments.

"I attribute a lot of the success of our program to our ability to attract and recruit good graduate students and visiting scientists to the program, and being able to focus their talents on a particular project where we all learn. That's the fun thing," said Taylor. His reputation for hosting these individuals and getting them involved with meaningful research is widespread.

Taylor received a bachelor's in biology froom Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio in 1975. He received his master's in horticulture in 1977 from Michigan State University, and his doctorate in crop science in 1981 from Oklahoma State University. He was named assistant professor at the Experiment Station in 1981, and became associate professor in 1986. His professional associations include the American Society for Horticultural Science, where he is the chairman of the Seed Research Working Group, and the associate editor for HortScience in Seed Technology. He is also a member of the Crop Science Society of America and the American Society of Agronomy.

Organizations Call For Renewed Commitment To Brucellosis Eradication

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Two national organizations concerned with animal health issues are voicing concern of possible wavering by the federal government in its 50-year commitment to eradicate brucellosis from the United States.

Causing the concern is a conflict that has heated up in recent weeks in the Greater Yellowstone Area where bison and elk there are known to carry the disease. At the core of the issue is the fact that the National Park Service has had a "hands-off" policy of managing the bison population for three decades. This has resulted in a bison herd three times the park's desired capacity.

The United States Animal Health Association (USAHA) and the Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI) are worried that recent propaganda campaigns by animal rights and environmental activist groups seem to be pressuring the federal government to ignore the problem and allow the bison to roam free.

In the 1960s, park officials adopted a policy of "natural regulation" of the bison. With the herd numbering around 400 at that time, park biologists reasoned that under natural regulation, bison numbers would never exceed 1,300. Recently the herd was estimated around 4,000.

"The flawed policies of the National Park Service have put them in a situation where they have far more bison than the park has forage," said Dr. Dreyfus Froe, LCI's chairman of the board. "Winter conditions make things worse but the problem is overpopulation.

"Bisons are starving, so you have two things occurring. Some will find or create an exit out of the park in search of food, while others die of starvation in the park. Either way, it's irresponsible on the part of the park service," Froe said.

The park service has turned this into an emotional issue involving the United States Department of Agriculture's efforts to protect cattle from brucellosis. USAHA and LCI are worried that a recent decision to open a gateway for bison in to Gallatin National Forest, adjacent to Yellowstone, will only prolong the issue, not resolve it.

"The decision to expand the park's boundaries into more federal lands does not resolve the situation in the long run. It only allows further procrastination in addressing the issues," said Dr. Larry Williams, USAHA president. "The park service should accept responsibility and manage America's bison. This hands-off policy of natural regulation should be reversed immediately. The lack of action in this issue and passing responsibility to other federal and state agencies is unacceptable."

Bison migrating from the park in search of food might be carrying brucellosis and posing a serious threat of infecting cattle on ranches in the area. Subsequently, this migration could reverse the progress in the nation's fight to eradicate the disease. Winter conditions are causing a mass exodus of bison. State animal health officials in Montana have had to kill nearly 800 wandering bison so far this winter as they leave the park.

Efforts to control brucellosis began in 1934. Twenty years later, a cooperative effort among federal and state governments and the cattle industry was put in place when more than 100,00 cattle herds in the United States were infected with brucellosis. Today, that number has been reduced to 31. The program spanning five decades is scheduled to be completed by the end of 1998. An estimated four billion dollars in federal and state funds have been invested in the effort.

Brucellosis causes cattle and bison to abort and lowers milk production. Humans can contract the disease, also known as undulant fever, by handling infected animals or drinking unpasteurized milk.

"We need to renew the commitment to eradicate brucellosis from all animal species in the United States," said Froe.

"It's time for the park service to take a 'hands-on' approach," said Williams. "We need science driving this issue, not emotion or political influence."

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Farm Mom Is Contestant In Mrs. Pennsylvania

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MILTON (Northumberland Co.) — Lisa Janelle Lapp considers her role as dairy farm wife and mother of three as credentials for earning the Mrs. Pennsylvania International title.

"The pageant showcases the family. The women involved in Mrs. International are those wishing to help reunite the strength our country was built on — that's what appeals to me," the 32-year-old contestant said.

Most people associate pageants with a beauty contest, but Lisa stresses, "This isn't a beauty pageant. In fact, contestants aren't even allowed to send a picture with their applications."

Family is top priority with Lisa and her husband Grant Duane Lapp, who goes by his middle name.

Lisa has deep concerns on how people, youth in particular, make decisions. For this reason, Lisa titled her application essay, which will also be the basis for her speech and interview during the pageant, "Having A Choice."

"Lots of people don't know the choices available to them," she said. "People should be taught to search out choices. Confused teens feel pressure to engage in sex. They don't need to do what their friends are doing. They need to know that they have a choice to say 'no' without needing a reason."

There are homeless people who yesterday had nice houses but today live in cardboard boxes. They need to know of the choices offered by the community and churches to help them. And, for the person who is fortunate to have finances and health, Lisa said that these people also have a choice — "to choose to help those less fortunate."

Lisa said, "Finances are the greatest challenge facing families. It is a shame that money is such a necessity, but couples who struggle daily should be aware of church and other organizations that offer financial counseling and debt reduction courses.

"If we raise our children with instructions and opportunities for them to make choices, they will learn to search out right choices," she said. "There is nothing wrong with rules and regulations if we want to better a child. We earn a child's respect, we are not given it."

Rules were part of Lisa's childhood. She grew up on her father's hog farm in Turbotville.

"We fed, detoothed, docked tails, and gave the pigs shots," she said of herself and an older brother and sister.

"Father made us do it. We often didn't want to get up on a cold winter morning. But we had to. We didn't want to bale hay before going swimming or to town, but we didn't have a choice. Father made us do it."

Lisa isn't lamenting the work required of her as a child. She said, "It taught me to be responsible and dedicated. Now I'm more disciplined as a worker and as a mother."

Lisa said that one of her favorite sayings to her three daughters, Tarah, 11; Ashton, 8; and Haleigh, 4, is "The road less traveled is sometimes less traveled for a reason, but we need to go there."

She means by this that people often choose the easy way instead of the best way.

Her words are not merely theory with no application. She said, "I didn't always make the right choices. I learned from some mistakes and others I didn't."

Because the Mrs. Pennsylvania International program focuses so strongly on marriage and family values, some people are surprised to learn that Lisa is divorced and remarried.

"I was young. I was immature. My values and priorities were different then," Lisa said of her first marriage.

"In a way, I think that if the paperwork to file for divorce would not have been so easy, it would have been a determent," she said. She wants to use the lessons that she has learned to encourage others to solve problems rather than to run from them.

She considers that her life has come full circle. Because her first husband was in the Air Force, Lisa lived in many different countries. She came to believe that family relationships are one of the most important things to nurture.

"After living in so many different places, coming back home looked smaller but warmer," she said.

"Grandparents have really been a positive influence on my children's lives. My mom is always willing to watch my children — I want to be the same type of mom and grandmother as my mother."

Lisa enjoys traditions such as all the women getting together to bake Christmas cookies while the men go hunting and the families getting together to watch NASCAR races.

After her divorce and moving back home, Lisa managed the Eastern Dairy Store where she learned a lot about the dairy business, prices, and chemicals.

She also became reacquainted with "her grandparents' neighbor boy" with whom she had rode pigs

(Turn to Page B5)

Lisa said that her most valuable accomplishment is having three lovely, healthy children. Lisa and husband Duane are shown with daughters Tarah, 11; Ashton, 8, and Haleigh, 4.

American Agri-Women Plan Ag Issues Symposium

DENVER, Co. — American Agri-Women Past Presidents Ardath DeWall of Shannon, Illinois, and Trenna Grabowski of Benton, Illinois, announce plans for the Fourth Annual Agricultural Issues Symposium to be held on June 4, from 9-noon at the Jefferson Auditorium in Washington D.C.

The topic will be international trade in relation to American agriculture. As the demand for U.S. agricultural production expands and as marketing takes on an added global dimension, the issues related to trade become increasingly important. AAW will host the event with experts speaking on the current international trade situation. GATT, and NAFTA and their impact on agribusiness, production agriculture, and the consumer. A highlight of the symposium will be a discussion of bio-technology and its ramifications for trade. The symposium is open to the public.

American Agri-Women is a coalition of individual members as well as 53 states and commodity organizations and is recognized by the Business Women's Network Association as one of the top 12 business women's organizations in the United States.

Safe Storage For Winter Clothes

Now that spring is finally a reality, it's time to think about putting away your winter clothes. A good rule to follow is to be sure that every item is scrupulously clean. Most insect damage occurs because they are attracted by soil on the fabrics. In addition, any soil not removed often results in mysterious marks or stains that develop during the storage period.

Wash all clothing that can be washed using the techniques recommended on the lables. Send all items marked "Dry Clean Only" to a reliable dry cleaner. Be sure to identify the origin of any stains so that the dry cleaner can use appropriate stain treatment methods.

To safely store your clothing the following hints will give the most satisfactory results:

- Mend all clothing and check buttons before storing.
- Fasten all closures
- Hang garments on padded hanger.
- Allow space between hangers to prevent difficult to remove creases and wrinkles.
- Fold sweaters and knit items and store them flat. Tissue paper folded with each garment will prevent creases.

Wool clothing needs special attention. Moths continue to be a problem to woolen fabrics, especially in warm weather. Today many wool clothes are permanently moth proofed by fabric dyes or in the dry cleaning process, but labels rarely indicate this. Dry cleaning or washing kills moths in all growth stages. Cedar chests make good storage units for woolens. The cedar aroma and the tight structure of chest help prevent the infiltration of moths and other insects. In the closet, a drawer or cedar chest, wool garments should be placed in sealed bags or boxes.

Leather and suede garments should be cleaned or thoroughly brushed and stored on padded hangers. They should be stored in cloth rather than plastic storage bags because they require ventilation and a cool dry storage area is ideal. Progressional cleaners provide storage vaults in which valuable leather and suede garments can be stored at proper temperature and humidity levels.

Fake fur has had a fashion revival in the last few years. These garments tend to be heavy so sturdy padded hangers are necessary to keep these fabrics in shape. Cover with plastic or cloth storage bags to keep them clean and hang in a dry area to avoid the possibility of mildew.

Let's also take a look at the storage area or closet. Closets should be cleaned at least once a year and what better time than when seasonal clothing changes are made. Cleaning includes brushing down walls and shelves;; washing walls, shelves, woodwork and rods; sweeping and mopping or vacuuming the floor. Allow your closet or storage area to dry and air out before returning clothing to it. A mild air freshener may be placed in it to help keep the atmosphere smelling fresh.

With proper preparation and storage your winter garments will be fresh, clean and ready for wear when the cool weather arrives next fall.

Indoor Gardening

This spring the Montgomery County — Norristown Library will present a new 4-H program at the library, "Indoor Gardening Aventures."

This five day 4-H program is open to the 9-12 year olds and will run for one week, Monday through Friday, from 4-5:30 p.m. beginning May 5 and concluding on May 9. Youth will have the opportunity to learn all about plants and to grow some of their own indoors and outdoors. The course will be taught by specially trained library staff members.

The fee for either course is $5 and includes all materials. Scholarships are available. Enrollment is limited to 20. By enrolling in this program, youth will become 4-H members, eligible to participate in the County 4-H Fair and other 4-H activites. To register or for more information call Asha Verma at the library at (610) 278-5100 by April 20 or stop in at the library.

as a child. The couple married in 1990.

Lisa is grateful that her second marriage turned out so well. "My husband accepts my two daughters from my first marriage as his own. He's a great husband and father."

Since the birth of the couple's youngest daughter, Lisa has stopped working away from home.

"I'm fortunate to be able to be a full-time mom," she said, "because I think we are cheating both our children and ourselves when we work full-time."

She said, "We can't always shelter our children but we need to be there to hold their hands, which is also a way of holding their hearts."

On the farm, Lisa assists with the care of 60 red and white Holsteins and a few Jerseys plus replacements.

The Lapps offer tours of their farm, which is Lisa's forte'. She loves hosting school students and answering their questions. They hand out cow erasers and coloring books supplied by their dairy cooperative.

"If we raise our children with instructions and opportunities for them to make choices, they will learn to search out right choices," said Lisa, who believes that there is nothing wrong with rules and regulations to better a child. "We earn a child's respect, we are not given it," she said.

In an attempt to save costs in dairying, Lisa said they made a mistake. "We stopped DHIA services because we wanted to cut costs, since two families are living off the milk check."

But during the past year, herd somatic cell counts rose and the cows were not calving at the right time despite the Lapps diligence in pre- and post-dips and low bacterial readings.

The Lapps have concluded that the services offered by DHIA in helping to determine the cause is well worth the cost. At this point, the Lapps suspect stray voltage, but that has not been confirmed.

The Lapps want to increase the size of their barn, but zoning prevented the addition by saying the barn is too close to the road. An L-shaped addition could gain approval, but that would require two gutter cleaners, make it more difficult to bed and feed, and other additional problems. At this point the building plans are on hold, and the Lapps continue to switch cows during milking time since the barn only holds 45 stalls.

Lisa describes herself as a high gear person. Being a farm wife and needing to adapt to unpredictable weather, cows, and expenses has taught her patience, she said.

Some days things don't go right, but every day, at least, we can say, "we did a honest day's work," she said.

Lisa is active in the Lutheran Church where she sings in the choir. She is a cheerleading coach, and corresponding secretary for the community's football program for children. She is a member of the school's PSA and she and her husband are members of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

The children attend Meadow Brook Christian School where Lisa often volunteers, which in turn gives her a glimpse into her daughters' lives, which helps her understand the peer pressure her children are facing. This gives her perspective on how to deal with it.

As part of the pageant's philosophy, contestants are to promote a nonprofit organization that they believe in. Lisa is promoting Family Impact, founded by Ron and Holly Hostetler. Ron was a former linebacker and co-captain of the Penn State football team. He and his wife founded Family Impact to provide resources to promote the following family values:

- Marriage is a lifelong commitment of love and mutual respect.
- Children are a blessing and trust requiring unconditional love.
- God's word the Bible serves as a trustworthy guide for life.
- Parents hold the responsibility to patiently and lovingly teach and discipline their children.
- A husband and wife fulfill distinctive roles within the family while sharing equal esteem.
- Sex is reserved for the bonds of marriage.
- Human life begins at conception and is a scared trust of inestimable value.
- Public decency is an important foundation of community morality.
- Financial resources are a stewardship from God which call for wisdom, self-control, and generosity.
- The role of government is to protect individual and family liberties.

Lisa said that Family Impact exemplifies her message of "Having A Choice." If Lisa is named Mrs. Pennsylvania, she will designate Family Impact as the nonprofit organization to receive a portion of proceeds from speeches and appearances.

This year, the selected nonprofit organization is the Make-A-Wish Foundation Convoy on May 11, which raises money to grant wishes to children with cancer.

Lisa is one of eight finalists who will compete at the pageant to be held June 22 at Hotel Brunswick in Lancaster. Contestants will be judged during an interview on first impression, personal appearance, communication skills, ability to relate, and commitment to marriage. An aerobic wear and evening gown competition will also be held.

"As far as I know, I am the only farmer competing. I know one of the contestants is a lawyer and another a legal aide," she said.

"My husband will go from overalls to tuxedo to escort me on stage. If I win, he will crown me. Our children will sing in a choir that will perform between the competitions," Lisa said.

Asparagus Grows In Popularity

One of the special treats of spring and a tantalizing glimpse at the summer ahead is the arrival of fresh asparagus at farm markets and roadside stands.

This popular member of the lily family is available from April through June and is grown on 248 acres of Pennsylvania farmland.

While today's asparagus is known for its delicate flavor, Greeks and Romans more than 2,000 years ago prized the plant for its medicinal qualities, believing it would relieve toothaches and prevent bee stings.

Modern medicine has since replaced the use of asparagus for treating minor health problems, but there's no denying the plants nutritional benefits. A one-cup serving provides two-thirds of the daily recommended allowance of vitamin C, one third of vitamin A, and 10 percent of the day's dose of iron, all with only 36 calories.

Plan to cook ½ pound (6 to 10 spears) per serving, depending on their size.

In selecting fresh asparagus, consumers should look for stalks that are straight, crisp, and tender with compact, pointed tips and no more than an inch of tough, woody base.

Here's an easy tip for choosing the most tender asparagus: When comparing plants of equal quality, always select the thickest stalks available. Large spears contain more meaty pulp between fibers, making the asparagus more tender after cooking.

For best results, asparagus should be prepared immediately after purchase, as its delicate flavor deteriorates quickly at room temperature. If asparagus must be stored, place the stalks in the coldest part of the refrigerator wrapped at the base with a damp paper towel.

When asparagus is ready for cooking, break off the stalk as far down as it will snap easily. Wash thoroughly, and trim off the little nibs along the lower part of the spear.

Fresh asparagus can be steamed, boiled or prepared in the microwave, and is most often served with a garnish of drawn butter, bread crumbs or hollandaise sauce. Pieces of cut asparagus also make a welcome addition to cold salads.

Preparation

Wash asparagus in cool running water. If the tips have any sand on them, dunk them in and out of water, then rinse thoroughly. Cut or break off the tough white ends.

Whatever cooking method you choose, cook asparagus quickly; overdone asparagus will be unappetizingly limp and discolored and have a bitter taste. The spears should be firm-tender, so that you can pierce the butt end with the point of a paring knife.

Another test of doneness is to pick up a spear with kitchen tongs: If it bends over slightly, it's done. After cooking, lift out the spears with tongs or two spatulas and let drain for a minute on a paper towel. If you plan to serve the asparagus

Featured Recipe

This is the season for freshly cut asparagus. But you may be interested in eating this tender vegetable for more than taste purposes.

Researchers have identified a compound called a "saponin" found in asparagus, which may prevent leukemia cells from multiplying. Read more about this in the above article.

Jersey Asparagus Farms, Inc. sent this recipe, which won top honors for Shirley DeLange of Michigan in a contest.

ASPARAGUS PUFF RING

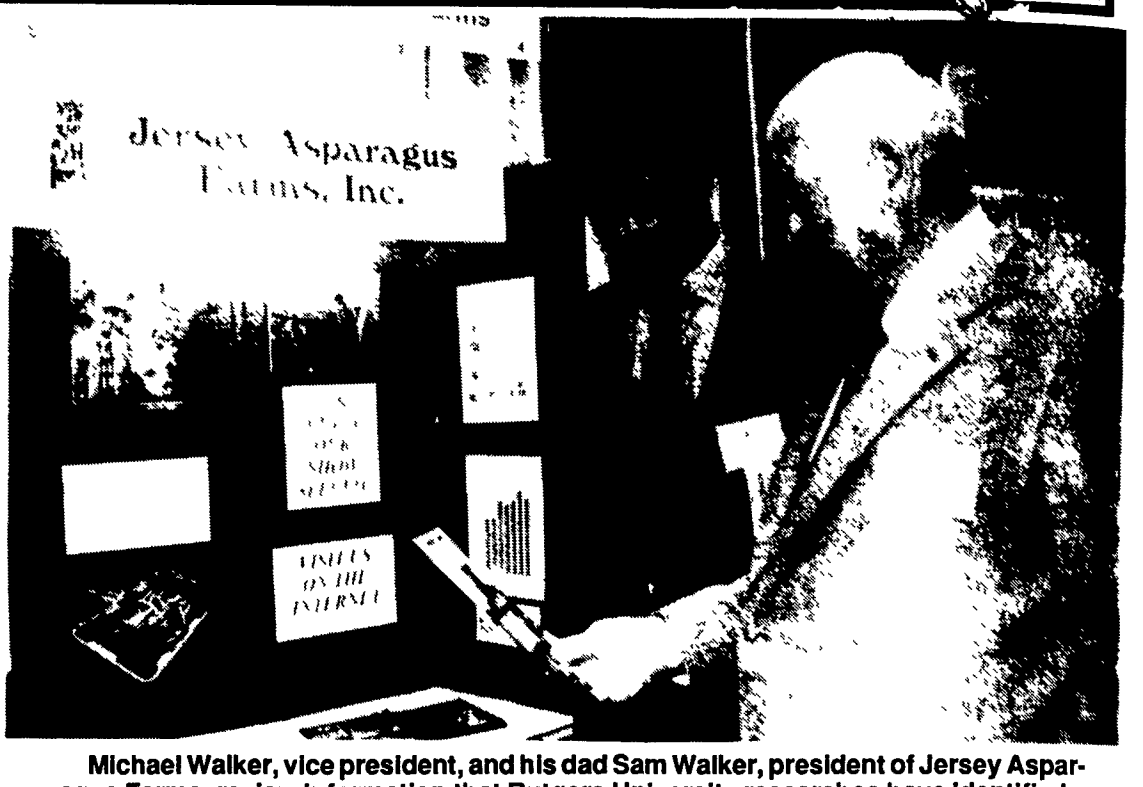
¾ cup water
6 tablespoons butter
¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese, divided

Filling:

1 pound fresh asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ cup diced onion
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
2 cups diced fully cooked ham

In a saucepan over medium heat, bring water and butter to a boil. Add flour and salt all at once; stir until a smooth ball forms. Let stand for 5 minutes. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each, beat until smooth.

Stir in 3 tablespoons parmesan cheese. Using ¼ cupfuls of dough, form a ring around the sides of a greased 10-inch quiche pan or pie plate (mounds should touch). Top with the remaining cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Meanwhile, cook asparagus until crisp-tender, 3-4 minutes; drain. In a saucepan, saute onion in butter until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually add milk; bring to a boil over medium heat; stirring constantly. Reduce heat; stir in cheeses until melted. Stir in ham and asparagus; spoon into ring. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.



Michael Walker, vice president, and his dad Sam Walker, president of Jersey Asparagus Farms, review information that Rutgers University researches have identified a compound called a "saponin" found in asparagus that prevents leukemia cells from multiplying in laboratory cultures. Research has not yet been begun with humans and it will take years to confirm whether or not eating asparagus will counteract cancer cells in humans. Anticipating an increased demand for asparagus, Walker said that the firm is gearing up for the demand by harvesting more seed from existing varieties.

Asparagus Compound Appears To Fight Cancer Cells

Asparagus has long been touted as a nutritious vegetable, but recent research shows that it may be even better for you than your mother thought. It appears that asparagus may prevent leukemia cells from multiplying.

Recently researchers identified a compound called a "saponin" found in asparagus. The laboratory findings by scientists were experiments performed using laboratory cultures of HL-60 cell, not human subjects. This report was published in the July 1996 issue of "Cancer Letter," an academic journal. The variety used for the research was one of the varieties developed by Rutgers University Research and Development Department. These varieties are identified as Jersey Male Hybrids.

Leukemia is a form of cancer that affects bone marrow and lymph systems by overproducing blood and lymph cell. The asparagus saponin suppresses the growth of leukemia HL-60 cells by stopping DNA synthesis, without affecting normal cells. By introducing the asparagus saponin to affected tissue, the cancer cell count dropped substantially.

Dr. Stephen Garrison, one of the researchers, said there have been repeated and confirmed studies not only with leukemia cells but also with melanoma cancer. These studies have only been conducted with laboratory cultures and on small rodents.

"Long term studies will need to be conducted with animals before studies will include human testing," Garrison said.

He said that Rutgers is cooperating with other research institutions but it will take years before it can be determined if asparagus does indeed offer health benefits to cancer patients.

In the meantime, Garrison said that he eats several pounds of asparagus a year, not necessarily for health benefits but because he likes it.

In addition, Garrison said that scientific research shows that Jersey Male Hybrid Asparagus contains more saponin than other varieties.

Scott Walker of Jersey Asparagus Farms said, "These findings will aide not only the medical community but also offers exciting new opportunities for the agricultural community. This breakthrough in medical/agricultural research will create a greater demand for asparagus."

Walker said that his firm is already gearing up for the demand by harvesting more seed from existing varieties and asking for Rutgers Research and Development staff to take an aggressive approach in developing new varieties.

"As scientists explore the many forms that can be employed in the consumption of asparagus, new markets will develop quickly," Walker said. "With this anticipated increase in demand for asparagus, growers around the world will be planting more asparagus."

ROASTED ASPARAGUS

Preheat oven to 500 degrees. Heat the roasting pan in the oven before placing the asparagus into it.

2½ pounds fresh asparagus, same size, washed and trimmed. Place in heated roasting pan. Roast for 10-15 minutes until just tender.

STEAMED ASPARAGUS

12-20 same size asparagus spears
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
Coarse kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Place in the top of a steamer over boiling water. Steam for 2-3 minutes if asparagus is thin, 5-6 minutes for fat stems.

Remove the asparagus from steamer and dot with butter. Season with salt and pepper and serve. Yield: 2 servings.

Boiling

This method can be more convenient than steaming for cooking whole spears. Because the cooking time is brief and only a small amount of water is needed, flavor and texture as well as nutritional content are virtually the same as with steaming. use a pan in which you can lay the aspargus flat; try a large skillet. Add about an inch of water and bring to a rapid boil. Drop in the asparagus, adding the thickest stalks first and letting them cook for a minute before adding the remainder. Quickly bring to a second boil and cook, uncovered, for 3 to 5 minutes, depending on thickness.

Microwaving

Arrange a pound of spears in an oblong microwavable dish, with the tips pointing toward the center. Add ¼ cup water and cover with plastic food wrap. Halfway through the cooking time, rotate the dish. Cooking time is 5 to 7 minutes.

Roasting

For a simple but more unusual approach, trim the stalks, then place them in a baking dish and lightly drizzle with a small amount of olive oil. Roast them uncovered. Cooking time: 3 to 5 minutes in a 500 degree oven.

Steaming

One of the best ways to cook asparagus is to steam it upright in shallow water. Then the stalks will be heated more intensely than the delicate tips, thus insuring evenly cooked spears as well as minimizing nutrient loss.

Use a tall, lidded pot in which the stalks will stand upright or in a double boiler with the upper portion inverted over the lower.

To handle the spears easily, tie the spears into bundles of 10 with kitchen string and place upright in the cooking vessel. Add 2 inches of water, bring to a rapid boil, then cover. For a delicate seasoning, place a clove of garlic, a slice of onion, or a lemon wedge in the water before steaming.

Cook 5 to 8 minutes, depending on the thickness of the spears. Very thick spears may require more time.

Stir-frying

Cut the spears into one- to two-inch pieces and cook in vegetable oil; add in a drop or two of sesame oil to complement the flavor of asparagus. For every dozen spears use 2 teaspoons oil to keep calories and ft per serving. Cooking time 3 to 5 minutes.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send an SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, and cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Patsy Wildeson, Chambersburg, would like a recipe for rock candy.

QUESTION — Mary Hartman, Narvon, wants a recipe for gluten-free bread, rolls or any baked items using rice, tapioca or potato flour.

QUESTION — Miriam Fritz, Kutztown, made a delicious cranberry-nut bread that she gave as gifts during the holidays. Now she lost the recipe and friends are asking for it. Does anyone have a recipe?

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., wants a recipe for Italian stewed tomatoes for canning.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., wants a recipe for flaky pop tarts.

QUESTION — Diane Linde, Hellertown, would like the recipe for rum cake.

QUESTION — A long-time reader is looking for a recipe for Swedish tea ring made with Bisquick, yeast, cinnamon, sugar, etc. She recalls a recipe had appeared in a student cookbook published by home economics students in Oxford about 15 years ago.

QUESTION — George Hile, Millmont, is looking for a recipe for beef jerky.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark of Everett is looking for a recipe for a Preserved Cake; Mocha Fudge Brownies using mocha flavoring; Cheesecake Fudge, and Texas Hurricane Cake.

QUESTION — Cindy Smith would like a recipe for a Spanish spice cake.

QUESTION — Eunice Musselman of Fredericksburg is looking for a recipe for chicken Monterey similar to that served at Bonanza Restaurants.

QUESTION — Gladys Schoffer, Shermansdale, indicated she loves the spaghetti sauce seasoning made by House of Herbs, Passaic, N.J., but she noted they no longer make it. She noted it was simply great and wanted to know what herbs were used. Spaghetti is really flat without some kind of seasoning, according to Gladys, and she wants to know if anyone has a spaghetti seasoning they can recommend similar to the sauce from House of Herbs.

QUESTION — Joanne Lomas, Morgantown, writes that when she was a little girl growing up in Philadelphia, her parents used to get a wonderful bread from a Lithuanian Bakery (she thinks). The bread crust was very dark and shiny and the inside was moist, sour, and gray in color. It was delicious. Does anyone have a recipe for such a loaf?

QUESTION — The Greene Co. New York Dairy Princess wants recipes for fudge in the following flavors: coffee, cranberry, and raspberry. She purchased these flavors at the Pa. Farm Show.

QUESTION — Ann Harner, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for English muffins made in a bread machine.

QUESTION — Helen Feeg, Robesonia, would like a recipe to make a fruit only fruit spread sweetened only with pure fruit juice and citrus pectin. Her husband is a diabetic and he likes these jams better than those sweetened with artificial sweetner.

QUESTION — H. W. Hamilton, Thornton, would like recipes that use gluten flour to make bread and pastry.

QUESTION — Stephanie Huger, Meyerstown, is looking for a recipe for pumpkin strudel with poppy seeds and sour cream or cream cheese. Her grandmother from Hungary made it, but Stephanie lost the recipe.

QUESTION — Mrs. D. Fisher, Lewistown, would like a recipe for breakfast pop tarts. She tried making them but the crust gets too flaky. Does someone have a recipe in which the pop tarts can hold up being toasted?

QUESTION — Christine Mansberger, Shippensburg, would like the recipe for a cookie called Five O'Clock Teas, which were made at the Valley Pride Bakery in Shippensburg until they went out of business.

QUESTION — Cel Brown of West Chester wants the recipe for a bread mix like the ones in the store called Daily Bread Company's. These mixes can be made ahead of time.

ANSWER — Al Prosper wanted recipes for white and for chocolate Bavarian cream. Thanks to a York reader for answering this request.

Plain Bavarian Cream

1 ounce Knox unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 pint scalded milk
4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
Salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 pint heavy cream

Soak the gelatin in cold water until soft. Make a soft custard of the milk, egg yolks, sugar, and flavoring. Stir the softened gelatine into the hot custard. When the gelatin has dissolved, strain and cool. Whip the cream and fold it in as the custard mixture cools.

Add 2 ounces of melted Baker's sweet chocolate for chocolate cream.

ANSWER — Thanks to Dixie Fix, Harrisonville, for sending a recipe for Squaw Bread requested by Sarah Clark of Everett.

Squaw Bread

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup powdered milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup water water (approximate)

Combine dry ingredients in a bowl. Gradually add enough warm water to make a soft dough. Divide dough in half and turn out on a lightly floured surface. Pat into 8-inch circles about ½ -inch thick. Cut into pie-shaped wedges. Slit center of each wedge. Fry quickly in deep hot at 375 degrees or in approximately 2-inches of hot oil. Drain on absorbent paper. While warm, dust with powdered sugar. Dough that is overhandled will tend to make tough bread.

ANSWER — Connie Weaner, Gettysburg, received a Pizzelle Baker as a gift and wanted recipes to use it. Here are several from our readers.

Pizzelles

10 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted and cooled
2¼ cups flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
2 large eggs
⅔ cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
Zest of 1 large lemon, finely grated
1 teaspoon anise extract or vanilla*
Flavorless oil for brushing pizzelle maker

Sift together flour and baking powder. Beat eggs at medium speed until frothy. Add sugar and lemon juice, continue beating until light. Beat in lemon zest and anise extract. Add dry ingredients, beating lightly until mixture is smooth. Lightly beat in cooled butter just until incorporated.

Heat and lightly brush pizzelle maker making sure all creases are oiled.

Drop 2 tablespoonfuls batter into middle of one side of the maker, close pizzelle maker and bake 20 seconds or until lightly browned on both sides. Remove immediately to wire rack to cool. Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired. Store in light containers. Makes 14 or 15 5-inch wafers.

*For anise flavor, add anise extract.

For lemon flavor, add vanilla extract.

For chocolate flavor, delete lemon and anise plus the lemon juice and zest and add ¼ cup cocoa sifted in with the flour

For black walnut flavor, delete lemon juice, zest and anise and add ¼ cup finely chopped black walnuts with the vanilla extract.

Almond flavor, delete lemon juice, zest and anise flavoring. Add ¾ teaspoon almond extract with vanilla extract.

ANSWER — Carl Schintzel, Rockaway, N.J., wanted a recipe of a baked dish his mother used to make called a Ham Noodle Casserole. Thanks to Anna Martin and others for sending recipes.

Ham And Noodle Casserole

Combine and heat over low heat until it thickens:
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk

Add:
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups cooked diced ham
8-ounce package noodles, cooked
1 cup cooked peas (optional)

Pour into casserole dish. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. May freeze until ready to bake.

Asparagus

CREAMED ASPARAGUS

1 pound fresh asparagus
2 cups whole milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Wash stalks and cut off coarse ends. Chop asparagus into 1-inch pieces. Cook in 2 cups boiling water until tender. Drain, reserving 1 cup water. Melt the butter in saucepan, add cornstarch stirring until smooth. Add reserved water. Bring to a boil, slowly adding the milk. Add sugar, salt, pepper and chopped asparagus, stir until thickened.

Serve on homemade slices of bread. Spread with butter; toasted brown in the oven.

This is a favorite of my family.

Louise Graybeal
Renick, W.V.

ASPARAGUS AND CHICKEN PASTA

2 tablespoons olive oil
8-ounces fresh asparagus, cut into ½ -inch sections
1 scallion, thinly sliced
2 6-ounces boneless chicken breast, cut into ½ -inch strips
1 teaspoon fresh thyme, divided
Salt and pepper to taste
12-ounces macaroni, zita or rigatoni, cooked
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon sliced green scallion tops, garnish
Parmesan cheese for garnish

Heat oil in medium skillet, add asparagus and scallion, stir fry 2 minutes. Add chicken and sprinkle with half the thyme leaves and salt and pepper. Continue to cook until thoroughly cooked.

Toss chicken, asparagus, pasta, lemon juice, scallion tops, remaining thyme leaves and parmesan cheese.

RICE AND ASPARAGUS SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 pound asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces
4 cups chicken or beef broth
¾ cup rice
Grated parmesan cheese

In a large skillet, melt butter then add onion and cook until tender. Dissolve the tomato paste in the water and add to the skillet with salt and pepper. Add asparagus, cover and simmer until crisply tender (3-4 minutes). Remove from heat and set aside.

In a large saucepan, bring broth to a boil, add rice and cook until rice is al dente, about 15 minutes. Add asparagus mixture to the broth with rice and simmer for 2 to 3 minutes longer. To serve, sprinkle with parmesan cheese. 4 servings.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Barbara Sciss, Madison, N.J., wanted a recipe for plain old-fashioned fried doughnuts. A reader send this recipe that is said to be introduced into the New World by the Dutch who called them Oily Cake.

Alykoeks
Raised Doughnuts

1 cup scalded and cooled milk
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
6 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup softened butter
Fat for deep-fat frying

Dissolve yeast in the water in a large bowl. Sift together sugar, flour, salt, and cinnamon. Add scalded cooled milk to yeast. Stir in dry ingredients by hand. Dough will be very heavy, then stir in beaten eggs. Cover and let rise until doubled in size.

Punch down the dough, then work in the butter with hands until dough is smooth and well blended.

Roll about ½ -inch on lightly floured surface. Cut with doughnut cutter. Place doughnuts on a tray lined with waxed paper. Cover again and let rise in a warm place until light and puffy.

Heat fat to 375 degrees.

Drop several at a time and fry until golden brown on both sides, lift from fat and drain.

Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar, granulated sugar, or a mixture of granualted sugar and cinnamon.

Makes about 40.

ANSWER — Marlene Heckman, Effort, wanted recipes for spaghetti squash other than eating it buttered or with tomato sauce. She definitely wanted a spaghetti squash dessert recipe. Thanks to a Dauphin County reader for sending a recipe. Any more?

Spaghetti Squash Pie

3 cups cooked spaghetti squash
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter, melted
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Cinnamon

Bake 9-inch pie shell at 425 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Mix all filling ingredients and pour into partially baked shell. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon. Bake at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes or until set. Chill. Can be topped with whipped cream to serve.

ANSWER — Jennifer Flanders, Middleburg, wanted a recipe for coconut-molasses eggs for Easter. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Easter Eggs

4 cups sugar
1 cup white corn syrup
1 cup cold water
4 beaten egg whites
1 package coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 pound melted coating chocolate

Cook sugar, water, and syrup until it forms a hard ball, not brittle, when dropped in cold water. Pour hot syrup into beaten egg whites and beat until you can shape the mixture. Add vanilla and coconut, and blend well. Shape. Coat in the melted chocolate and set aside to cool. Decorate when cool.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for pie crumb topping that does become hardened. Thanks to Emma Garman, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Pie Crumbs

8 cups flour
4 cups brown sugar
1 pound good grade margarine
1⅓ tablespoon baking soda
1⅓ tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Mix together all ingredients until thoroughly mixed. May be stored in the freezer for weeks. Use as needed but keep stored in the freezer.

Farm Women Societies

Lebanon Society 21

Lebanon Society of Farm Women 21 met recently. Hostesses Lorraine Shuey and Karen Grubb served a delicious brunch to 10 members and a guest. A short business meeting followed.

Berks Society 6

The Berks Society of Farm Women group #6 meeting for March was held at the home of Naomi Mest. Don Blew from the Oley Fire Company was the speaker on the subject of fire prevention. The Oley Fire Company 100-year celebration will take place on June 7 with a parade.

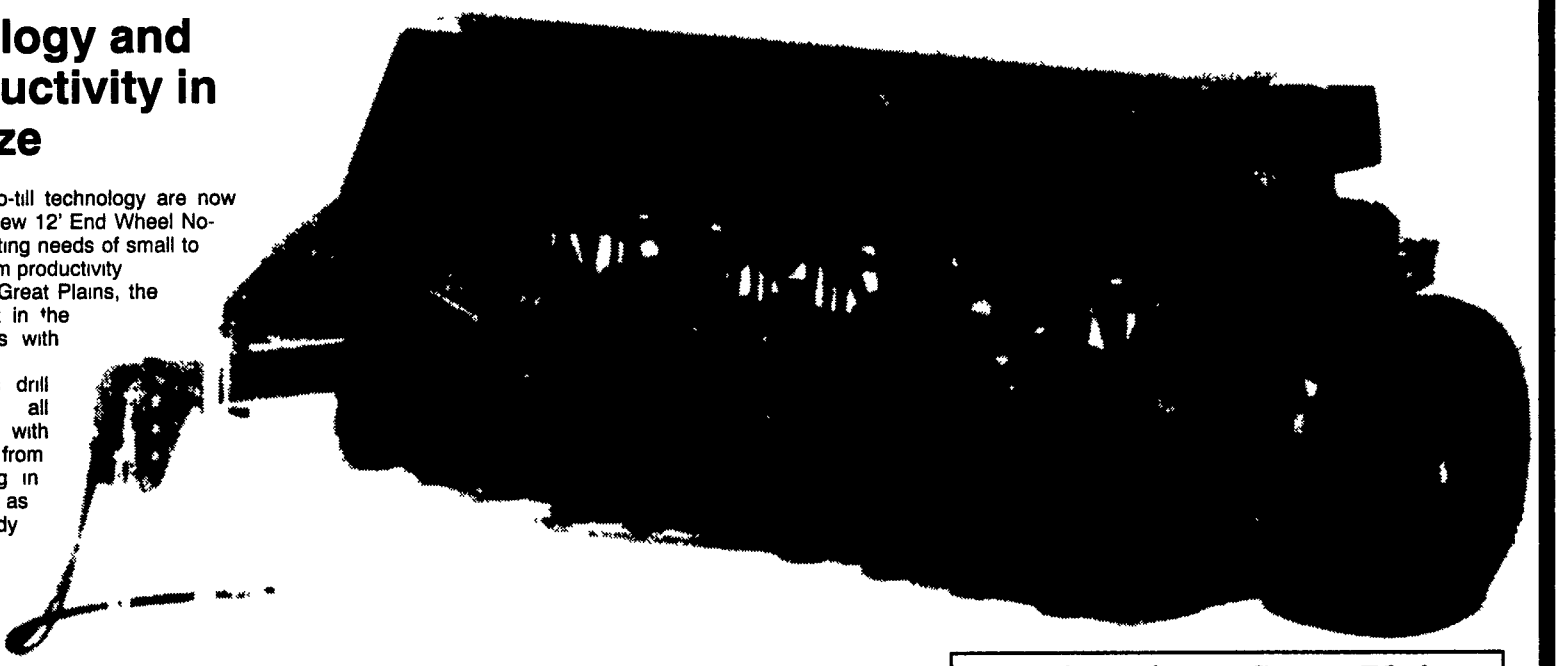
Members will help with bingo at the Berks Heim Annex in April. Prizes will be donated for the event. The Spring Rally for '97 is being sponsored by Dauphin County at Hershey this year. Five members will be attending. President Marian Gehris and Secretary Pearl Hoffman will represent the group at Berks Heim's volunteer dinner. Members will help with the Oley Valley Community Pot Pie Dinner. Donations of baked goods will also be provided.

The next meeting will be at the home of Joyce Mast.

New from – Great Plains

12' End Wheel No-Till Drill

No-Till technology and maximum productivity in a 12' size



All of the benefits of Great Plains no-till technology are now available in a new 12 foot size. The new 12' End Wheel No-Till drill is designed to handle the planting needs of small to medium sized operations with maximum productivity
Built to the high quality standards of Great Plains, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill will plant in the most demanding of no-till conditions with extreme accuracy.
The end wheel design makes this drill extremely maneuverable. Keeping all ground-working com-ponents in-line with the end wheels prevents openers from bulldozing or bridging when working in rolling terrain. The end wheels also act as stabilizers to hold the openers steady when seeding on slopes.
Excess debris is no problem for this unit. Opener and coulter stagger of 10 3/4" allows trash to flow evenly and freely. No-till coulters create a mini-seedbed allowing openers to concentrate on seed placement.
Planting depth adjustments are quick and easy with the "T"-handle depth control system. State of the art solid seed tubes ensure that the seed exits the chute with "zero motion drop" for ultimate seed placement accuracy. The optional Seed-Lok™ wheel then presses each seed into moist soil for optimum germination.
The improved straight-arm, solid stand opener design, combined with the cushioned press wheel provides maximum down pressure with less wear and tear.

The large, welded seed box holds up to 2.4 bushels per foot. Exclusive Great Plains fluted feed seed cups coupled with the 4-speed gearbox deliver outstanding accuracy in varying rates and seeding conditions.
Designed with safety in mind, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill comes equipped with transport safety lights and a wider walkboard.
Accessories available with the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill include: folding markers, coil tine harrows, seed box agitator and small seeds attachment.

Visit Happy Valley Friendly Farm

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

Most farm children climb aboard a big yellow bus to get to school. But at the Happy Valley Friendly Farm near State College, Centre County, school children from all over Central Pennsylvania ride big yellow busses to the farm!

The Happy Valley Friendly Farm is a petting farm! Lots of elementary children look forward to an end-of-school-year field trip to Happy Valley. They get to see and touch traditional and not-so-traditional farm animals.

Traditional Farm Animals

Long ago, all farm families depended upon a variety of animals for eggs, meat, milk, wool, transportation, labor, and more. While most farms today concentrate on producing only one kind of farm product — like on a dairy farm — others still raise a variety of farm animals.

Visitors to the Happy Valley Friendly Farm will see traditional farm animals — more than 40 varieties of chickens from all over the world, sheep, dairy goats, pigs, bunnies, a Jersey cow, a miniature horse, a miniature donkey, and a mule. But if they look closely, they'll see more exotic forms of these animals.

Four Horns And More

What makes a Jacob Sheep different? It has four horns! Jacob sheep come from the Mediterranean area of Europe. They are used for meat and milk. Some people grind Jacob sheep horns to use as medicine!

Pot belly pigs waddle around Happy Valley Friendly Farm along with African pygmy goats!

Scottish Highlanders are beef cattle with long hair!

Llamas, Brahmas And Emus Too!

The owners of Happy Valley Friendly Farm keep up with the latest trends in farming! More farmers are raising emus — big ostrich-like birds that have low cholesterol meat! A Brahma cow, which is sacred in India, and likable llamas live at the Happy Valley Friendly Farm too!

Goat Dairy

The rich milk from the Happy Vally goat dairy is made into goat milk fudge! More than 6,000 pounds of fudge are made each year! Some is sold at the farm, some at a candy store in nearby Centre Hall.

Spring Day!

Owners Trent and Amanda Schriefer opened the 1997 season with a Spring Day celebration one Saturday the end of March. In spite of the rain, family members of all ages walked through the 20-acre farm to see and touch a wide variety of farm animals.

"We had 7,000 people visit us the first year," Amanda recalls. That was eight years ago. Now more than 25,000 people come within the six months the farm is open. When school children come, the Schriefer's give an hour tour, break for lunch, give the kids free time to explore, take them on a hayride and then read a farm story where the children sound out the animal sounds.

"Our initial thought was to educate the public. We bought the propery specifically for a petting farm," says Amanda. "We grow each year."

Trent and Amanda's children — Ashlyn, 9, Luke, 7, and Kendra, 5 — help keep Happy Valley Friendly Farm a fun place to visit too!

The Happy Valley Friendly Farm is open Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday noon to 5. Admission is $3.75 per child, $4.25 per adult. For more information, call (814) 364-1902.

Are kissing fish in love?
Sorry to disappoint you romantics out there Although aquaculturists don't know for sure why these Southeast Asian fish kiss, they're pretty certain it's not for love
Here's what aquaculturists — those are people who study fish — do know Kissing gourami (say GORE-ah-me) are part of a special group of fish called labyrinth fish All the fish in this group have a special organ that lets them breath air at the surface as well as under water
Most kissing gourami have bright, silvery skin with black vertical bars along their head, black stripes on the body along the scales, and black dorsal and anal fins (Those are the back fins) A close cousin is pinkish-white, and both species can grow as big as 12 inches.
Kissing fish kept in captivity need to be fed two to three times a day to survive In addition to those meals, they use their thick lips to catch algae as a mid-swim snack
So back to kissing Baby kissing gourami and old kissing gourami alike will press their thick lips against another gourami, so people know it's not part of a mating ritual Some people think the kissing might be the gourami's way of fighting
But beyond that, aquaculturists say that the kissing fish are the only ones that completely understand why they pucker up
Scientifically yours,
Twig

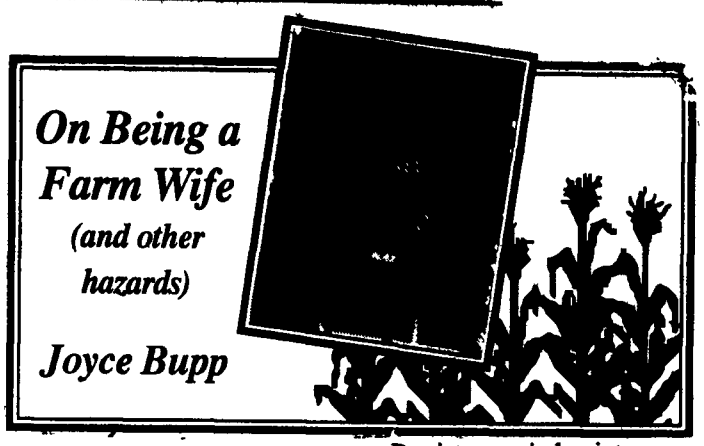
WOODS WOODS - DuAL WOODS ALLOWAY WOODS - GANNON WOODS - GILL



Silence. Strange, unexpected silence. Welcome silence.

Walking during the middle of the night, the silence took a moment to register in a sleep-dulled brain. Then, realization struck. The wind had died.

The racous outside soundtrack that played for days on end had quieted. In it's place were the more normal sounds of the neighborhood. In the distance, came the hum of a truck, a loaded rig huffing up the long, southbound grade on the interstate. Another muted hum from overhead told of air travelers enduring a red-eye flight. And a bird in the trees outside the window chirped at some real or perceived disturbance; perhaps the owls were out and about.

For several days and nights, none of those everyday, normal, background noises of the neighborhood could be heard. Instead, there had been the constant, blustery grumblings and growlings of fierce winds. And the banging of anything loose.

If a slamming screen door is a traditional sound of summer, then a banging piece of roof tin must be a classic spring indicator. With the numerous outbuildings that most old farmsteads accumulated over the years, one will inevitably have a piece of roof tin with a loose corner. Or, after extended periods of wind — like recently — several pieces of roofing tin with loose corners.

Early on during April's blustery imitation of March, a persistant banging bugged me as I fed calves one morning. Further investigation showed a corner of the tin roof on the calf "condo" of four pens had pulled loose, teased by the persistently picky fingers of the northwest wind.

With no ladder or roofing nails at hand — I'm no roofer, mind you — I fixed it in the fastest way available, via a method learned after years of living on a farm. I plunked half of a broken cement block on that corner.

Hey, it hasn't banged since.

Anyone who removes that cement block piece had better replace it with a hammer and roofing nails.

Persistent winds, interserpsed with tree-bending gusts, rearrange and disperse anything not nailed — or cement blocked — down around the farm. The older calves often playfully yank their empty feed or water buckets out of their holders. Blown about by the winds, they turn up in the lower yard, rolling around outside the dairy barn, or even hung up in the dried cattail stems ringing the pond.

And, though most of our cattle feed is now handled in bulk, the whistly wind can find a single loose feedbag in the barn and whip it through the air like a wide, flat Frisbee. They sail into the meadow, take refuge in the brush at the edge of the woods or catch on a piece of fence. We fish those out of the pond occasionally, too.

Our front porch footwiping rug — actually a piece of Astroturf-like stuff — has become a backyard lawn ornament. At least that's where it spends most of its time, lately. Keeping it company have been a cardboard box, one watering saucer from beneath the front porch flower pots, the occasional piece of wash blown down from the line and enough tree limb residue to build a monumental hotdog-roasting fire.

A heroine of endurance at the mercy of the biting, endless wind has been our mother goose, parked steadfastly on her clutch of eggs in the mid-pond goose nesting platform. She has been hunkered down there now for about three weeks, head tucked under her wing during the worst of the wind, snow and rain that has accompanied her efforts.

As he drove by the pond recenlty on the tractor, a mighty gust blew The Farmer's hat from his head into the pond and toward the nest. He paddled the canoe out to retrieve it; another gust blew the canoe against the nest platform and startled Mother Goose, who fled, leaving him to take a census of the seven eggs. We predict a hatch of five out of the seven, based on previous years' counts, barring any further wind incidents that disturb our hatching mom.

The winds have dried down sodden grown to where there were cracks in the yard last week and fields were near perfect for equipment work. But — as one might expect — when we needed the wind the most, it abandoned us. As sub-freezing temperatures attacked our orchard neighbor's fruit trees, many at peak bloom, what was needed most was a steady wind. But, it had gone. And now, too, are prospects of an abundant harvest for our orchard friends — and for us lovers of fresh, local peaches, plums, cherries and apricots.

Gone.

Gone with the wind.

Small Fruit Gardening: Fun, Exercise, Educational

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — If you love the taste of strawberries, raspberries and blue berries fresh off the vine, this may be the year to plant a fruit garden.

"Small fruit gardening offers fun, exercise and an educational experience for gardeners of any age," says Dr. Barbara Goulart, assistant professor of pomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "But there's more to it than just planting the crop and harvesting the fruit."

To get your garden off to the right start, first choose the best planting site. Select an area of your yard that will be in the sun most or all of the day. "Plenty of sunlight is crucial for growing small fruit," says Goulart. "Fruit production is an energy-intensive process and the plants' source of energy is the sunlight. "Sunlight also allows rapid drying of the plant leaves, which helps prevent disease and reduces the need for fungicides," she says.

The site should have good air circulation and some protection from wind. It also should be large enough to permit adequate space within and between rows so that you can tend the plants and pick the fruit easily. If you don't have a large area, you can use fruit plants as a property divider, grow raspberries on trellises or cultivate strawberries in pots, Goulart says.

The soil on the site must be well drained. "If water stands for more than 24 hours after a spring rain, the soil probably isn't appropriate for small fruit production," she says. Before planting, test the soil for fertility and pH. Soil tests kits are available at county extension offices for a nominal fee. "When you submit the soil for analysis, specify the crop you intend to grow, since nutritional and pH requirements vary among fruit types," she says.

Think twice before planting fruit in last year's vegetable plot. "Brambles or strawberries shouldn't be planted where any solanaceious crop — such as tomatoes, peppers and potatoes — has been grown for the last five years," says Goulart. "Verticillium, a soil fungus, can linger and infect small fruitcrops."

Plant quality is another key to success. Choose one-year-old nursery plants that are well grown and heavily rooted. The only exception is blueberries, two-year-old plants are recommended. All plants should be listed as certified, virus tested or virus indexed.

To prevent damage from birds and rodents, Goulart recommends covering vines with nylon or plastic mesh, closely woven wire or cheesecloth before fruit begins to ripen. Mowing the grass will help keep rodents away, since they require lots of cover to hide from natural predators.

Fruit crops can be grown without chemicals, but the quantity and quality of the harvest may not be as high. "Fruit similar to what you can buy in the supermarket can't be produced reliably without pesticides," she says.

Information on making pest management decisions that are economically, environmentally and socially sound can be found in the Penn State publication, Small Scale Fruit Production. This comprehensive guide to planting, managing and harvesting home fruit crops is available at county extension offices or through the Publications Distribution Center, Penn State University, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802; (814) 865-6713.

Farm Wife Teaches Students Cake Decorating

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Linda Esbenshade teaches cake decorating to lots of people and decorates gorgeous cakes, but one of her favorite things to do is to teach middle school students how to transform a "blah" cupcake into an edible critter.

Once a year for the past three, Linda participates in the Donegal Middle School Unified Arts Day.

Students select from about 40 choices such as drama, wood turning, flower arranging, water color, and square dancing. But comments overheard from participants in the five sessions that Linda teaches to sixth through eighth graders indicate that cake decorating rates high on the list of middle schoolers favorite things to do.

"This is my favorite class" and "I love this" were heard repeatedly while students (mostly males) tried their hand at decorating after watching Linda.

Linda had no problem keeping the attention of the students. She demonstrated how to take a plain cupcake, plunk a malted milk ball on top (the icing acts as glue in keeping the candy in place), and with a few strokes, using a cake decorating bag and tip, turn it into a frog.

Then it was time for the students to try their hands at cake decorating.

Forget ordinary frogs, teddy bears, and pigs. Students demonstrated their own creativity by producing such works of art as a spider, a fish, a space alien, a clown, a mouse, and even "Dennis Rodman."

"Cake decorating can be a hobby or a money-making career," Linda told the students as she held up pictures of some of the elaborate weddings and birthday cakes she had made. Some showed fountains, bridges, fresh flowers, and gum paste flowers of calla lilies.

"That's the wedding cake that I want at my wedding," one sixth grad boy said.

"With any hobby, you need to spend money first," Linda said as she showed the students many different tips used to achieve varied designs.

"You can hold the tip at a different angle to achieve a different outcome," Linda said. She demonstrated how the icing is pushed down, the bag twisted, and, by using fingers and the heel of the hand, when held at a 90-degree angle, the icing when released forms a blob. When held at a 45-degree angle, a line is achieved.

Parchment paper cones, washable cloth bags cones, and disposable paper cones are some of the types of bags available for holding the icing while decorating. Coloring can be achieved by using paste, powder, and liquid.

Linda enjoys participating in the annual event because it's fun and rewarding. She said, "I've benefitted from others sharing with me. It's a God-given talent I like to share with others," she said.

"Don't you hate it when they cut into your cake after you spend all that time on decorating it?" is a question Linda is often asked.

"I don't mind it a bit," Linda said. "The satisfaction on their faces is worth the time it took to make it. After all, cakes are made to be eaten."

The hardest part in providing great looking cakes, Linda found, was not the decorating but removing cakes from the pan. Linda learned that a generous amount of shortening and flour is required to remove cakes from pans, especially the dimensional figure pans that have lots of crevices and corners.

Although Linda doesn't consider herself artistic, she prefers to draw a design on a cake rather than use cake forms.

Although she is a self-taught cake decorator, Linda perfected her skills by taking a few courses from Fran Sauder of Mount Joy and from attending several four-day annual conventions sponsored by International Cake Exploration, where she garners lots of ideas.

"It's a quandry. When do I quit?" Linda said of the overwhelming amount of techniques and equipment available to the serious cake decorator.

Recently Linda purchased an airbrush. "Now I need to learn to use it," she said.

Techniques that she has accomplished include gum paste lace pressed applique, rolled fondant, brushed embroidery, and gum paste flowers where each petal is individually made and allowed to dry before assembling. Calla lilies, tulips, poinsettias, and petunias are some of the striking flowers she uses in her designs.

For a Christmas cake of stacked presents covered with gum paste, each loop of the realistic looking gold ribbon was painted in 23 carat gold.

While a new design is always a challenge she enjoys, Linda said that sometimes it's relaxing to do a familiar design.

Although it is much more time consuming, Linda prefers decorating wedding cakes. "People often ask me how long it takes to decorate a wedding cake, but I don't want to know," she said.

Generally she bakes the wedding tiers on Thursday and decorates them on Friday so that the icing can harden and doesn't shift for a Saturday wedding.

She has no problem with cakes collapsing or being lopsided, except on one occasion when the florist took apart the layers of the cake to insert flowers.

"Now I always make sure I'm there when the florist comes to make sure it is put together properly," she said.

Linda has taught Wilton Cake Decorating classes at J. C. Penney's Department Store. For many years, she held six-week cake decorating classes for 4-H'ers. She serves as a 4-H leader in sewing and cooking clubs in addition to cake decorating when her three daughters were members.

"Teaching is rewarding because people come to the first class and say, 'I can never do that.' But then they learn how and the satisfaction on their face is worth so much."

Linda Esbenshade teaches cake decorating to people of all ages, including middle school students.

Recently Linda has had plenty of experience in wedding cakes from her family alone. She and her husband Allen had three daughters marry within two years — the last one will marry this summer. She usually decorates the cake to match the trim on the wedding gown.

No doubt her daughters trust their mother's cake expertise because Linda said, "My daughters always let me decide how to decorate it."

The Esbenshades raise steers and grow corn, wheat, barley, and soybeans on their 115-acre farm about two miles west of Mount Joy. Linda fills in where needed and relays lots of phone messages.

Linda is a board member for the Farm and Home Foundation. She is a member of the Congregational Bible Church. Her husband is an East Donegal Township supervisor.

Linda operates her business, Cakes For All Occasions, from her home located at 320 Nissley Rd., Mt. Joy.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The mothers of kids enrolled in the Meyersdale Head Start program, obviously were having a good time at the parents' first meeting with Dottie Bromley, the Somerset County Cooperative Extension's new family living agent.

An unknowing observer might have mistakenly assumed that everybody present already knew her because they all seemed relaxed and comfortable.

Bromley's topic for the informal discussion with the moms, seated at an oblong table in the sparsely furnished room, was "Diet and Stress."

On an unheated, cast-iron radiator, Bromley had placed a tray of fresh produce to use later in her presentation.

Entertaining themselves with a few toys and russet-brown Ritz crackers, three chattering little boys played on the floor, their young voices filtering into the light conversation of the adults.

Reassured by the tall, slender woman just introduced to them, that she wasn't bothered by their children's noise, the moms gave their attention to Bromley who exuded a warm friendliness toward them.

The atmosphere for future meetings was being settled.

"Our diet can help reduce and fight stress," began the agent. "When we're under stress, we forget to breathe, so when we are under stress it is important to breathe."

Everyone was ordered to stand; to close their eyes, and to follow her forthcoming instructions on how to breathe.

That directive, in itself, created stress for anyone prone to feel tottery standing with their eyes closed.

Bromley's own eyes were open, "to watch the kids," she said, and, "so nobody tries to sneak out of the room." The playful remark brought a laughing response.

Inhale deeply to expand the diaphragm. With one arm outstretched and the opposite palm pressed flat over the midriff, exhale or release the breath through the mouth. The diaphragm will naturally contract. Repeat five times for maximum effect.

Stress can pop up anytime, anywhere or to anybody. To ease oneself through, just remember to breathe. It's a good method of deflecting an onslaught of negative reactions.

At home, you can also screw up your face like a fish. The funny transformation so fascinates the kids that they ape it and learn ways to cope with their own stresses.

Having plenty of water in the body significantly aids reduction of stress, said Bromley, who lives in Schellsburg, Bedford County, with her husband, Robert Bromley.

She listed the benefits of water: it helps to clean wastes from the body; it is crucial to the volume of blood in the body; it regulates body temperature; it aids the digestion of food.

To daily replace the water in our bodies that is lost through perspiration, breathing, urination and other bodily functions, we should drink eight cups of water, the expert said. A few negative murmurings were heard.

When she learned that soda pop has caffein and cannot replace drinking water, the owner of a large Diet Pepsi that sat on the table took some good-natured teasing form her peers, because she had tried to sweep it out of sight.

Bromley, whose home economics degree was earned at the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, after also talking about fiber, let the moms themselves read aloud from the labels of popular, commercially packaged grocery items — canned soups, chips, etc. All listed a high conotent of the most undesirable things, like fat, sodium, sugars, etc.

"When you are under stress, your system doesn't need sodium. Sodium and potassium need to be in balance," Bromley told them. "When you are under stress you need more potassium."

Bananas, potatoes, broccoli, lemon, oranges, dried fruits, covered another tray. These are good sources for vitamins and potassium, Bromley told the group.

"I encourage you to put emphasis on a healthy diet," Bromley urged. "You should have at least five fruits and vegetables every day when you are under stress.

"When you are under stress, your body burns protein. When children are under stress, it becomes particularly important that they get two good sources of protein," taught the teacher, suggesting chicken and eggs as sources.

Her own two kids have flown from the family nest — Carol to the University of Pittsburgh and Mark, to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in New York — so she might as well apply herself to the enjoyment of disseminating a type of knowledge that equips people to help themselves.

In this, Robert, the manager of Shawnee State Park, has been his wife's encourager, she said.

Her experience certainly isn't lacking. She gave six years to the Mercer County Cooperative Extension office, working mainly in 4-H but also with family living; was a 4-H leader; worked with Bedford County Extension board and worked with the Chestnut Ridge School District.

There, she substitute taught and coordinated a drug and alcohol program and also, a vocational career and tutoring program.

Additionally, she worked for the Bedford County Tobacco-Free Youth Coalition.

Then, when Somerset Extension's Marie Kieffer, in 1995, retired after a full career of experiences and service to Somerset County, Bromley responded to the office's need for someone to handle the Better Kid Care aspect.

Last month — March 10 — her schedule became full time. She joins director Robert Brown; youth agent Melissa Hipple, and secretaries Linda Johnson and Kathy Dwyer.

"It's nice to be able to go to one office and have one home base," she said, laughing about the days when, "I would always carry my briefcase with both jobs in it."

She is forming an advisory committee to examine and act on family living issues. Hopefully, a foundation for future programs can be laid by the committee.

Food safety, for instance. "There is a big difference between cooking for five and cooking for 500," she said.

Women's health issues are a concern and also helping youth to choose a tobacco-free lifestyle.

Bromley, formerly Dottie Myers, is a Cambria County native, raised on a dairy farm in the Summerhill area.

The new family living agent at the Somerset County Cooperative Extension office is Dottie Bromley who is glad for her coat on a chilly spring day in Meyersdale.

Ag Education Is Allied Milk Producers Focus

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — "Education," seemingly, was the operative word in the general context of each report or talk given at the 48th annual meeting of the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative. It was at the Masonic Temple on April 8.

The nine-county organization — a federally approved, dairy industry advertising and marketing agency — concentrates its marketing efforts in the Altoona-Johnstown region of consumers.

Consumers need more than just a hankerin' for a glass of cold milk to wash dry cookies down their throats. The head knowledge of milk's origin should balance the stomach's knowledge of milk having satisfied its need.

Often, getting the public's attention starts with kids.

"Our goal isn't to have teachers teach kids how to become farmers," stated guest speaker, Carl Shaffer, Columbia County, president of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Awareness Foundation, which administers the Ag In the Classroom Program, "but to know where food comes from."

To date, Ag In the Classroom has reached more than 20,000 school children because 400 teachers have taken advantage of the program that was begun a few years ago. The course at Penn State is held Sunday through Friday noon, the last week in July.

"We are now recruiting more teachers from the cities," Shaffer said.

The foundation is also making available a video of three segments to teachers of grades K-6. It will feature dairy cows, milk production and supermarkets, according to Shaffer, who said the editing alone, took one year.

"It's a well-made video and it's going to be a good tool," the president said. "We want to keep teachers enthused."

Additionally, a slides and script ag-presentation that the county extension offices will manage, was developed by the foundation for use by adult civic groups. Training to use the slides will be given at six regional locations.

Dave Myers, Cambria County, the cooperative's president emphasized that Allied gives high priority to educating school children. He reported that, statistically, 46 percent of fluid milk is consumed by kids.

Lowell Friedline, Somerset County, the cooperative's secretary, discussed how "one-cent" works. That is, the one-cent-per-handredweight collected from 41 producers in four counties — Bedford, Cambria, Indiana, Somerset — that have organized Allied Units. " One cent allows us to do things that aren't necessarily marketing and promotion," said Friedline.

Ten cents, on the other hand is entirely related to marketing and promotional activity. Radio, of course, like the hare, is well out in front, followed by billboard advertising. Local promotions, materials, and dairy princess program costs, fall next in the budgetary sequence.

Jan Harding, director of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Promotion Services said that Allied gives tremendous support to the state dairy princess program.

Allied's "Little Red Barn," — a mobile dairy bar — last summer appeared at Ag Progress Days for the first time. Some 2,000 refreshing parfaits were made and sold at the event, out of the little red barn. Inside it is equipped with refrigeration units. The counter opens from the side.

Altough, currently, six dairy princesses are serving in Allied counties, only three attended the meeting. They were Tammy Kuzar, Cambria Co.; Amanda Meier, Somerset Co., and Julie Lockhart, Indiana Co. Kuzar did an oral presentation. Meier and Lockhart performed their dairy skits.

Princess Becky Carson represents Bedford Co.; Leslie Bailey, Blair and Michelle Bennett, Jefferson.

Allied's dairy marketing specialist, Dorothy Naugle, generally incorporates a slide program into her report, and did again on Tuesday.

The slides scenes, that Naugle herself has taken by going to dairy promotion activities in different counties, are a good way for Allied members to see the importance of public visibility for the dairy princesses, and of the funding for the dairy princess programs.

The girls to to mall promotions, Day at the Farm, visit numerous schools, attend parades and much more.

Allied also supplies handouts to farms that host visits from school children. "More than 26 farmers ask for handouts when children from schools visit their farms," Naugle reported.

Naugle said that state representative William R. Lloyd, (69th District) gave Allied a copy of the State House resolution officially declaring an Agriculture Week in Pennsylvania during March.

Master of ceremonies was Andy Lasky, host of "The Good Life," WJAC Radio, Johnstown.

More On Mulches

All landscape mulches are not created equal. Warm April showers may mean more unsightly fungus growing in our mulched landscape beds. These include mushrooms, slime mold, birds nest fungus, and artillery fungus.

Artillery fungus, is credited with speckling nearby house siding, automobiles and other structures with its dark-colored tar like spots. The spots are ejected from mulch beds up and out in all directions — perhaps as far as 12 feet.

Also called cannon fungus or shotgun fungus, artillery fungi orient their fruiting bodies towards bright sunny surfaces. For example, light colored houses or parked automobiles in large parking lots with mulched islands seem the most likely targets. The sticky black spore masses are windblown reaching as high as the second story on a house.

Once in place, the spore mass is very difficult to remove without damaging the surface to which it is attached. Aluminum siding, cedar siding or automobile finishes are prone to most serious damage. It also leaves a permanent tar-like stain.

To date, there are no known controls for this fungus. Penn State researchers are continuing to evaluate wood or bark mulches that prevent the sporulation of the fungus.

Without any known controls, several suggestions may be helpful. The fungus prefers moist, shaded conditions similar to environmental conditions on the forest floor. The fungus is a decomposer of wood. Wood-chip mulches are especially attractive to fungus. Suburban gardeners who use bark chips rather than wood or dyed wood chips should have less problems with the fungus. The key word to remember is 'fresh' bark. Use thinner and fresh layers of mulch to promote quicker surface drying. In addition, stir or rake mulch surface occasionally throughout the spring and summer to fend off the fungus.

Coarser mulches that hold less moisture at the surface also prevent artillery fungus from getting established in the beds. In addition, replace organic mulches with crushed stone, river pebbles or coarse sand around heat-tolerant plants. Only critical areas adjacent to homes and parking lots need special mulch renovation. A clean and fresh layer of mulch on landscape beds tend to have less problems with artillery fungus.

Be sure to break up the crust of old mulch before applying a new layer. If possible, incorporate old mulch into the soil surface. Use only a thin layer, 2 to 4 inches of fresh mulch to dress up beds and provide weed control.

Also, never pile a thick mulch layer around the trunk of the tree. Although quite common, the practice is detrimental to tree growth and unnecessary for good weed control.

Areas of mulch with artillery fungus may appear matted and lighter in color than the surrounding mulch. The fungi resembles a tiny cream or orange-brown cup with one black egg. The cup is only one tenth of an inch in diameter.

To receive a free brochure on "what is growing in my landscape mulch?" call Penn State Extension at (717) 840-7408. Look for future columns on mushrooms, bird's nest fungus, and slime mold.

Lastly, the University of Delaware is reporting moderate success using high pressure washers to remove the spore masses on vinyl siding and other surfaces. Look for spots first developing in the undersides of leaves on plants growing in molded areas.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

Tuna Warning

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — FDA warns sulfite-sensitive asthmatics and other sulfite-sensitive consumers that canned tuna products may contain undeclared sulfites. The National Feed Processors Association and the U.S. tuna industry recently advised the agency that most white (albacore) tuna and a limited amount of light tuna contain sulfites not declared on the product labels.

Sulfite-sensitive asthmatics and other sulfite-sensitive individuals should not consume at this time any white (albacore) canned tuna, and should check with the industry's information number, 800-238-1112, for specific information about the presence of sulfites in albacore and light canned tuna products.

Sulfites can cause serious and life-threatening reactions in certain asthmatics and other sulfite-sensitive individuals. The undeclared sulfites in canned tuna do not present a risk to individuals who are not asthmatic or otherwise sulfite sensitive.

Sulfites and sulfiting agents are added to many food products as preservatives. Food manufacturers who add detectable levels of sulfites to food products are required to declare its presence on product levels.

The National Food Processors Association and the U.S. Tuna Foundation informed FDA that sulfites have been added to a significant proportion of canned tuna product inadvertently and without manufacturer's knowledge. The sulfites apparently were contained but not declared in a raw material — hydrolyzed vegetable protein — which is added to the tuna to enhance flavor.

The industry has informed FDA is has now discontinued use of raw materials containing sulfites.

FDA and the industry are cooperating in notifying asthmatics and other sulfite-sensitive individuals across the country of the presence of undeclared sulfites in canned tuna products. The industry has agreed to place advertisements in newspapers informing sulfite-sensitive consumers of the problem. It has also altered the National Food Allergy Network to aid in the effort to communicate information to susceptible individuals. In addition, manufacturers will relabel canned tuna currently containing sulfites with stickers declaring its presence.

FDA is investigating in cooperation with industry to determine how the problem occurred and how it can be prevented from recurring.

Arts, Crafts Requested

TERRE HILL (Lancaster Co.) — Preparations are underway for the Sixth Annual Juried Arts and Craft Show to be held during the Annual Terre Hill Days celebration. The show will be held on Saturday, July 26, under a large tent at the Memorial Park from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m., rain or shine.

In order to maintain top quality participants, the show committee is accepting applications for this show.

Inquiries should be made to: Terre Hill Days Juried Craft Show, 131 Cedar Street, Narvon, PA 17555, or call (717) 445-7600.

Ida's Notebook

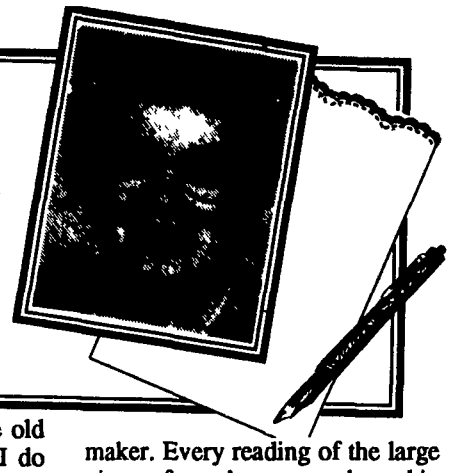
Ida Risser



The other day I read some old deeds that I inherited. And, I do mean "old" ones as their dates were 1761 and 1769 — not 1861 and 1869. Things were rather primitive at that time.

When they described a 237-acre plot, they not only measured from the white oak to the dogwood to a large rock but they mentioned that some land nearby was "vacant" or still unclaimed. What a wilderness it must have been as one border was the Conestoga Creek which is now called a River.

A word after Chrisian Wenger's name was "cordwiner" and I was not familiar with it but the dictionary says "cordwainer" is a shoemaker. Every reading of the large piece of parchment or sheepskin seems to tell me something new. I noticed that the women who signed her "X" was always taken aside to question her as to whether she was signing the deed or her own free will.

The price for the 237 acres was 1500 pound or about $20 an acre. And, a one-half penny sterling was to be paid for each acre every March in Lancaster to the Penns. On the same piece of parchment, names were spelled in various ways — Shevely, Schievely and Sheively. One name mentioned was Moses Mucklewaine.

One can become immersed in history. A friend of mine started out to research schools in my township for a paper. Now, almost a year later he has enough information to publish a book.

I was able to contribute to his work with several old photographs. Two are of public schools that were used in the 1800s. Summit Level School was attended by my father, but it is no longer standing. Another is a school in Oregon, which was later used as a house but also has been replaced.

If someone had not saved old papers and pictures, we could not relate as well to days that are long gone.

Attend 1890s School

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Sunday, April 27 from 12:30 to 4:30 at Lancaster's Landis Valley Museum. Meet a Victorian period schoolman at the museum's authentic 1890s schoolhouse and have a lesson. Don't worry; few teachers gave out report cards. Rt. 272, 2.5 miles north of Lancaster. Largest Pa. German museum in the country. Admission. (717) 569-0401.

You Ask You Answer

This column is for readers who have questons but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Sue Baughman, Gordonville, would like a source to buy British oil, which previously sold in drug stores. It contains kerosene, turpentine, linseed oil, and coal tar. The Baughmans use the British oil in an old family recipe for salve.

QUESTION — Harold Kuchler, Coatesville, needs to replace a Proctor-Silex 2-quart ice cream freezer bucket, preferably stainless steel. Where can he find one?

ANSWER — Marion Capp of Mechanicsburg has an 8' tall antique Seth Thomas grandather's clock, the heavy weights for which are suspended by chains. She wanted someone to make 2 chains for her, as the one in the clock has been pieced together. Thanks to David E. Stoltzfus who recommends John A. King, 245 Harristown Rd., Kinzer, PA 17535.

ANSWER — Marlowe Haas, Emporium, wanted to know where to find directions to crochet an old-fashioned hug-me-tight. Thanks to Phyllis Stauffer who writes that she will send directions to her if you send your address to Phyllis at 1020 N. Middleton Rd., Carlisle, PA 17013.

ANSWER — Mrs. Aaran Kauffman of Cochranville wanted to know how to keep other birds from nesting in bluebird houses. Thanks to Amos Beiler, Quarryville, who suggests that she needs more birdhouses — there's always room for one more. He said that his parents put up five or more houses, which were only 30 feet apart. There were bluebirds, tree swallows, wrens, and chickadees living in them. he writes: "What a beautiful sight! You are not in danger of losing the bluebirds by doing this."

ANSWER — Sara Simpson writes that she has a used zig zag scissors that she will send to Mrs. Bennie Stoltzfus if she sends her street address to her. Sara's address is P.O. Box 103, Ickesburg, PA 17037-0103.

ANSWER — Robert Skinner, Southhampton, N.J., wanted to know if there is a town called Nekoda, Pa., or if it has been renamed. Thanks to Richard Knouse, Liverpool, and Debra Swartz, Millerstown, who sent the following information. The town of Nekoda, which was made up of a genral store and a post office, used to be on every Pennsylvania state map. The Nekoda General Store, which opened in 1866 and closed in 1933, and the post office, which opened in 1874 and closed in 1915. The Nekoda building is located in Pfoutz Valley, Perry County, about 5 miles east of Millerstown and one mile off Route 17 on the Seven Stars Road. Ted Loy is the present owner of Nekoda.

ANSWER — A subscriber from McVeytown wanted the words to the following excerpt, which Earl Oberholtzer of Lititz writes appeared in the book, "Light From Heaven," by Christmas Carol Kauffman.

"Hello der, Zeek, ole chum, where you's been dis week back?"

"I'se been no whar, an I neber had no weak back. I feel strong. I feel strong as a lion. I feel like a lion dis blessed minut."

"Wal, did you eber see a lion?"

"Course I did. You should a seen de long ears ob de critter an heard him roar" (at this point a sound is made as a donkey braying).

ANSWER — More answers for Amanda Hoover who wanted clear toy candy molds for a 4-H project. Someone wrote that molds are at the Knepps Caramel Corn Stand, which is at Root's Market in Manheim on Tuesdays and at Green Dragon Market in Ephrata on Fridays. Address is Albert Knepp, 129 Ridgewood Manor, Manheim, PA 17545 or phone (717) 653-4927.

Also, The Cake and Kandy Emporium carries several types of clear toy candy molds — new flat sheet molds; new 3-dimensional molds; single round lollipop molds; and a few antique clear toy molds.

ANSWER — Sara Singley writes that she has two 2-gallon glass butter churns, one is a manual and one is electric Write to her at 1496 Back Maitland Rd., Lewistown, PA 17044

SPRING CHORES FOR SHEPHERDS

My good friend and co-worker from Bucks County, Penn State Extension Agent Mike Fournier, offers the following ideas that every shepherd should consider this spring.

• Fertilize your pastures. Pasture is a crop just like corn or soybeans. In order to remain productive a pasture must be fertilized every year, preferably twice a year. Without fertilizer to keep pasture grasses strong, weeds and grazing will eventually degrade the pasture until it is no longer productive. In the absence of a soil test, a good rule of thumb is to fertilize with 500 pounds per acre of a 10-10-10 fertilizer in the spring and again in the fall.

• Deworm the flock. Internal parasites are the number one health problem in sheep. You should be on a regular deworming schedule of 4-5 times per year. We like to worm sheep just prior to putting them on new pasture. This helps control the spread of these parasites. Remember to rotate worm medications. Don't just change the name of the wormer but make sure it is a different family of medication. If in doubt, check with your veterinarian.

• Call your shearer. Don't wait until the last minute to have your sheep shorn. Once spring arrives, the temperature is plenty warm enough to shear. If the weather turns very cold and wet immediately after shearing, provide shelter for a couple of days. After that, there is enough wool growth to protect them. Sheep in this area should be sheared by mid-May. If you would like to learn to shear your own sheep, call Mike at the Bucks County Extension Office, (215) 345-3283 regarding the 1997 Shearing School to be held May 6-7 at Hidden Meadow Farm in Souderton, Montgomery County.

More Grain, More Livestock

Penn State Professor H. Louis Moore reports that more available grain will mean more reasonable grain prices resulting in more production of livestock and poultry in 1997.

The big corn harvest of 1996, 9.3 billion bushels, ended the expensive feeding period and put livestock producers back into a "business as usual" mood.

Meat production actually expanded about 1 percent in 1996, despite high feed prices. The overall expansion of red meat and poultry production since 1992 has been amazing. Meat production was about 67 billion pounds in 1992 and will expand to about 78 billion pounds in 1997, a 10 billion pound increase. Beef production is expected to grow slightly, and pork output will grow in the second half of the year, but poultry production will grow by about 6 percent.

Broiler production is likely to total 28 billion pounds in 1997 compared to 15.5 billion pounds just 10 years ago. This is an increase of 80 percent in a 10-year period. More meat production has enabled U.S. consumers to eat record amounts of meat in most years at reasonable prices. Producers often didn't fare as well as consumers by producing such large supplies of meat. Producers have been benefactors from another economic development.

Since 1992 the U.S. has been a net exporter of meat. In 1996 about 12 percent of U.S. production of red meat and poultry was exported. In 1997 meat exports will total about 9 billion pounds, offsetting much of the production growth.

As trade barriers fall and U.S. quality is recognized, the Pacific Rim countries have become good customers of U.S. high quality beef, pork and poultry. The new republics of the former Soviet Union have been buying large quantities of U.S. poultry because their agricultural production and processing industry has collapsed.

This year will feature more reasonable grain prices. Hog prices are likely to average in the mid-50-cent range and fed beef in the mid-60-cent range in 1997.

Water For Horses

Water is as essential to good nutrition as any solid feed. It should be fresh, clean, and available to the horse at all times.

Horses can be watered before, after, or during feeding, but should not be watered if they are overheated. Normally, a mature horse drinks 10 to 12 gallons of water a day, but when the temperature is high or during work periods, the amount consumed is considerably greater.

Some authorities state that a horse may produce about 10 gallons of saliva per day. Saliva starts the digestive process, so ample water is necessary.

Water cools the horse by carrying off excess body heat. In cold weather it assists in conserving heat and helps maintain body temperature. Water, the major component of blood, carries nutrients to all parts of the body.

Plants Poisonous To Livestock

Every spring, and throughout the summer months, agricultural extension agents receive calls inquiring about plants that are poisonous to livestock and horses.

Pennsylvania has about 100 toxic plants, some of which are responsible for death of numerous domestic livestock every year. Factors contributing to plant poisoning are starvation, accidental eating, and browsing habits of animals.

With houses springing up everywhere in southeast Pennsylvania, the rural-urban interface is dramatically increasing and many farm neighbors are unfamiliar witih the plants that are toxic.

Following are some common plants that are poisonous to livestock and should not be tossed over the fence to grazing animals!

• Garden Iris — will produce gastro-enteritis when ingested in sufficient amounts.

• Holly — while holly berries are not very palatable, they have caused poisoning in animals.

• Morning Glory — hogs, sheep, cattle, and goats are especially susceptible to poisoning from overdoses of its hallucinogenic seeds.

• Bracken Fern — ruminants can experience difficult breathing and elevated temperatures. Monogastrics show anorexia and in coordination.

• Rhubarb — common symptoms of rhubarb toxicity include staggering, excessive salivation, convulsions and death.

• English Ivy — all species of livestock have exhibited toxicosis from this plant.

• Wild Cherry — death can occur within a few hours following ingestion of wilted leans of wild cherry.

• Yew — the entire yew plant contains poisonous alkaloids and survival of livestock after poisoning is rare.

• Oak — acorns and young shoots can cause severe poisoning, especially if eaten in quantity.

• Mountain Laurel — including Rhododendron and Azalea, these dense woody bushels are highly toxic to ruminant animals.

Pequea Valley Hosts FFA Leadership Contests

CAROL STARK
Special To Lancaster Farming

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Leadership contests were held Thursday, April 3 at Pequea Valley High School.

Leadership contests consist of parliamentary procedure, creed contest, and the following public speaking contests: senior prepared (6-8 minutes), junior prepared (3-5 minutes), and extemporaneous (4-6 minutes).

The Cloister FFA from Ephrata placed first in the parliamentary procedure contest. The Grassland chapter at Garden Spot High School placed second. Hans Herr Chapter at Lancaster Mennonite placed third. Judges for the contest were Kriste Byers, student teacher in agriculture at Twin Valley and Dr. Arba Henry, FFA adviser at Solanco High School.

Members of the Cloister team were Kendra Weaver, Richie Bollinger, Amy Hale, Andy Nolt, Joanne Zimmerman, Connie Nolt, Kevin Stauffer, and Andy Bollinger.

Members of the second place Grassland FFA team were Keri Weaver, Sheldon Hoover, JaLisa Martin, Andy Weaver, Theresa Martin, Tanya Weaver, Debby Becker, and Becki Day.

Members of the Hans Herr team were Phil Eby, David Smoker, Denise Hoover, Jeff Nissley, Beth Wenrich, Steve Harnish, Susie Wenrich, and Tim Charles.

In the senior prepared public speaking contest, first place went to Natalie Miller of the Garden Spot FFA Chapter at Lampeter Strasburg. Dayna Marie Weinhold from the Hans Herr Chapter at Lancaster Mennonite High School (LMH) received second place. Third place went to Jim Pellicco from Solonco and fourth to Shane Sweigart from the Cloister FFA Chapter at Ephrata.

Serving as judges were Lew Brison, retired earth science teacher and Frank Fasana, retired English teacher, both from Solanco and Darryle Hudson, local agribusinessman.

First-year FFA members participated in the junior public speaking contest. These speeches were from 3-5 minutes in length. Placing first was Kim Landis from LMH. Placing second was Laura Nafziger from LMH. Third place went to Jared Garber from LMH.

The extemporaneous public speaking contest winners were first place, Todd Huber from Penn Manor; second to Natalie Miller from Lampeter Strasburg; and third to Kendra Weaver from Ephrata Cloister.

The FFA Creed contest provided first-year FFA members another leadership opportunity. Ten members from five schools competed. Placings are as follows: first to Jason Brenemon, LMH; second to Steve Appel, Penn Manor; and third to Eric Hair, Lampeter Strasburg.

Judging the contest were Dave Smith from Ephrata Agway; Jennifer Eshman, an English teacher from Ephrata High School; and Carol Stark from the Ephrata Review.

The top three speakers from each contest and the top two parliamentary procedure teams are now eligible to compete in the regional level contests at the Mill Creek Lutheran Church at Newmanstown on April 22.

Cider Industry Learns To Make Safer Cider

GENEVA, N.Y. — Pressing changes are coming to the New York State apple cider industry. More than 130 cider makers from seven states and Canada attended a workshop on cider processing and safety at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, N.Y. recently to hear researchers and state officials outline the details behind recent cider scares and iterate the requirements and recommendations for safer cider production.

In the coming year, cider inspections by the NYS Department of Agriculture and Markets (NYSDAM) will be more stringent, as sources of contamination and sanitary practices will be more closely monitored. NYSDAM recommends product coding to facilitate positive identification in the case of a recall. Pasteurization is recommended though not required, and will be more widely used, as producers take every step to maintain consumer confidence in their product.

The workshop was organized by the New York State Apple Association and Cornell University in the wake of the Odwalla case on the West Coast last fall, where one child died and others became ill after drinking unpasteurized apple juice.

"The Experiment Station has been at the forefront of research to control the occurrence of Escherichia coli O 157.H7, the bacteria that has been implicated in several outbreaks of food poisoning, including the Odwalla case. Fresh fruit and vegetables can become contaminated with E. coli when they fall to the ground where farm animals, people, or wildlife defecate. Fecal matter from mammals can contain the bacteria, which is then ingested by humans.

Mike Durando, president of the New York Apple Association, welcomed the standing room only crowd, which organizers estimated included 80 percent of all New York State cider producers. He emphasized that microbiological safety issues affect the whole produce industry, not just freshly made juice like cider.

Jack Guzewich, Chief of Food Protection in the NYS Department of Health, described several food borne pathogens, including E. coli and a parasite called cryptosporidium, noting that cider has generally been considered a "safe" agricultural commodity.

One producer noted his customers had a greater chance of getting hit by lighting at his farm stand than falling ill from drinking his cider, but Mark McLellan, professor of food science at the Experiment Station, who is researching alternative methods of processing cider to provide a safe, quality product, said that "perception is reality" when it comes to the consumer and the risk factor, including the death of a young child is "too great to ignore."

"The industry needs to take prudent measures to protect itself from liability and to protect consumers from possible ill health," he said, noting that the marketplace will drive the decision about safe food. "People are demanding safe food and will buy only the foods that they perceive are safe."

In addition to more prudent harvest and orchard management practices to reduce the chance of E. coli contamination, McLellan and others proposed that producers develop a detailed risk management plan and implementation of a Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point (HACCP) plan.

Judy Anderson, from the NYS Food Venture Center at Cornell, outlined the steps involved in the adoption of a HACCP plan for individual cider operations. HACCP prevents contamination and is already mandated by federal law in the meat, poultry and seafood industries. HACCP is tailored to each operation and requires a thorough analysis of the entire food production operation from "farm to fork," so that possible hazards are identified, monitored, and removed.

At the workshop, Dr. Barbara Rasco from the University of Washington, addressed liability issues. In addition to product coding labeling, she encouraged producers to label their cider as unpasteurized or pasteurized and to include a "friendly" warning statement about the risk factors involved in drinking unpasteurized cider for the very old, very young, and immunosuppressed.

Heat pasteurization will kill microorganisms in liquid and could be the most reliable form of risk management for cider producers, according to Professor Don Splilttstoesser, Cornell microbiologist. He stressed that pasteurization can be accomplished without negatively impacting cider quality. In the past, cider makers have balked at pasteurization, saying it distorts the fresh taste. Pasteurization involves heating cider to 160 degrees F. for 6 seconds and then quickly cooling the product to maintain its fresh taste.

During the afternoon, safe cider making was demonstrated at the Food Science & Technology Pilot plant under the direction of Professor McLellan and Mr. Robert Kime, Pilot Plant Manager. Participants at the workshop were able to see some of the new products available for commercial use, including small-scale pasteurizers and heat-exchangers, accordion presses, and continuous belt presses. They were also able to taste-test the product resulting from various technologies.

Marketing Study Analyzes Advice Given To Farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Corn farmers who followed the recommendations of one of 25 advisory programs earned anywhere from $2.34 to $3.81 per bushel for their 1995 crop, depending on whose advice they followed.

The soybean spread was just as great, with prices ranging from $5.75 to $7.92 per bushel. On average, the corn price earned by the programs was $3.04 per bushel for corn and $6.61 per bushel for soybeans.

This is according to a new, groundbreaking study by agricultural economists Scott Irwin at Ohio State University and Darrel Good at the University of Illinois. Called AgMAS, the study followed the recommendations from 25 different marketing advisory programs. Twice each day, researchers monitored the advice given to farmers via DTN (Data Transmission Network) and Farm Dayta networks.

After recording recommendations for the 1995 crop, they calculated how much farmers would earn following the advice from each.

"Our primary focus was to establish a benchmark for industry-wide performance," Irwin said. "It's something that has not been available before."

Part of the impetus for the study was the change in farm policy and the resulting loss of safety nets, said Good.

"Within the new risk environment that producers face, we believe they will increasingly look to the private sector for assistance, and we think an objective evaluation is useful, " he said.

Results showed that 19 of the 25 services' advice resulted in prices to farmers at or below the cash price for corn at harvest. However, the results also showed about the opposite for soybeans. Only six advisors landed below the cash price at harvest.

"Of course, we're only talking about one year's worth of data, and we can't really draw conclusions yet, especially considering the year," Irwin said.

In fall of 1995, corn prices untraditionally climbed after harvest, due to lower yields and supplies and higher demand than expected.

"Anyone following traditional risk-management marketing practices did poorly because corn prices went through the roof," Irwin said. "They did not do well in recognizing the big changes in '95-'96. One or two did — maybe it was pure luck, but we can't tell from one year's data."

Soybeans, meanwhile, were within historical norms, and more services were on target with advice, Irwin said.

"We need to emphasize that the study addresses just one area of risk that producers face, and we are just working nwith one year's results," Good said.

"We assumed that farmers followed the advice precisely and faithfully," said Tom Jackson, project manager based at Ohio State. When gathering data, Jackson recorded only the information that was specific. "If they said to sell 20 percent of expected production by a certain date, then we could use that. If they made a general comment to go long in the market, we couldn't use that," he said.

The researchers are already gathering data for the 1996 and 1997 marketing years. The 1996 numbers should be released in late fall 1996.

"So within two years, we should have three crop years worth of information on corn and soybeans for farmers to use," Irwin said, which will be more useful than one year's data.

Just as a crop farmer would not make a decision about a hybrid's performance based on yields during a drought year, neither should they draw conclusions about marketing services based on only one year's data, he said.

Anyone who would like a copy of the report can send a $5 check payable to Ohio State University to AgMAS c/o Tom Jackson, 345 Agricultural Administration Building, 2120 Fyffe Road, Columbus, Ohio 43210-1010, or can send a request via fax at (614) 292-0078 or by phone at (614) 292-4865.

Farmers with Internet access can also check the AgMAS web site (http://www.aces.uiuc.edu/~agmas) where the report is posted. Also at that website is a "consensus view indicator" that averages the advice given by services. With this information, farmers can tell if their company is more bullish or bearish than others. Jackson, Good and Irwin also answer "Ask the Experts" questions on the web site.

Ethanol Leads Talks In Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — One of the nation's most abundant renewable fuels is being threatened. Ethanol production and use is currently supported by tax incentives to gas station owners, which includes a 5.4-cent-per-gallon excise tax. Corn growers all over the country are fighting to keep these incentives from being reduced.

Members of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) met with members of Congress to discuss ethanol and other issues affecting the industry as part of a leadership development program sponsored by Novartis Crop Protection, Inc.

"One of the goals of the Novartis Leadership Development Program is to show members of commodity groups, like NCGA, that they have a voice in how agricultural issues are deciced," said Neil Strong, Novartis, agricultural relations.

Participants in the program first completed a training session last August at Novartis headquarters in Greensboro, N.C., where they sharpened their communication skills. They then traveled to Washington, D.C., in March to put those skills to use with members of Congress. In addition to lobbying efforts, participants attended special briefings from USDA and EPA.

Twenty-two members of NCGA attended, representing Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Dakota, Texas and Wisconsin.

We're very pleased with the Companion detachers. Since we started using them along with the Flo Star Claws our Somatic Cell count is lower than it has ever been.
Elmer King, Ronks, PA

Milking is more relaxed, I don't feel as pressured. We get a more consistent milk-out, teat ends are healthy and SCC is lower. Performance is top notch.
Delvin Mast, Grantsville, MD

Now that we have the Companion Detachers and Flo Star Claws I wouldn't want to be without them. We have reduced milking time by 35%!
Leonard Groek, Delta, PA

With these detachers, anybody could milk cows...no chance of overmilking. I would never want to be without them. I can't believe how fast our cows milk-out, even our slowest milkers improved.

DMI Board Approves Motion To Accept Contracts

ROSEMONT, Il. — Dairy Management Inc. (DMI) board of directors recently approved a motion that was ratified by the boards of both the National Dairy Board (NDB) and the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) authorizing DMI staff to negotiate contracts with National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) for DMI to perform on a cost-recovery basis select accounting and administration, meeting planning for concurrent annual meetings, and communications services for NMPF.

Contracts negotiated would be designed to achieve greater efficiency and effectiveness by both organizations with all services to audit and USDA review of all contracts.

NDB and UDIA have a long history of contracting with existing producer and processor funded organizations for services in an effort to avoid duplication within the industry. Existing service contracts include one in which NMPF provides domestic market and economic analysis to DMI as well as international market and economic analysis to US Dairy Export Council (USDEC), a DMI managed membership organization. Additionally, USDEC has phyto-sanitary service contracts with both NMPF and IDFA.

"Experience shows that utilizing present resources makes dairy farmer funded organizations more efficient and effective," said Herman Brubaker, chairman of DMI and UDIA. "Each major national organization plays an important role, but by working together we can eliminate duplication, waste and overlap."

On Sept. 30, the DMI board signaled its intention to pursue additional opportunities to coordinate functions with other industry organizations by voting to conduct a feasibility study to determine where efficiencies could be achieved through contractual agreements for shared resources and services.

The motion approved today reflects the first set of opportunities identified as worth pursuing. The study indicated that a minimum cost savings of a half million dollars of dairy farmers' money could be achieved through contracted service agreements between the two organizations.

DMI indicated it will entertain other opportunities with other industry organizations that can help dairy promotion and dairy farmers.

"Regardless of how some in the industry may try to construe our intentions, this is not a merger," said Maynard Lang, chairman of NDB. "This is an operational agreement that can save farmers' money and provide the direction we need to go as an industry if we are ever going to pull this fragmented industry together."

"Some may see this as a big deal. I see it as a good deal for dairy farmers. This is just another logical step in reducing administrative overhead and eliminating redundancy," said Tom Gallagher, chief executive officer of DMI. "Every study shows that's what dairy farmers want and we intend to pursue this end on their behalf."

Cost savings opportunities were identified in the areas of shared office space between USDEC and NMPF, computer networks, adminstrative, communications and accounting support services. Specific contracts for these types of shared services will be developed in the coming months. In addition, the two organizations will begin looking at the logistics of running concurrent annual meetings for NMPF and the joint boards of DMI, NDB and UDIA this December that would allow dairy farmers to attend both.

Dairy Management, Inc. is the nonprofit organization formed by the National Dairy Board and the United Dairy Industry Association that conducts programs in integrated marketing communications, promotion and research for US-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

N.Y. IPM Program Confers Awards

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Two awards for outstanding work in integrated pest management for vegetables were presented by the New York State IPM Program at the New York State Vegetable Conference in Syracuse.

An individual award was given to Dr. Anthony Shelton, a Cornell University entomologist. A team award went to the Rochester, New York-based retailer Wegmans Food Markets, Inc., represented by Bill Pool, its manager of food safety and regulation, and to vegetable growers Lynn Fish and Kris and Jim Gray, of Shortsville; Doug Mason, of Williamson; and Alan and Jeffrey Werner, of Rush.

The vegetable conference award ceremony was one of six ceremonies scheduled at various grower meetings in 1997 to present a total of eight "Excellence in IPM Awards." This was the second year such awards have been given.

"The purpose of these awards is to honor individuals and organizations for their pursuit of new systems of integrated pest management and their efforts to share their experiences with others," said Jim Tette, director of the New York State IPM Program. He was joined by Cornell University College of Agriculture and Life Sciences dean Daryl B. Lund in conferring the two vegetable IPM awards.

IPM Individual Award

• Tony Shelton, Geneva, N.Y. — The award given to Shelton recognizes his influence in shaping the vegetable IPM Program in New York and IPM programs nationwide since the 1970s. In the early days of IPM Shelton, who is now an associate director of research and a professor of entomology at Cornell, developed and implemented scouting procedures and thesholds for nine important insect pests of crucifers, onions, and sweet corn.

Shelton's research has included insect-resistant plant varieties, monitoring of insect pests, insecticide resistance, conservation and enhancement of natural enemies, use of pathogens and cultural practices to reduce insect pressure, and encouragement of the adoption of IPM. He has played an active role in teaching farmers how to make use of the research results and has spent considerable efort in modifying techniques to fit particular farm situations.

IPM Team Award

The team award stems from a cooperative effort in which the marketplace is effectively telling consumers about the good stewardship of New York's vegetable growers. This project began in 1995, when Wegmans Food Markets began to offer fresh-market sweet corn that was identified as IPM-grown in one of its stores. This trial was so successful that Wegmans sought to expand in two ways: 1) offer the fresh-market sweet corn in all of its Rochester-area stores, and 2) work with one of its vegetable suppliers, Comstock Michigan Fruit, to provide IPM-grown processed vegetables that would be labeled as such and would be sold in all of its New York and Pennsylvania stores.

The growers receiving the IPM award all supplied IPM-grown vegetables to Wegmans in 1996. In addition, they volunteered many hours of their time to serve on a committee with Wegmans representatives and Cornell folks to set the standards for growing IPM-labeled sweet corn. This committee formulated the "elements of IPM" for sweet corn (a list of protocols for growers to follow), identified areas in which participating growers would need more education on IPM methods, set goals for the project, and established the documentation process by which growers could verify their achievement of the project goals.

Representatives from Comstock Michigan Fruit joined in the process and helped to develop elements for six processed and frozen vegetables to be sold under IPM labels: beets, cabbage for kraut, carrots, corn, peas, and snap beans. Comstock Michigan Fruit, long a proponent of IPM, was honored with an "Excellence in IPM Award" in 1996.

• Bill Pool, Wegmans Food Markets, Inc., Rochester, N.Y. — The initiation by Wegmans Food Markets of the program to document and market the use of IPM by their suppliers, led by Bill Pool, its manager of food safety and regulation, will have continuing and far-reaching effects on the practice of IPM by growers in New York and across the United States. Already Wegmans is creating among consumers a greater awareness of the wise use of IPM in agriculture. Colleen Wegman, category manager for natural foods, has provided leadership within the company to move in the direction of IPM-labeled products. Bill Pool has provided the "hands-on" leadership in relations with Comstock Michigan Fruit, Cornell University, and the growers.

• Lynn Fish, Shortsville, N.Y. — Lynn Fish grew up on the Shortsville farm he now owns. Over half of his 200 acres are planted in sweet corn. The remaining acres are planted in a variety of fresh-market vegetables — tomatoes, summer and winter squash, cucumbers, pumpkins, gourds, and 13 varieties of hot peppers. In addition to having sold produce to Wegmans for the past 10 years, Lynn and his wife, his mother, and his sister operate four vegetable stands on the property. Lynn is not a newcomer when it comes to practicing IPM. The majority of his late corn acreage has been planted in a rye cover crop for the past 10 years, and he uses rotation on all of his fresh-market vegetables beside corn. He has always been interested in learning more about the need to better manage his pesticides. In 1996 Lynn hired a scout to help him monitor for European corn borer.

• Kris and Jim Gray, Shortsville, N.Y. — Kris and Jim Gray own and manage Fresh-Ayr Farm Market — over 1,000 acres in Shortsville — in partnership with Kris' father George Ayres and her brother Jeremy Ayres. They began selling vegetables to Wegmans Food Markets in 1990. The Grays have been using IPM practices for the past four or five years. The only change necessitated by their participation in the IPM project with Wegmans was an increase in record keeping — additional documentation of their scouting and pest thresholds.

• Doug Mason, Williamson, N.Y. — Doug Mason is a sixth-generation farmer from Williamson, New York. His family has farmed the same land since 1816. Mason Farms consists of 350 to 400 acres of muck, clay, sand, and upland soils on which Doug growns 30 to 40 different crops. Doug started using IPM methods 20 years ago with the use of scouting in his fruit crops. He is a member of the Wayne County Pest Management Cooperative, which disseminates information about fruit IPM. Doug has also participated in integrated crop management practices for potatoes and peppers, using many IPM practices. He now hires a private crop consultant to help him with his pest management decisions. Doug rotates 80 percent of his vegetable crops and sometimes plants his muck in a cover crop to give it a rest. He has been experimenting with the use of plastic covers and drip irrigation on raised beds for the past 10 years, with good results on some crops.

• Alan and Jeffrey Werner, Rush, N.Y. — Alan and Jeffrey Werner are brothers who formed a partnership in 1988 to farm 450 acres in Rush, New York. While fresh-market sweet corn is their largest crop, they sell several other fresh-market vegetables. One-third of their acreage is planted in small grains, used mostly for rotation. They also have 30,000 square feet in greenhouses, where they sell bedding plants. Werner Farms was the "test farm" for Wegmans in the summer of 1995, supplying the first IPM-labeled fresh-market sweet corn to be marketed by Wegmans. In 1996 Jeffrey and Alan supplied seven Wegmans stores with IPM-grown sweet corn every day during July, August, and September. The Werners use a crop consultant to scout their corn and appreciate his keeping them informed of weather developments as a part of his pest management recommendations. The Werner brothers were already using several IPM methods as well as integrated crop management methods prior to their involvement in this effort. They use cover crops and rotation, and have scouted for fall armyworm at the silk stage. Sticky cards are used in their greenhouses for pest monitoring. Only one change was necessitated by Jeffrey's and Alan's participation in the IPM project: the addition of scouting for insect egg masses.

New Corn Hybrids For Season

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. — High yields...outstanding disease tolerance...quality selection — to many, these words mean nothing. To corn growers, these words mean everything. Agripro understands the corn growers' needs and is proud to satisfy them with 19 new corn hybrids for 1997.

"These hybrids represent years of effort and dedication from Agripro research to provide corn growers with the best possible seed," said Dr. Mark Jacques, manager of product development for Agaripro Seeds.

"At Agripro, we realize growing conditions and management practices can change from one field to the next, and the corn grower's tendency to plant two or more hybrids a year," Dr. Jacques said, "so we feel our 1997 corn lineup offers the best of all worlds — high yield, outstanding disease tolerance and quality selection."

AP 9055 exhibits large, girthy ears with good test weight and yield capability. Its 80-day (80 MN), medium-short plant provides excellent staygreen and standability, flowers early and finishes fast for good northern movement. In addition, AP 9055 has good tolerance to 1st and 2nd brood corn borer.

AP 9121 displays outstanding test weight, yield capability and grain quality. Its 87-day (90 MN) relative maturity offers growers a medium-short plant with excellent staygreen, stalk and root strength, low ear placement, consistent earing, and the ability to remain healthy through harvest. AP 9121 has good tolerance to 1st and 2nd brood corn borer and is a must for highly productive soils.

AP 9177 is a 94-day (95 MN) relative maturity corn hybrid with exceptional new genetics, high yield potential and high yield-to-moisture ratio. It exhibits outstanding agronomics, stalks, roots, and plant integrity through harvest. AP 9177 provides good tolerance to 1st brood corn borer.

EX 9282 offers industry-leading standability, staygreen, overall disease tolerance and late-season plant intactness. Agripro's 99-day (100 MN) experimental hybrid is a medium-tall plant with unique-appearing, erect, narrow leaves that performs very well in high populations.

AP 9300 sets the new standard of comparison for 100-day (105 MN) corn hybrids. Its high yields and rapid grain drydown are a result of very large, girthy ears on a unique, attractive, medium height plant with husks that open well at maturity. AP 9300 offers good tolerance to gray leaf spot and 1st brood corn borer.

AP 326 HO, a 100-day (105 MN) TC Blend™ high oil option, is widely adapted with good plant health. It provides healthy, intact plants at harvest and quick grain drydown. AP 326 HO produces consistent, high oil grain and is a good silage choice.

AP 9340 supplies increased yield capability and superior grain quality. This 101-day (105 MN) relative maturity hybrid delivers large, deep kernels with a flexible ear and small cob for heavy test weight grain. AP 9340 exhibits excellent heat and drought stress tolerance and good tolerance to 1st brood corn borer.

AP 9460 is a dynamic 107-day (110 MN) relative maturity hybrid. It delivers tremendous high yield capability under high yield conditions. AP 9460 supplies large, deep kernels with a flexible ear, exhibits good tolerance to 1st brood corn borer, and handles the potential stress of dryland conditions very well.

AP 9477, a unique, top-performing 108-day (110 MN) hybrid with strong early vigor, provides a healthy plant throughout the season and finishes fast with quick grain drydown. AP 9477 displays moderate flex ears with a large deep grain on a small cob.

AP 9489 is a 108-day (110 MN) hybrid with long flex ears, deep kernels and heavy test weight. Combined with its industry-leading heat and drought stress tolerance, AP 9489 is a top performer for the Northern High Plains.

AP 9511 IMI, a 109-day (110 MN) "IMI-safe" hybrid with tolerance to Resolve® and Contour® herbicides, is widely adapted from the High Plains to Ohio with very high yield potential and quick grain drydown. It provides consistent performance in high-yield or high-stress environments at a wide range of plant populations.

AP 9560 HO, a 110-day (115 MN) relative maturity, is the TC Blend™ high oil version of AP 9560. It displays exceptional response to high fertility, top management and good soils. AP 9560 HO is widely adapted from Nebraska and Kansas to the East Coast.

EX 9550, a 110-day (115 MN) experimental, produces medium height plants with excellent health, roots and stalks. EX 9550's new genetics, very large ears and kernels provide very high yields when managed for peak performance.

HY 9646 is a new early to mid-maturing corn for the South (111-115 days). It is widely adapted with outstanding yield potential across different environments and soil types. HY 9646 has very good heat and drought stress tolerance, excellent plant health and staygreen, and good tolerance to gray leaf spot.

AP 9572 delivers a high-yield punch for tougher soils. This 111-day hybrid is similar to AP 9560 and AP 9565 with added stress tolerance for tougher conditions. AP 9572 displays very large ear size with exceptional girth and good flex.

AP 9590 delivers exceptional yield capability with excellent gray leaf spot tolerance. This 112-day relative maturity hybrid supplies very healthy, clean, intact plants throughout the growing season. AP 9590 has large, girthy ears (18-20 rows around) which respond well to higher plant populations.

AP 9616 supplies outstanding yield potential for a full-season hybrid. In addition to its 114-day relative maturity, AP 9616 exhibits good corn borer tolerance, excellent gray leaf spot tolerance and late-season plant health.

AP 9636 is a 114-day relative maturity hybrid which provides an excellent high-yield punch with good agronomics. AP 9636 displays a large, robust plant type with excellent plant health, huge ear size potential, excellent girth and flex, and late-season plant integrity.

HY 9919V, a new mid-season maturity (115-118 day) corn for the South and southern Corn Belt, is widely adapted with very good yield potential. Hy 9919V is an excellent choice for grain or silage and has very good tolerance to maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV) and gray leaf spot.

Chemist Lab Participates In National Food Safety Program

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — In an effort to assure the continued safety of the U.S. food supply, the Maryland Department of Agriculture's State Chemist Section is cooperating with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) in a program to test for pesticide residues in food commodities and milk consumed by the public, with emphasis on foods consumed by infants and children. The Maryland State Chemist Lab is one of 10 state laboratories asked to participate in this Pesticide Data Program.

"This is quite an endorsement of the high level of equipment and technical expertise that exist in our State Chemist Laboratory in Maryland. Our laboratory is recognized as being one of the very best in the country," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley.

Between now and the year 2000 the Maryland State Chemist Section will weekly obtain six to eight food commodity, primarily fruits and vegetables, and milk samples from the major food distributors in the state, and will perform a chemical residue analysis on the samples. The Maryland results will be sent to USDA for inclusion as part of the national program results.

"Fortunately, in the United States we have one of the safest food supplies of any place in the world. The purpose of this study on pesticide residues in food commodities and milk will be to maintain our high level of safety and quality and to give federal or state government agencies the information they need to protect public health," Riley said.

The Maryland State Chemist Laboratory is one of the oldest consumer protection agencies in Maryland, having been in continuous operation since 1847. The State Chemist Section regularly registers products, examines product labels, secures package content samples at random from retail outlets and analyzes pet food, animal feed, commercial fertilizers, pesticides, soil conditioners, composts and liming materials for standards established under Maryland laws governing quality, content and labeling.

For more information on Maryland's participation in the Pesticide Data Program and the other activities of the State Chemist Laboratory, contact Warren R. Bontoyan, State Chemist, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410)841-2721.

Record Number Attend Grain Sorghum Conference

ABERNATHY, Texas — It was a banner year for attendance at the Sorghum Conference which was held in New Orleans, La., recently.

More than 400 people registered for the event, which was combined for the firt time with the Biennial Research and Utilization Conference. The conference was hosted by National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) and the Sorghum Improvement Conference of North America (SICNA).

Bill Kubecka, NGSP president, opened the session with words of encouragement and challenge.

"This year's theme, A Parade of New Ideas, reflects the magnitude of everyone participating — producers, university researchers, agribusiness representatives and our customers — all stakeholders in the sorghum industry," Kubecka said.

"This past year we saw sorghum acres rebound dramatically," he said, but the challenges ahead are still great.

Contributing to the rebound was the success NGSP had in shaping the new farm bill. Sorghum was the only commodity that didn't take a cut in program payments, averting a $9 per acre decrease or a total of $26 million for U.S. sorghum producers.

"This is a testament to the fact that when we as farmers organize and speak in a unified voice with a factual message, we can achieve great success," Kubecka said.

Over the past 10 years, however, federal sorghum research dollars have declined, even when many studies have shown that the rate of return on investment of this kind in agriculture research is typically 40 percent.

"Sorghum ranks fourth in dollar value among all grains, however, commodities with fewer acres and lower value rank ahead of us in total research dollars," Kubecka said. "We intend to change this."

Increasing sorghum research dollars is one of the top priorities for the association in the coming years. This is essential so that sorghum technology keeps pace with all other commodities in profitability, he said.

"It is up to everyone to work together so that sorghum acres can stabilize and even increase. When this is achieved, we all reap the benefits. As producers, we're able to use the latest in plant technology; agribusiness is able to reinvest in even more advanced technology; and our research community remains at the forefront of discovering new information," Kubecka said.

Tim Lust, NGSP director of marketing and research, said that one of the greatest challenges facing sorghum producers is meeting customers' needs.

"It's not a matter of can we?" he said, "but, what will happen if we don't?"

The poultry industry knows what it wants. The food industry knows what it wants. The cattle feeding industry knows what it wants. They all want a light colored grain and the sorghum industry knew that 12 years ago, Lust said. In addition to color, small berries and tannins have been a problem for many years.

"We have the genetics and technology to meet our customers wishes, so why aren't we changing? Tradition," Lust said. "We've never done it that way before."

Producers have other perceived problems, but Lust questioned whether they are real problems or just excuses. The problems can be overcome through seed companies, producers and merchandisers working closely together, "and it can be achieved rather quickly," he said.

"We must get more involved to help supply the customer what he wants," Lust said. "We have to help the local elevator provide a quality product to a major customer at a fair price."

Identity-preserved grains shipped in containers could eliminate stored grain damage and quality questions that occur today, he said. Foreign material, small berries and tannins are problems, but by segregating the grain, it is possible to find customers who are disciplined and trustworthy enough to make it beneficial to both parties.

"We can overcome the customer problems, but it has to be worth enough to the customer that he helps you, too," Lust said.

Transition to non-tannin sorghums didn't happen overnight, but it's a good indication of how the sorghum industry has changed to meet the needs of the customer, he said.

"You need to be the one who is taking care of your customer's needs. Please be a problem solver, not part of the problem," Lust said. "We are in this together, and we must realize that change must take place rapidly."

Three producers on a panel explained how they had already recognized the need for change — in markets, production practices and varieties — to make their operations successful. The panel consisted of Clay Cogburn of Happy, Texas, Donald Wallin of Courtland, Kan., and Paul Gore of Vandalia, Mo.

Gore doesn't raise any milo for domestic consumption. It all goes down the river. However, he said he realizes that the North American Free Trade Agreement and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade might change his market, and he has to be ready to change his plan.

Cogburn grows only white food-grade milo and ships it all over the United States and to other countries for a variety of uses. He said his family is one of experimenters, always striving to do a better job a better way and that includes a recent shift toward no-till.

Wallin has found minimum or no-till and ridges are the key to a successful operation for his family operation. Working the ridges ensures a mellow soil to work with and then timely applications of fertilizer and water from June to August help get healthy stands to harvest.

61 Bulls Average $1,487 At Sale

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center's 24th Annual Performance Tested Bull Sale was held Friday, March 28, at 10:30 a.m. with a capacity crowd, including 133 registered bidders from 10 different states.

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Chris Herr addressed the crowd and brought greetings from the Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius and the department.

Dr. Paul Wangsness, senior associate dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State University, addressed the crowd and brought greetings from Penn State.

Dr. Dan Hagan, interim department head for the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, described the cooperative effort that makes the bull test possible. He also listed some of the administrative changes occuring in the college and announced that searches for two new faculty members have begun in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science. Ollie Weis, president of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association (PCA), thanked everyone for supporting Pennsylvania's performance testing programs and then presented PCA's award for top indexing bull over all breeds to Wilhelmina Voight. The bull led off the sale and was the top-indexing Angus bull. C. Eugene Wingert of St. Thomas purchased the bull for $2,300. The second high-indexing Angus bull, consigned by Penn State, sold to Steve Paul of Klingerstown for $2,400.

The top selling Angus bull was consigned by Circle Oak Angus. This January-born Angus bull recorded the top weaning and adjusted yearling weight among the Angus and sold to Mike Griffith of Pipestem, W. Va. for $2,950. The second highest selling Angus bull was consigned by Joe and Bobbi McMullen and sold to Deborah Hoover of Tyrone for $2,600. The 30 Angus bulls grossed $44,600, averaging $1,486.

The 14 Polled Herefords sold for a total of $21,900, averaging $1,565. The top-indexing Polled Hereford bull was bred by Stone Ridge Farm of Livingstone Manor, N.Y. and sold to John, Judy, and Frederick Norris of Midland for $2,000. The second high-indexing Polled Hereford, bred by Dan Dye of Amity, returned the top price of the day. This top-gaining Polled Hereford bull sold to Eleanor Boosel for $3,500. The second highest selling Polled Hereford from Red Rose Polled Herefords, Stevens, was the second fastest gaining Hereford and sold to Eugene Sapp of Buckhannon, W.Va. for $2,200.

The 12 Simmental bulls grossed $16,050 to average $1,338. The top-indexing Simmental, consigned by William and Karen Flagg, was the top-gaining bull over all breeds and the top-selling Simmental. He was purchased by Barlow Knoll Acres-Hidden Oaks Farm of Gettysburg for $2,500. The second highest price paid for a Simmental bull was shared by bulls consigned by Foust Hidden Oak Farm and by Lawrence Bullis. The successful bidders on these two lots were James Irvin of Tyrone and Harold Hopkins of Carbondale, respectively. The top-indexing Charolais consigned by Bratton Char Farms sold to Shadow Springs Farm of Havre DeGrace, Md. for $1,450.

The four Shorthorns averaged $1,025, and the long Buelingo sold to Allen Williams of Pilisgrove, N.J. for $900.

The sale was a success with 61 bulls averaging $1,487. In the 1996 Bull Sale, 53 performance tested bulls sold for an average of $1,268.

For more information about Pennsylvania's performance testing programs, contact Glenn Eberly, Director-Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Rd., State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857.

Prepare To Plant Corn

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Now is a good time to review some important planter tips and make final adjustments. The following is a checklist of important aspects to review for planting.

•Planting depth — Planting depth is as important as seed selection in corn production. As we move toward earlier planting and more no-till, the theory always exists that planting at depths of less than two inches will improve emergence. Planting corn too shallow can cause or increase problems like exposed nodal roots, rootless corn, herbicide injury, stunted growth and yield loss. A good way to determine planting depth is to measure the length of the mesocotyl (seed to the crown roots) plus three-quarter inch. Corn should be planted between 1.5 to 2.5 inches deep. It is very important to make sure that the seed is actually being placed in this range.

•Planting date — A specific planting date is not as important as soil temperature. The soil temperature should be at least 50 F before you begin. This will reduce the risks of drought stress and frost damage.

•Populations — The factors that should most determine your planting population are the ear-flex capabilities of the hybrids you plant and the yield potential of the particular ground being planted. Mycogen hybrids 2674 and 7059, for example, need a high population to perform at maximum potential. On the other hand, Mycogen hybrids 2725 and 2815 can perform well at low to medium populations. Yield potential of a particular farm should be determined by yield history, fertility and water-holding capacity of the soil.

•Calibration — The final factor to check before you plant should be the planter. Make certain that the finger pickups, seed plates or vacuum systems are working correctly. The proper spacing between plants in a row is very important for maximum yields. If an insecticide is being used, the metering devices should be calibrated. If you are over-applying or under-applying an insecticide, it could cost you money. The final thing to check is depth controls of no-till equipment, down-pressure springs, gage wheels and packer wheels. This will help place the seed where you want it. Now is a good time to check all of the above factors so that you can ensure a successful spring planting.

Don't Let Spring Cleaning Get The Best Of You

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Don't let spring cleaning give you a headache, said Joe Heimlich, Ohio State University extension environmental specialist.

"People should observe the cautions on labels and look for key words on cleaning materials," Heimlich said. "Wear gloves' suggests a corrosive hazard, and 'harmful if swallowed' usually indicates a toxic material."

The spring-cleaning tradition began in cold climates where a home's windows and doors were closed for the winter. The coal or wood furnace dust generated inside and dirt carried in from the outside were removed in a thorough cleaning once warmer weather arrived.

Whatever cleaning supplies you choose for this rite of spring, make sure you have good ventilation. "Clean" does not have a color or scent, Heimlich said. Perfumes, fragrances and dyes are added to cleaning supplies to satisfy the belief that lemon and pine or blue and green mean clean. Buy they also alert the user about the quantity of cleanser being used — too dark a color or too strong a smell means too much. If you get dizzy or a headache, you probably need more ventilation.

The room should be aired between cleansers, and you should not mix cleansers. Few people intentionally mix them, but can do it inadvertently by using two different cleansers to clean close surfaces — a toilet bowl and sink, for example. The air vapors from the two cleaners can cause problems when combined, Heimlich said. Spring cleaners should read labels and know which products to avoid mixing.

People who use home cleaning remedies — mixtures of vinegar, flour, water, salt and other natural products — rather than commercial chemical cleaners also need to be cautious. Most homemade cleaners require a lot more scrubbing to thoroughly clean dirty surfaces and often do not kill bacteria or germs as well as commercial products, he said.

"Just because it's put together at home doesn't mean it will be better than a purchased cleaner." Heimlich said.

Finally, directions on use should be followed. More does not mean cleaner or easier. Larger quantities usually leave more cleanser residue on surfaces. When exposed to built-up residue, some people could have allergic reactions or headaches, and long-term contact could cause other health problems, he said.

"The ultimate rule people should follow with cleaning supplies is buy what you need, follow the directions, use it all and dispose of containers properly," Heimlich said.

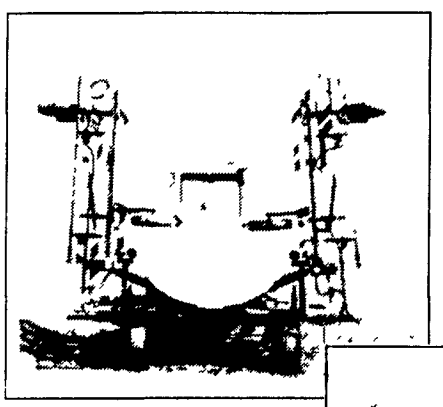
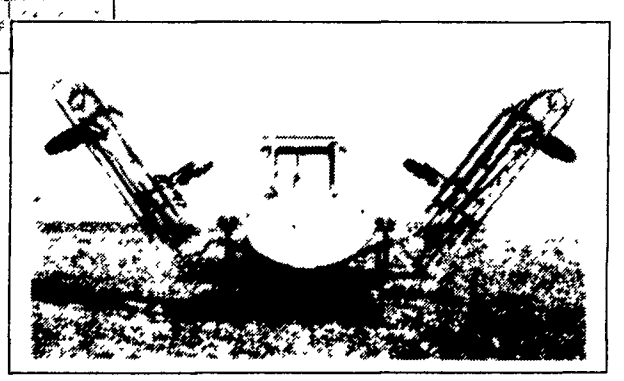
Twin-Frame Crop Sprayer

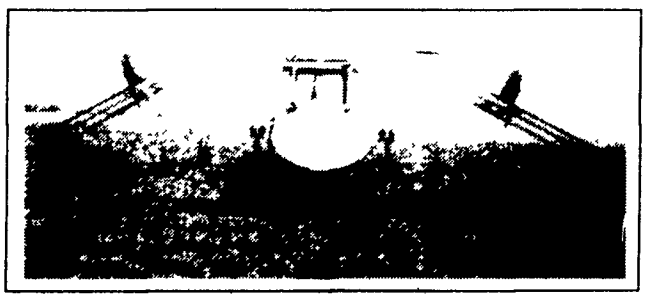


An Innovative Idea For Accurate Crop Spraying

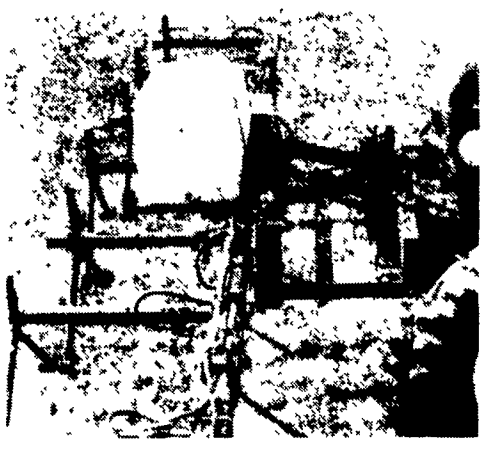
Complete hydraulic fold without leaving the tractor seat No chemicals running down your arms as with hand folded booms Boom sizes range from 30' 80' in width



5 section flexibility
Each section of the boom floats on its own gauge wheel assembly Tool bar frames are built of rugged 3" square tubing with a rec tangular tube main frame and hitch. 60' multi fold and 80' sprayers have 7 sections



Built by Farmers for Farmers



SPOT-SHOT can save up to 90% on chemical costs and more important helps keep the environment safe! Our SEEING-EYE sprays only when a weed is there, with an option to spray lower weeds manually and even can be used for broadcast application. SPOT-SHOT mounts up front and you control the height hydraulically. Individually SPOT-SHOT units are also available.

For side dress applications, Progressive offers a knife-less coulter exclusively for their toolbars. The coulter has a heavy duty down pressure spring and a 20" blade. Liquid fertilizer is injected directly into the blade opening with a stainless steel tube. Dry fertilizer units available.

The Best Just Got Better

Added improvements provide the versatility to incorporate chemicals, manage residue and control weeds.
- Precision depth control across the entire working width for uniform seedbed preparation.
- Better penetration with less weight cuts your fuel costs
- Shallow concavity blades reduce compaction.
- Open frame design allows residue to pass through machine smoothly and quickly
- 19 to 33-foot versions available in standard flex wing or cushion gang versions.

You can count on us for quality tillage equipment, genuine Case IH parts, professional service support and flexible financing.

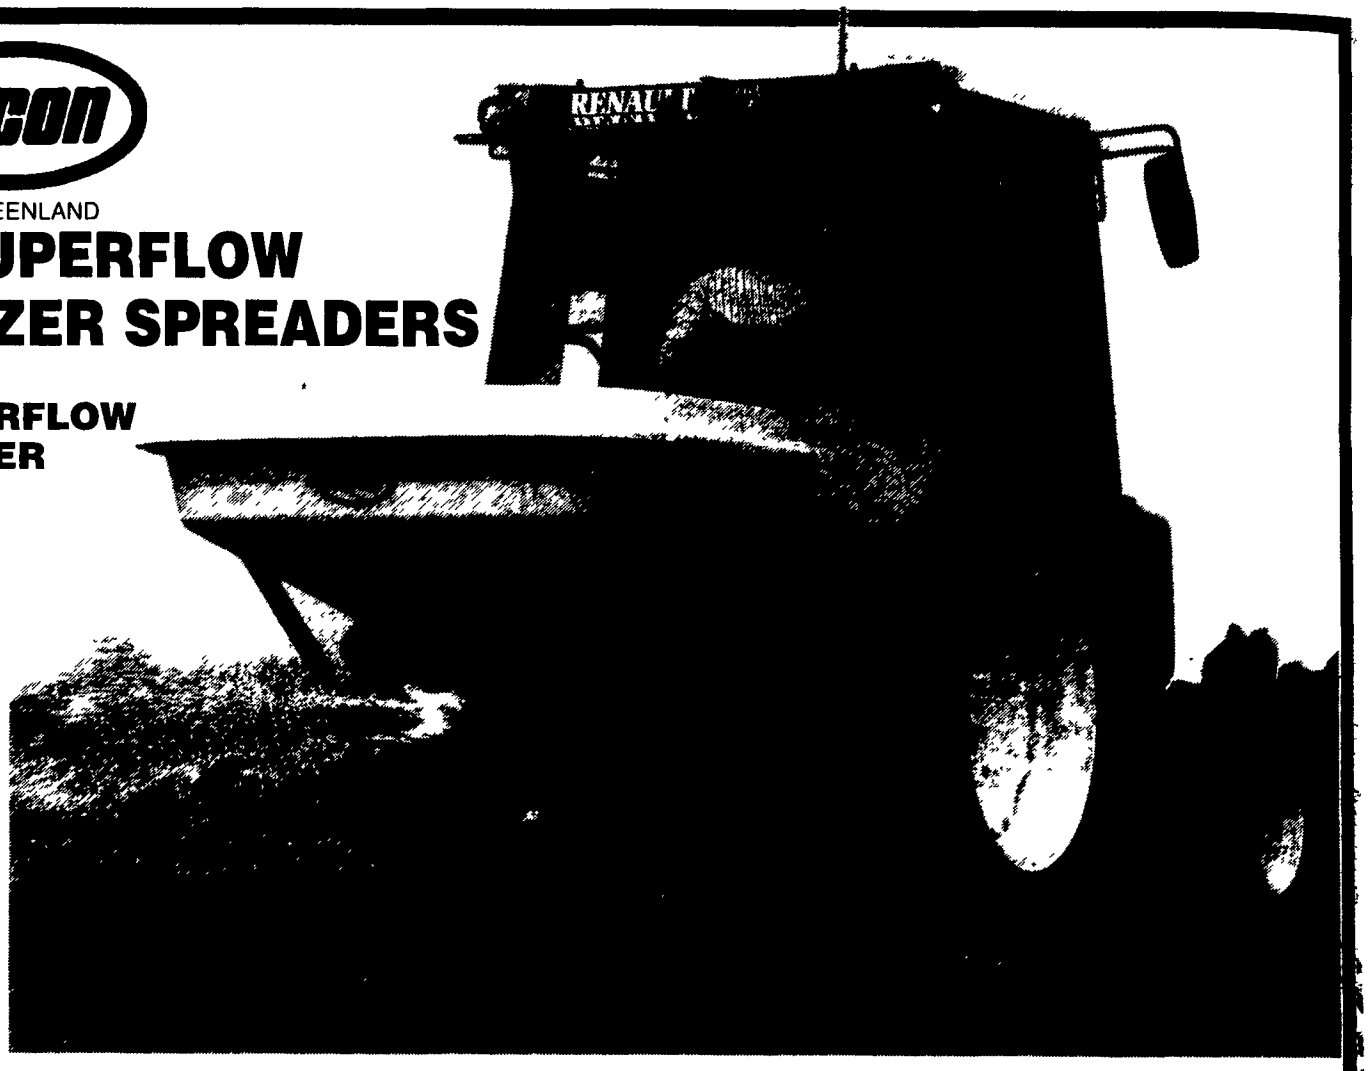
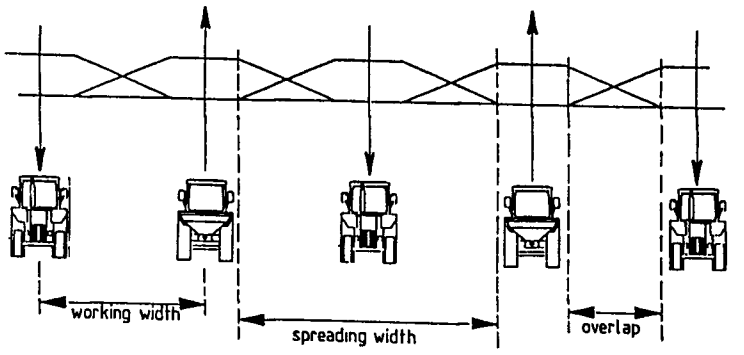
Vicon
GREENLAND
SUPERFLOW FERTILIZER SPREADERS



Vicon SUPERFLOW SEEDER

Spreaders are the most accurate broadcast spreaders in the world. The unique pendulum action keeps the spread pattern close to the rear of the machine while at the same time providing a symmetrical pattern on both sides.



The pattern allows "back and forth" as well as "around and around" operation. The "truncated" pattern offsets inaccurate overlap problems, eliminating streaking.

Vicon
Seeder spreaders are easily calibrated for extremely accurate performance.

Rust free polyester hoppers, "DURA-COAT" enamel on painted components with stainless steel metering plates, precision adjustments, and a variety of spouts for a multitude of applications have earned Vicon Superflow seeder spreaders a world-wide reputation as the premier broadcast spreader.

Versatile Vicon spreaders band material in vineyards, orchards and nurseries, as well as spread lime, and salt and sand for winter use.

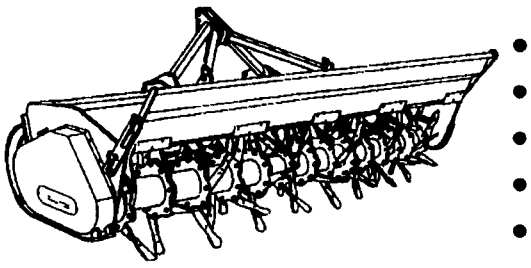
M&W DYNA-DRIVE



- Fast
- Versatile
- Economical
- Durable
- Innovative

The M&W DYNA-DRIVE is a unique ground-driven, rotary, surface cultivator that creates the ideal seedbed in a single pass at speeds up to 10 MPH. The dual speed twin rotor system shatters the soil without smearing, slabbing, or crusting while it maintains residue levels high enough to meet soil conservation compliance requirements. Available in working widths ranging from 6'8" to 16' 1", the DYNA-DRIVE can cover up to 16 acres per hour, saving time money and effort.

At Last...
...a Boom Sprayer for multi-crop produce farmer that is affordable and will do the job from sweet corn to melon crops.

With features like...
- 24 ft. one-side boom that allows for 50ft. coverage between drive rows.
- Easy boom height adjustment from 2ft. to 7 1/2 ft. for sweet corn.
- Hydraulic leveling on the go allows uniform boom height from the crop.
- 280 PSI, 28 GPM 3 diaphragm pump with power shaft for quick hookup.
- Adjustable wheel spacing and tongue height.
- Rubber mounted boom to absorb shock

With the high cost of chemicals, the right Sprayer is needed

WHITE AGCO

THE BEST LIGHT TRACTOR COMING AND GOING.

Because chore tractors spend as much time in reverse as forward, we made sure the 6055 came ready for both

Our standard 16x16 synchronized creeper transmission with fully synchronized reverser matches 12 forward speeds to 12 identical reverse speeds, including creeper speeds. So you'll shift faster, easier, and with less wear and tear

Plus our Hydraulic Servo clutch is so advanced, it actually adjusts itself. And it's designed with a cerametillic button clutch disc that's more than a match for the heat generated by repeated clutch engagement

So come on down to your White dealer for a close-up of the tractor that has them all beat. No matter which way you look at it

SMART MOVE

Make all the right moves for mowing quality and time saving trimability

The new mid-sized Model 600 series (12.5 or 16 hp) with advanced duel-hydrostatic drive is among the nine models from which to choose, 12.5 to 28 hp, 44" to 72" cutting widths.
Move on to a GRASSHOPPER® and enjoy fast high-quality mowing for years to come.
The "right moves" come easy so you can trim as you mow and reach where others can't go. Zero-radius maneuverability, square-corner turnability and out-front reach-ability with "no-shift" forward/reverse.
Comfortable and simple to operate. Built for rugged conditions and season-after-season reliability. Make the smart move - make your next mower a GRASSHOPPER®
Available with the Combo Mulching™ Deck* lets you mulch, discharge or bag with the same deck for superior results in varying conditions.
The Quick-D Tatch® mounting system* lets you change decks and add a full selection of year-round attachments in minutes without tools.

What the cost-conscious drive to work

Few tractors can contribute more to your bottom line than a John deere 5000 Series. That's because these 40- 50 and 60 PTO hp tractors have traditional John Deere reliability and operating ease. And prices to challenge well known domestics and imports. Plus a long list of standard features like wet disk brakes, 9 speed collar shift transmission, planetary final drives and power steering. Test drive one soon.

CLAAS JAGUAR

Now Over 10,000 Produced

Claas combines incorporate the latest in technology for unrivalled forage harvest performance. Extremely high powered Mercedes engine provide power for toughest operating conditions. A new cab design makes for an ideal working environment. Change-over times are quicker than ever to maximize your productive time.

Automatic greasing cuts downtime considerably.

All in all it adds up to the highest performance available, with a throughput of the JAGUAR 880 of around 170 t/h in corn, more comfort and of course a better return on your invested capital.

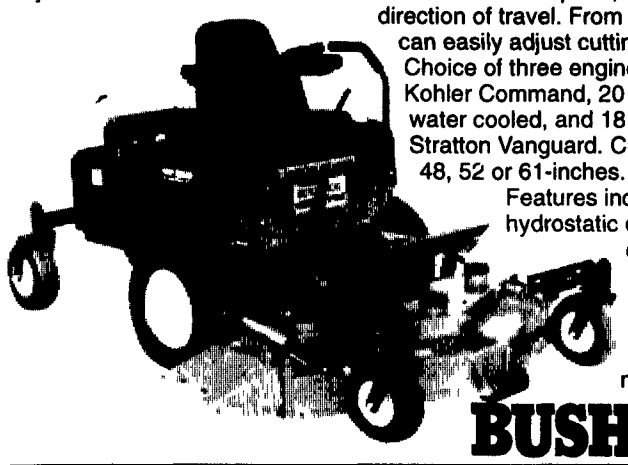
TRUE ZERO TURN MOWERS THAT MAKE GRASS CUTTING A PLEASURE.

Bush Hog Turf Champ zero turn mowers are a pleasure to operate. All controls are right beside you. And the swing-away control levers give you easy access to the drivers seat. These levers control speed, braking and direction of travel. From the seat you can easily adjust cutting height. Choice of three engines: 22 HP Kohler Command, 20 HP Kawasaki water cooled, and 18 HP Briggs & Stratton Vanguard. Cutting widths: 48, 52 or 61-inches.



Features include: dual path hydrostatic drives, 90° deck tilt for easy service, 6-gallon gas tanks, forward speeds up to 8 mph.

BUSH HOG

BEST TURF MOWERS FOR A QUALITY CUT.

BUSH HOG® DIVISION OF ALLIED PRODUCTS CORPORATION

The Bush Hog TD Series Tri-Deck Finishing Mowers are available in 15 or 17-foot cutting widths and are ideal for sod growers, golf courses, land owners, municipalities and recreational sites.

These mowers are designed for precise cutting on even or uneven terrain... they feature a 30° up and 10° down wing flex and are rated for 40 and 45 minimum tractor horsepower. Gearbox rpm is 540, and deck construction is rugged; 7-gauge steel

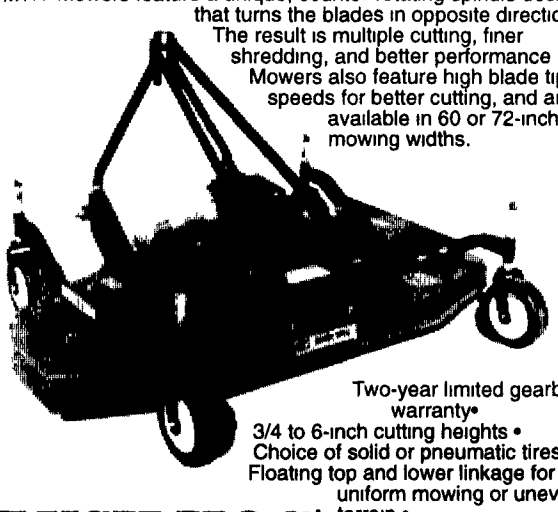
THESE MULCHING MOWERS DO A THOROUGH MULCHING JOB.

MTH Mowers feature a unique, counter-rotating spindle design that turns the blades in opposite directions The result is multiple cutting, finer shredding, and better performance MTH Mowers also feature high blade tip speeds for better cutting, and are available in 60 or 72-inch mowing widths.

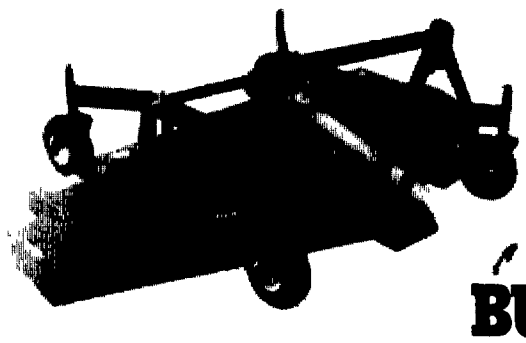


Two-year limited gearbox warranty•
3/4 to 6-inch cutting heights •
Choice of solid or pneumatic tires •
Floating top and lower linkage for uniform mowing or uneven terrain •
Front and rear rollers to prevent scalping •

BUSH HOG

The ATH AIR TUNNEL FINISH MOWERS CUTS LAWNS FAST & EASY.

With Bush Hog's ATH Air Tunnel Finishing Mowers, cutting large lawns is fast and easy. Adjustments are minimal and these mowers give you the features needed to tackle heavy grass and uneven terrain. Heavy, 7-gauge steel deck plate, floating top linkage and lower link allow uniform cutting. High blade tip speeds and 1-1/2 or 2-1/4 inch blade overlap assure clean cutting. Select a 60, 72 or 90-inch model to match your tractor and cutting needs.



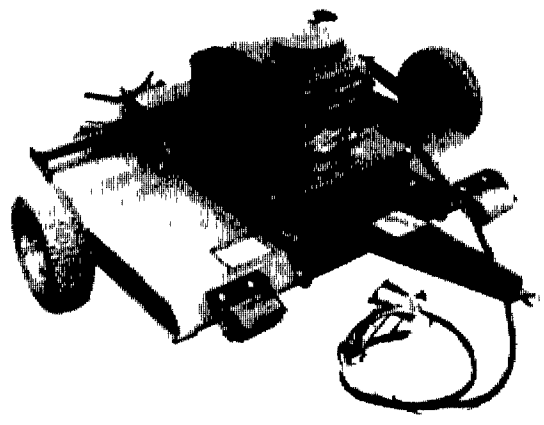
BUSH HOG

FLAT DECK FINISH MOWERS for SMOOTH, CLEAN MOWING

Bush Hog's Flat Deck Finishing Mowers were developed for use by both property owners and commercial operators. These rugged units are easy to operate and built for years of trouble-free performance The Bush Hog FTH Series gives you a choice of 48, 60 or 72-inch cutting widths. High blade tip speeds assure a clean cut, and there's plenty of blade overlap for finer mowing. All models feature floating top and lower links for a more uniform cut. Cutting height is easily adjustable from 1 to 6 inches and all gearboxes carry a 2-year limited warranty.

WE'RE PUTTING FUN BACK INTO GRASS CUTTING.

Hitch a Bush Hog® GT42 Rotary Cutter to your ATV and discover how much fun mowing can become. These rugged implements, in 42-inch cutting widths, are available with 11 HP Honda electric-start engines or 8 HP Briggs & Stratton with optional electric start.

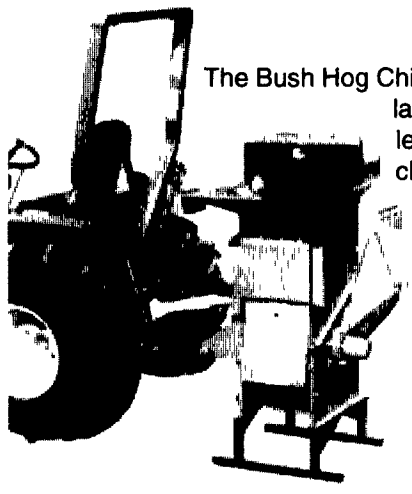


A high blade tip speed assures a clean cut, and the centrifugal clutch and belt drive provide protection should the blade strike an obstruction.

GT42 gas powered rotary cutter.

BUSH HOG

ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS FOR LANDSCAPERS & LAND OWNERS



The Bush Hog Chipper/Shredder Line offers landscapers and land owners the perfect tool to shred grass, leaves and brush into valuable mulch and chew up 5" diameter limbs into useful wood chips. And you get a choice of self-propelled 13 or 18 hp engine models or a handy 3-point tractor mounted unit. A blower attachment to direct material flow and a vacuum clean-up attachment are available.

Bowser Named Co-Chair

PINE BUSH, N.Y. — The National Campaign for Sustainable Agriculture announced that Tim Bowser, the excecutive director of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, will be one of its two national co-chairs.

Amy Little, executive director of the campaign, said, "We selected Tim because of the impressive work he had done in promoting sustainable agriculture in Pennsylvania. We know he'll bring that same energy and commitment to the critical national policy fights that lie ahead."

Little went on to say, "In Pennsylvania Tim has worked to unite farmers, farm groups, consumers, and environmentalists. He understands that to get the kind of changes we need in agriculture — ones that encourage family farms, strengthen rural communities and protect the environment — we need to reach out to the broader public."

Little continued, "Tim will be a critical part of our leadership team."

Tim Bowser said, "I am honored to be selected by the Campaign. It is national recognition for the accomplishments of the Pennsylvania Association of the Sustainable Agriculture."

Bowser said, "I look forward to working on important national issues such as rural development, developing new markets for farm products, and maintaining funding for programs that provide farmers with needed inforamtion about how they can increase their profits and protect the environment by cutting down on the use of expensive fertilizers and pesticides."

Yield Contest Names Winner

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Matthew Maximuck, Doylestown, has been named Pennsylvania second place winner in the 1996 National Corn Growers Association Corn Yield Contest.

Maximuck earned second place in the no-till irrigated division with a yield of 138.24 bushels per acre of DeKalb brand DK623.

The Pennsylvania farmer's operation consists of 600 acres of corn, soybeans, wheat and sunflowers. A portion of the crop is used in a packaged birdfeed business run by Maximuck and his wife, Cheryl. Maximuck is accustomed to winning contest entries, as he earned state first place honors in the NCGA contest in 1994 and 1995.

"DeKalb invests about 13 cents out of each sales dollar in research to bring growers the very best hydrids on the market," commented Joe Walsh, DeKalb corn product manager. "Farmers are seeing DeKalb post excellent results in state yield trials, independent and county plots, and in yield contests across the country.

FORMULA M is for cows that have trouble getting pregnant or have to be bred more than once. If your cow is cycling, she has made an egg. When the egg is fertilized she is pregnant. The problem begins when the cow aborts almost immediately. Cows abort because there is something they need. I did over 20,000 feeding experiments and found out what they need. What they need is in the FORMULA M. "M" is for more milk, more energy, more appetite and mother. "M" is for money saved on breeding fees.

FORMULA M costs only 8 cents per day per cow. Only 1/2 cup more milk per milking pays for FORMULA M. Get FORMULA "M" and get rid of your clean-up bull.

FORMULA M IS COMPLETELY FREE OF ANTIBIOTICS

Made by the Same People who make Vitamix.

How do I get some Formula M? Just call 1-800-327-0727. We are usually open from 7 am Eastern Time until 11 pm Eastern Time. Since this is a research farm, there is someone here 365 days a year to care for our horses and cows. We ship the same day, and overnight air service is available. You can have Formula M in your hands tomorrow a.m. if you order before 3 pm Eastern Time today.

Congressman Fox At Moyer & Son

SOUDERTON (Montgomery Co.) — In March, Bob Williamson, Lawn & Tree Care division manager for Moyer & Son, Inc. of Souderton, was in Washington, D.C. on behalf of the Lawn Care Association. At that time, he spoke with Congressman Jon Fox and invited him to tour the Moyer & Son facility.

The congressman was happy to set a date then and there, and on Monday, March 17 at 10:30 a.m. he spent several hours touring Moyer & Son.

Upon arrival, congressman Fox was greeted by Bob Williamson. After meeting with the company's owners (John Moyer, Bob Moyer, Jon Clemmer and Ken Clemmer), a brief tour of the corporate facility was followed by more extensive stops at the Home Services, Pet & Animal Feeds, and Plant Nutrients Group headquarters. During the tour, Congressman Fox met with all division managers and spent time with as many employees as time would permit.

The congressman mentioned that he was amazed by the size of the mill operation, impressed by the extent of the company's internaitonal business, and was admittedly surprised by the breadth of Moyer & Son's business capabilities. Speaking to this, the congressman commented, "Moyer & Son is very diversified. The company saw the need for such diversification some 10 to 15 years ago and they applied it to their business long before it was a management trend. Simply commendable."

Before leaving for a luncheon at the Indian Valley Country Club, Congressman Fox took the time to discuss export and trade legislation with company president John Moyer. At the conclusion of the tour, Fox was given a copy of "Warmth & Sustenance," a book detailing Moyer & Son's history as a remembrance of his visit.

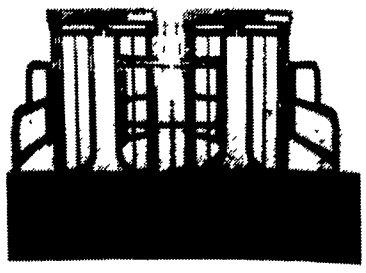
Milking Parlor Has Double Powder Coating

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Paul B. Zimmerman, Inc. has introduced a new milking parlor.

Ideal for flat floor installations, the LS96 Walk-Through Milking Parlor system permits you to upgrade or expand your existing facilities cost effectively, with an equipment rack that will accommodate any type of milking equipment.

Designed for greatest efficiency, cows step up, typically, 12 inches to 16 inches. Their forward motion automatically closes and latches the doors, which remain in that position until each unit's headlock release lever is pulled. After the cow exits, the door returns to an open position, automatically, ready to receive the next cow. The Zimmerman Walk-Through Milking Parlor streamlines your milking operation at a price that fits your budget.

Constructed of welded 3 inch x 1½ inch x 3/16 inch tubing, these units have a unique latch system, operated by rod linkage with brass ball joints. Each door remains in the unlocked position until the cow has exited. Doors are operated by cross link tie rods and function smoothly and quietly with UHMW synthetic bushings on the hinges and a rubber bumper on the stops.



Ideal for flat floor installations, the LS96 Walk-Through Milking Parlor system permits you to upgrade or expand your existing facilities cost effectively, with an equipment rack that will accommodate any type of milking equipment.

Finally, a unique coating of the most durable materials of this type available is used. The LS96 Walk-Through Parlor is finished with a Powder Coating applied in two coats. A zinc rich undercoat is followed by a TGIC polyester topcoat giving the parlor a tough exterior that is easy to keep clean and resists the destructive effects of chemicals common in a milking parlor.

Vermeer Names V.P., Product Manager

PELLA, Iowa — Vermeer Manufacturing has named Jim Vander Werff vice president and general manager of the agricultural division.

Vander Werff directs all business functions for the division, including engineering, manufacturing, sales, and parts.

A graduate of the American Institute of Business (AIB) in Des Moines, Vander Werff became the company's first agricultural division manager in 1996 when Vermeer announced the addition of the new division following long-term strategic planning sessions. The move separated agricultural equipment production from the old AT Division and marked the development of the fourth product division since Gary Vermeer founded the company in 1948.

Also, Vermeer has named John Howard product manager of the agricultural division. Howard will primarily be responsible for managing the development of Vermeer's haying product line.

His main responsibilities include managing the Ag Division's Engineering Department, and conducting marketing analysis to identify new product opportunities. One of his key duties for the Ag Division will be training sales and service personnel on new products to remain responsive to customers' needs. Other duties will include conducting focus group research on Vermeer haying equipment, as well as coordinating technical product development and new product release schedules.

Vermeere's Ag Division employs approximately 300 people in the company's Plant 2, which manufactures a full line of haying equipment for a global market through an organization of more than 400 distributors. Vander Werff has been with the company for 13 years where he has held positions as assistant sales manager with agricultural products territory manager for industrial products, ag sales manager, ag product manager, and most recently ag division manager.

John Howard

Prior to joining Vermeer, Vander Werff owned Edwin K. Williams, a management consulting business for service stations. He also was a part owner of Pella Implement.

Howard received a degree in agricultural mechanization from the University of Nebraska. He was a captain in the United States Army before joining Vermeer as a design engineer with the tree product line. He was most recently a project engineer with the tree equipment line.

Seeder Is Four Tools In One

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Kasco's new Grade-N-Seed is four tools in one.

Grade-N-Seed utilizes two sets of teeth on six-inch spacing to loosen the soil. A hydraulically adjustable landscape rake then levels the soil and breaks the clods. Heavy cast press wheels provide seed-to-soil contact for ideal seed germination.

A 12-volt electric motor driven seeder is positioned above the press wheels. The seeder box has a variable speed control to adjust the seeding rate.

History Program At Berks Heritage Center

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — The Heritage Center will be transported back in time to the year 1863 as a small camp of Pennsylvania federal regiment volunteers are enlisting new recruits.

The day will feature presentations by the camp surgeon, infantry, artillery, and civilians encamped here. Visitors are encouraged to walk through out the encampment and talk with the reenactors.

This event is hosted by the Pennsylvania 53rd Volunteer Infantry Company C, supported by Durell's Ringgold Battery "D" Pennsylvania Volunteer Artillery, and is sponsored by the Berks County Parks and Recreation Department.

Refreshments are available. The Heritage Center is located 1 mile north of the Reading Airport on Route 183.

York Farm Credit To Issue Patronage Checks

YORK (York Co.) — In April, member-borrowers of York Farm Credit will receive patronage refund distributions and checks from 1996's earnings, it was announced by Jay V. Rush, president.

The patronage refund for borrowers of York Farm Credit will total almost $2.2 million. Borrowers will receive, on average, a rebate of 17 percent of the interest Farm Credit earned on their loans in 1996. Twenty-five percent, or $545,000, of the total refund will be paid in cash. The balance will be placed in allocated surplus in the names of individual member-borrowers.

"York Farm Credit had another successful year in 1996, and we are pleased to be able to share our success with our borrowers," said Kenneth C. Ketterer, chairman of the York Farm Credit board and farmer from Cumberland County. "This is the seventh consecutive year we've distributed a patronage refund. Since 1990, York Farm Credit has paid a total of $3.2 million to its member-borrowers through cash patronage refunds and surplus revolvements."

"When we distribute our profits to our borrowers, it reduces their effective cost of borrowing," Rush said, "It proves that there are distinct financial benefits in doing business on a corporate basis."

CHICKEN BONES AND ARTHRITIS II

Dr. Roland M. Leach, Jr.
Dept. Of
Poultry Science

Because our research program focuses on cartilage metabolism, I have been receiving numerous phone calls and letters about a best-selling book entitled "The Arthritis Cure: The Medical Miracle That Can Halt, Reverse, And May Even Cure Osteoarthritis." Dr. Theodosakis, the author of this book, has benefited from considerable publicity through appearances on the "Today Show" and reviews in The New York Times, Time Magazine, U. S. News and World Report, and other news media.

Before we deal with the miracle cure, lets review the basics of arthritis.

This disease is the inflammation and destruction of the cartilage in our joints which can be painful and debilitating. Cartilage is composed of cells (chondrocytes) surrounded by collagen (a fibrous protein) and chondroitin sulfate (a polysaccharide). In arthritis, the collagen and chondroitin sulfate are being destroyed faster than the chondrocytes can replace them.

There are two types of arthritis: osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis. Osteoarthritus is due to physical damage or wear and tear which leads to cartilage degeneration and destruction. On the other hand, rheumatoid arthritis is an autoimmune disease in which the immune cells of the body think that the bodys cartilage is a foreign substance and tries to destroy it. The latter type of arthritis was the focus of a previous article I had written in response to a report that eating collagen extracted from chicken bones partially alleviated the symptoms of this disease. I also pointed out that there was some scientific rationale to support this observation.

In my opinion, there is less scientific credibility in Dr. Theodosakis cure for osteoarthritis. The most publicized aspect of this cure is the oral consumption of a supplement containing chondroitin sulfate and glucosamine, a sugar building block of chondroitin sulfate. These substances are extracted from crustacean shells and animal cartilage (including chicken bones). The oral consumption of this supplement would result in the complete digestion of these materials in our digestive tracts. Thus, there is little likelihood that these substances would appear intact in the blood stream so they could directly affect cartilage metabolism.

Two European clinical trials are cited as providing evidence for the efficacy of the chondroitin sulfate treatment. However, in both of these trials, the substances (chondroitin sulfate or glucosamine) were injected into the body, thereby bypassing exposure to the digestive system. Most of the other support for the use of the supplement is anecdotal. For example, these products have been available for treating aging arthritic dogs for some time. So when a prominent newspaper columnist reported she showed some improvement in her arthritis when she snitched some of Fido's medicine, she provided additional publicity for the use of the chondroitin sulfate supplement.

While the chondroitin sulfate aspects of Dr. Theodosakis recommendations have received most of the press, other components of his regimen are generally accepted as valid approaches to living with arthritis. These include eating a balanced diet, exercising, and reducing both weight and stress. Although acknowledging the importance of the latter recommendations, many recognized authorities, as well as the Arthritis Foundation, are cautious when discussing the potential benefits of the supplements.

Clearly, the latest book on osteoarthritis has stirred considerable controversy and has sparked the initiation of additional clinical trials to test the efficacy of these supplements for people suffering with the disease.

Who knows? When the results of these tests are available, we may have another reason to use chicken bones for the treatment of arthritis.

Adams Farm Bureau Makes Goal

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Farm Bureau (ACFB) reached a record family membership of 913, according to an announcement made by acting membership chairperson, Joel Waybright, Gettysburg. This figure established a record in number of members.

"We surpassed the goal of 913 and made gain," Waybright reported. "The membership year began formally in September 1996 with a mail campaign, followed by a farmer-to-farmer membership procurement program. Kickoff was held in December; we had hoped to reach goal by Rally Day in February. Due to the dedication and commitment by the membership committee leaders, captains and workers, we were able to reach our target prior to the closing of the year."

Acting membership chairperson, Joel Waybright, has held this position for five years and hopes to pass it along to another fully qualified individual from the organization for the 1997-1998 membership fiscal year. "Joel always maintained and followed through with his responsibilities as chairperson; his credibility with the membership can only be outweighed by his thoroughness and detailed insistence that all constituents of the farming community be contacted for membership within the organization," said President Ed Wilkinson of the ACFB.

"Membership is the lifeblood of the organization; without membership, PFB would not exist," said President Guy Donaldson of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. "It was the goal of the committee to contact every farm family in the county for membership in the local bureau. With Waybright's assistance, we not only reached that goal, but indeed surpassed it."

Waybright will be honored for attaining goal at the PFB annual convention in November and at the annual summer picnic of the ACFB in August. A victory party may be scheduled to recognize the workers for all their efforts.

For more information, contact any board member or President Ed Wilkinson, (717) 677-4477.

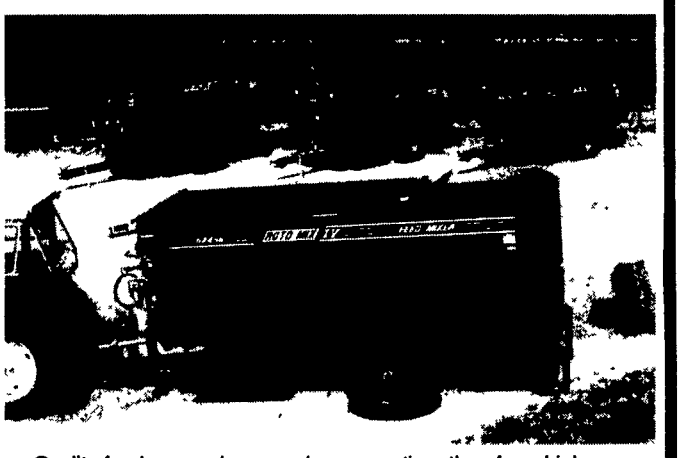
Jamesway Technology Takes a Giant Leap Forward!

BIG JIM® Quantum™ SYSTEM

FOR CONVENTIONAL SILOS AND BOTTOM UNLOADING SILO CONVERSION SYSTEMS (B U C S)

- FASTER FEED UNLOADING -up to 35 tons per hour or up to 1,666 pounds per minute.
- HIGHER SILO CAPACITY - pack up to 35% more forage into your silo.
- GREATER FEED VALUE - ensile forage between 55% to 65% moisture content
- EASIER MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR - less wear and tear and components are accessible.

ROTO-MIX® FEED MIXERS



Quality feed means increased consumption, therefore, higher production levels. With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX patented mixing system uses a rotor to gently lifts the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger, keeping fines to a minimum and reducing nutritional loss.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

Check all the ROTO-MIX advantages... the bottom line is what counts.

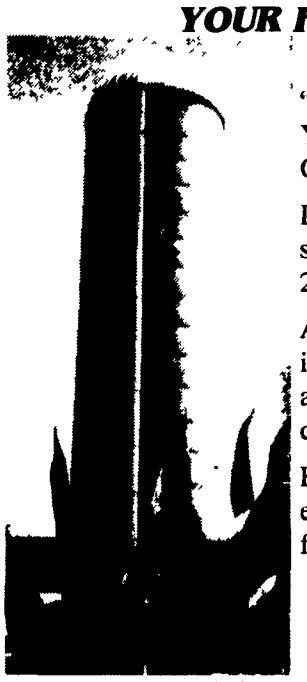
THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

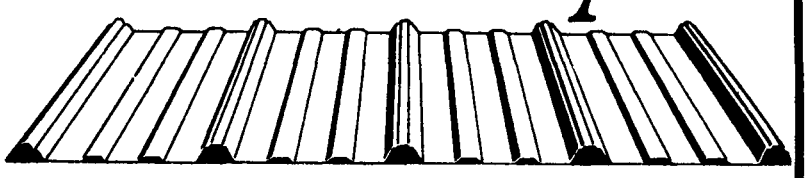
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

76 Cow Total Ventilation System - Denver, PA
Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:
- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

Myers View Club Lambs

Cody Waltimire showed the Grand Champion at the 1996 Bedford Co. Fair. This lamb was sired by our Lyn Lee Farms "James Dean" an exciting young sire.

We would like to announce the purchase of Lyn Lee Farms Supreme Champion Wether Sires at the 1996 Eastern State Stud Ram Sale in Staunton, Virginia.

Lambs will be offered by Private Treaty, starting April 12, 1997. We are also consigning 10 elite lambs at the first annual "Top of The Hill Club Lamb Sale."

Beitzel Spraying is now distributing:

SAFECIDE® BRAND IC

For the control of darkling beetles, hide beetles and flies in poultry houses and for control of fire ants

Advantages:
- Efficacious–boron-based SafeCide® Brand IC kills larvae and adults. Breaks the beetle life cycle and reduces diseases carried by beetles
- Contains an extremely safe and effective pest control agent (99% orthoboric acid)– larvae and beetles die 3 to 5 days after contact and ingestion.
- Provides long-lasting residual results. Keeps on working up to 12 months – longer than most available products.
- Provides an effective barrier. Kills larvae and adults as they emerge.
- Cost effective – low cost based on per day of activity.
- Can be applied as a dust or spray. Flexible application options let SafeCide® Brand IC fit easily into your particular management program.
- EPA approved, ecologically friendly– non-carcinogenic, no toxic residues. Safe to be applied by humans.
- Is field proven. Field studies* show heavily infested farms treated with SafeCide® Brand IC have better feed conversion rates, increased weight gains, greater livability, and fewer condemnations than untreated farms.
- No insecticidal resistance reported.
- Retards the growth of Aspergillus in the litter.
- Approved for use in the control of fire ants and flies.

FORAGING AROUND

'Industry, Farmer, Scientist — Working Together Toward A Sounder Grassland Program'

School Helps Producers Develop Grazing Plans

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — A Grazing School was held for farmers in Dauphin County. This event was sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension of Dauphin County, USDA Natural Resource and Conservation Service, the UDHS Young Farmers.

The Grazing School was divided into two sessions, the first held Feb. 5 and the second was Feb. 21. Teaching the grazing workshop was Paul Craig, extension agent for Dauphin County, and Duane Pysher, USDA Natural Resource and Conservation Services.

The two-day school was designed to assist dairy and livestock producers to design and develop plans to optimize forage productions and utilization with intensive grazing management practices. The workshop combined lectures, question/answer interaction, a field trip to a local farm for pasture obersvation and discussion, and even homework to develop a grazing plan for the farm visited on the pasture walk.

Eight Dauphin County farm owners participated in the grazing seminar: Ken McCall, George Manmiller, Bob Oman, John and Lydia Piper, Steve

Economist Dispels 'Myths' About Grazing

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Whether grazing will work in your operation will largely depend on management — before and after grazing is adopted, according to Steve Ford, associate professor of economics at Penn State.

And producers should learn to recognize the "myths" about grazing for what they are — untruths.

Ford spoke at the first of the two-day Pennsylvania Grazing Conference held early in March this year at The Embers in Carlisle.

Ford told producers and agri-industry representatives that there is a "lot of misinformation" about grazing being disseminated through many sources. He provided a posting from the Internet about the "myths" of grazing — some fairly humorous, and other "facts" about grazing people are given that simply aren't true.

Here is the list of 10 "myths" that Ford spoke about at the conference:

• Myth 1: "My land is too good to graze." What matters about the land the most is that you can make money off of it. "The land should be used for its greatest return," said Ford. Producers should use the practice that provides the most return for each acre. Feed value per ton can vary (for alfalfa, it can be as high as $110, and for silage about $29). Producers must determine what feed grown can give them the pounds of protein or energy out of each acre. In one Penn State study, figuring in cost of production, pasture provided the best net return at $280 per acre, compared to corn silage at $178 and

❖ PRESIDENTS CORNER ❖

Dick Kauffman
PFGC President

The "Foraging Around" theme is back in Lancaster Farming, this time as the title of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council's special section.

Previously, "Foraging Around" was a regular column written by Dr. John Baylor, executive vice president emeritus of PFGC, and it was he who encouraging PFGC to use it as the title of our farm paper special section. Thanks, John, for your continued support and involvement in the PFGC.

The "Foraging Around" section will appear in this publication two more times in 1997, in July and in November. You may notice familiar columns — however, there will be articles from various sources that are relevant to today's forage producer. This issue includes an article on alfal-

Look To The Future With PFGC

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Forages and grasslands involve a large percentage of our land base, and cross many disciplines. Directly or indirectly every forage-livestock farmer, and nearly every citizen in the state, has been affected by PFGC and its programs. And the influence of PFGC has been felt well beyond state borders.

An organization such as the PFGC does not and can not function at its full potential without strong membership. To maintain our effectiveness as an organization which addresses concern of forages and grasslands in Pennsylvania, we need your membership and support. As we approach the 21st century, we would like to see our membership double and our involvement in forage and grassland concerns increase.

With continued strong interest, leadership and support from producers, agri-industry and educators, PFGC will continue to develop new program which will benefit the state's important grassland-livesotck industry and the people of our state.

alfalfa at $128.

• Myth 2: "I have to use my machines and buildings." Ford noted that many producers believe because they have these fancy machines, money has to be generated to pay for them. "It's better to have a handful of money and no feed in the silo than the other way around."

• Myth 3: "I can make more money selling less milk." Perhaps, Ford noted, but "you can make even more money by keeping milk production up." Costs of production are lowered when producers switch to grazing. So income goes up. But the number one determination of profitability is the milk per cow sold — as long as the costs to keep production per cow are less than the additional milk produced.

• Myth 4: "All the cows need is grass." Cows will still need supplemental forage and grain throughout the season. The number one goal is to maintain production. There are ways to provide supplemental feeding, including use of total mixed rations. Grazing is merely one way to reduce production costs — but other ways should be welcomed.

• Myth 5: "Grazing is too risky." Risk can be managed, Ford indicated. Cropping is equally risky. But for grazing, there is often considerably less financial risk, less price risk, and these can factor in heavily during a drought year. The farm forage has to come from somewhere, regardless of whether a cow or a machine does the harvesting.

• Myth 6: "Grass-based dairying is more sustainable." Profitability is what sustains farms. Pasture holds the soil and other nutrients often much better than other cropping practices, which could work to improve profitability. Facilities are the biggest restraints on herd size — and higher stocking rates increase feed usage. Graziers, like the rest of the industry, may one day have to expand in order to sustain profitability.

• Myth 7: "There's no money in grass." Grazing is the cheapest way to add value to grass cropping. Studies show that annual profits per cow can increase anywhere from $60-$200 through the use of grazing. While there may be few producers who tried grazing and went back to a confined system, research is needed to see if there are other reasons why grazing might have failed. Ford said producers need to be wary of testimonials either way.

• Myth 8: "Grazing will work for everyone." It all depends on overall farm management. To be effective, grazing must be used in combination with other practices to "keep milk production up elsewhere," including supplemental feed, TMRs, etc. Producers need to make the most intensive use of each acre as possible.

• Myth 9: "We should do whatever they do in New Zealand." Perhaps, Ford noted, but only if we had the same climate and feed prices. For New Zealanders, cost of feed is about 55 percent of what they get for milk.

• Myth 10: "Herds must calve in the spring to make full use of grazing." Economics and risk assessments indicate that fall and spring calving are about equal. The trend is to higher prices in the fall. Spring calving puts the cows on the grass at peak lactation, but with fluctuating feed prices these days, and supplemental feed necessary . . . . the important thing to realize, according to Ford, is that "you can't adopt grazing and sit back and count your money," he said. Management has to keep getting better and better.

"The ones who make milk in the barn are the ones that make milk out of the barn," he said. Graziers must understand, too, that there are many ways to make grazing work.

"There are as many ways to graze as there are farms in Pennsylvania grazing," said Ford.

Pasture Info

Whom do you call if you want information about pasturing?

Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent, spoke about ways that producers can get ahold of grazing information at the Pennsylvania Grazing Conference.

Myers also examined some studies done at several grazing operations in Berks County last summer.

One farm averaged, during the last four years, five tons of dry matter per acre off of the grazing operation. That can be added to the many other herd health advantages to grazing.

Last year was especially good for grazing, considering the cool temperatures and excessive moisture which pushed a lot of pastures.

Following is a list of contact people and agencies that can be useful for the grazier.

Who Are You Going To Call For Pasture Information

In the late 50's on our 20 cow dairy farm, I still can remember my job of guiding the cows to and from the pasture. This summer while visiting Forrest Stricker to measure pasture growth, I observed his son Greg herding the cows from the pasture. At first I thought how things have come full circle, then I realized today's grazing is a different ballgame. As I observed Greg, he was using a four-wheeler; in my younger days, I was in bare feet using a walking stick and in those days, pasture was just pasture. Today, I have come to the Stricker's to continue our pasture research.

Today, grazing has come of age From research to articles in farm publications, grazing is a big part of dairy and livestock enterprises As producers search for grazing knowledge, it is important for them to know where to find the needed information they can utilize on their farm

Below is an attempt to list possible sources of information that is available to graziers Remember, the experience and knowledge of these sources will vary, and you will have to determine what information fits your personal grazing situation.

General Information

• Penn State Extension in Your County - Every county will have an individual agent who is responsible for grazing educational programs This person will probably have an agronomy or animal science background and may serve more than one county. There are a number of reasons for you to contact the extension agent. First, they will know the other graziers in the area that you will want to visit. Second, they have information about the grazing educational programs that occur in your area. Third, they have access to specialists at the land grant institution that can be used as resources for the local agent and for producers. Lastly, they have contacts with the other appropriate resources in your area. At the end of this article you will find the phone numbers of every extension office in Pennsylvania.

• Natural Resources Conservation Service - Found in every county, and formerly known as the Soil Conservation Service, this organization can be very helpful in developing a conservation plan. This plan combines your farms soil capabilities with crop (including pasture) production and soil conservation practices. Developing water sources and stream crossings are other areas NRCS can help plan and develop. Technical design for the above activities and animal manure storage are other services they provide. A grassland management specialist is available at their state office.

Educational Programs

In most geographic areas, either through extension or local grazing groups, educational meetings or programs will be conducted. These vary from grazing walks, to grazing schools, to conferences like the Pennsylvania Grazing Conference. Magazines and Newsletters

There are a number of magazines and newsletters available for graziers to stay abreast on new research and on-farm experiences. Magazines and newsletters are excellent sources of upcoming meetings, on-farm experiences, research information, and sources of commercial contacts. Below I have listed some magazines and newsletters which graziers can secure a subscription. Each publication has different goals and purposes so you must decide which fits your situation

Magazines

- The Stockman Grass Farmer
  Subscription Rate· $28 per year
  Published. Monthly

Publications

Many publications are available to increase the basic knowledge of graziers. Most land grant institutions have developed pamphlets relating to many areas of grazing. Check with your local extension office. The following are some pamphlets you might consider securing.

Books:

Understanding Grass Growth: The Key to Profitable Livestock Production. 1985. Steven Waller, Lowell Moser, and Patrick Reece Trabon Printing Co , Inc. Kansas City, Missouri Topics include plant physiology, morphology, the grazing process (defoliation, and practical application of the grazing process) This 18-page booklet takes science and puts into practical, useful information you can use in your pastures. It is brief, yet concise and provides informative diagrams and photographs.

Grazing Management 1990 John Vallentine, Academic Press, Inc. New York
Addresses topics grazing effects on plants and soil, spatial patterns, animal behavior (intake, intensity), nutrition, plant selection, grazing seasons, and a two part section on grazing systems. Attempts to integrate principles and management techniques that apply to all grazing lands and to all grazing animals.

'Myths' About Grazing

Greener Pastures on Your Side of the Fence. 1987. Bill Murphy. Arriba Publishing. Colchester, Vermont. Pasture nutrition and ecology, Voison Grazing Management, paddock layout and livestock production. This book explains why and how to use the Voisin system, and what to expect from its use. It shows a way to simplify your farm and increase its profitability.

Grass Productivity. 1988. Andre Voison. Island Press. Washington, D. C. Grass growth and other grazing factors, cow grazing topics, principles for the conduct of rotation grazing. Provides the complete answer to improvements in grassland quality. Contains information from United States, France, Germany, New Zealand, and Great Britain.

Basic Principles of Rotational Grazing. Warren Parker, Marvin Hall, Steven Fales, and Lawrence Muller. The Pennsylvania State University. College of Agricultural Sciences. Topics include grazing vocabulary, grazing behavior of cows, measuring productivity, feeding budgeting, monitoring herbage growth and supply. This is a 13-page collection of articles incorporating research and putting it into a form that is practical for today's dairy farmer. A good basis for studying grazing dairy cows.

How to Plan, Implement and Practice Controlled Grazing on Your Place. 1989. Rob Kingsbery. Kingsberry Communications. Woodinville, Washington. Discussed controlled grazing, animal behavior, paddock layouts, stocking numbers, fencing, water, monitoring forage, introducing livestock, research, drought management and extending the grazing season. This book makes sense and is flexible to your operation. Give it three grazing seasons, stay flexible, and be prepared for success.

The Agronomy Guide. Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences. Available from any extension office in any Pennsylvania county. This 226-page book covers all agronomic crops including about 40 pages on forages and pastures. This section includes species, establishment, systems, facilities, and management.

Spring Wetness Could Cause Pasture Problems

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Farmers who graze livestock shouldn't let pasture quality sink in spring mud.

Many graziers will want to get animals out of barns and feedlots and into pastures early this spring because of a shortage of stored hay, said Mark Bennett, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Knox County office of Ohio State University Extension. Unusually wet conditions last spring and summer cut hay yields for many Ohio farmers.

But pastures could suffer if animals are turned out on land that is too wet. Tracking of hooves on muddy ground can damage pasture grasses and lower soil quality as exposed mud erods away, Bennett said. When the rough, tracked-up fields dry, they can be hard on animals' feet and may need to be reseeded.

"Farmers don't want pastures in too terrible conditions, because it could lower their animals' performance," Bennett said.

Plodding through muddy areas can lower an animal's energy level and affect growth rate or milk production.

To reduce pasture damage, graziers should release animals in pasture that have the densest sod. Grasses such as fescue, bluegrass and reed canary have a tight root system and withstand livestock trampling better than other forages.

In an intensive grazing system where pastures are sectioned and animals moved from area to area, graziers should rotate livestock as quickly as possible. The less time the animals spend in an area or paddock, the less damage will occur, Bennett said.

Farmers with beef cattle or sheep could use fields not previously grazed or ask permission to use a neighbor's vacant land as temporary pasture. The forage probably would be low quality, but it would reduce stress on established pastures, Bennett said. Graziers should test the forage and supplement the animals' diets with stored feed as needed. This would not work for dairy cows that require high-quality forage for milk production.

Splitting herds into smaller groups also helps maintain pastures. Fewer animals — 10 cows per acre instead of 20 — cause less tracking problems, said Ed Volborn, grazing leader at the South District office of Ohio State Extension.

An option for beef producers is to only put young animals — such as replacement heifers — on pasture. Young cattle usually weigh about half that of full grown adults, so they won't be as hard on the pasture, Volborn said.

Mud is real problem for dairy cows, said Tom Noyes, dairy agent at the Wayne County Extension office. Dirt on cows' udders takes time to clean and has the potential to becoime sediment in milk. This would lower milk quality and profits. Mud also increases the potential of mastitis — an inflammation of a cow's udder that affects milk production.

Improving the lanes that cows travel from the milking parlor to the pasture is the most important thing dairy producers can do to prevent problems from wet weather, Noyes said.

"Lanes closest to the barn are especially important, because they will be traveled twice a day for milking," he said.

Farmers should establish lanes on high, dry ground or knolls that drain quickly, Bennett said. The lanes can be improved by adding gravel to a limestone base.

Geotextile cloth spread on lanes and covered with gravel is another way to reduce mud. The cloth is a strong, petroleum-based fabric that keeps soil and gravel apart, the fabric prevents gravel from sinking into mud and improves load-bearing capacity and drainage, Bennett said.

"Gravel on lanes should be of mixed sizes or covered with a finer material, so it's not hard on hooves," he said.

Graziers typically release animals to pasture around mid-April in central Ohio and earlier in the south.

"It really all depends on the weather," Bennett said. "Some years, animals can be turned out the end of March."

But if muddy conditions are unavoidable and stored feed is available, graziers should keep animals out of pastures until the fields have had a chance to firm, he said.

Is PFGC In Your Future?

The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, with your membership and support, can accomplish much toward a better forage industry, environment, and community. It's a big challenge and we need your help in a couple ways. First, by becoming a member, either as an individual or as a supporting organization. Second, by becoming involved in the council's programs. With your input, PFGC can serve an even more active role in support of the forage industry.

Why Industry Members?

PFGC provides serveral key advantages to companies which manufacture or market products or services used in the forage industry. PFGC with the AFGC place industry personnel and their firms in the mainstream of information about developments in forages and in closer contact with users of their services.

This has positive results in the success of marketing efforts, and ultimately helps improve company profits.

The company assuming an active role in the PFGC will find its influence broadened through participation in forage groups from the local to the national level.

Pennsylvania Forage And Grassland Council

Who are we? Formed in 1960, the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) is made up of individuals and organizations that are interested in forage and grassland based agriculture.

What is our purpose? The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council is dedicated to the production and utilization of quality forage and grassland. Our purpose is to improve all phases of forage and grassland agriculture by collecting, analyzing, and disseminating useful information.

What are our activities?

'Publish Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News, a quarterly newsletter addressing forage and grassland concerns in Pennsylvania. All PFGC members are also members of our national organization, AFGC, and receive the national publications.

•Cosponsors of forage workshops, several day, multi-disciplinary workshops which address aspects of the production and utilization of forages and grasslands.

•Cosponsors of Competitive Hay Shows to recognize and stimulate high quality forage production.

•Support Ag Progress Days, one of the largest and most educational agricultural shows in the east.

•Identify and recognize individuals and organizations that contribute to Forage and Grassland Agriculture in Pennsylvania.

Membership — Any preson, firm, organization, or representative of a public agency having an interest in forages or grassland agriculture is invited to beocme a PFGC member. PFGC members are automatically members of the American Forage and Grassland Council (AFGC). Every member receives the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News and the Hay & Forage Grower magazine plus a PFGC membership directory.

Forage, Grazing Meeting

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — Penn State Extension in the Central Susquehanna Valley is planning a kickoff educational event for the 1997 summer grazing field meetings. The kickoff meeting will be held on April 29, at 10:30 a.m. at the Carriage Corner Restaurant on Route 45 on the east end of Mifflinburg.

The guest speaker will be Duane Hertzler from Loysville in Perry County. Hertzler owns and operates Moo Echo farm and has integrated management intensive grazing into his program to provide forage for 200 Holstein cows, 160 heifers and calves, and 35 steers.

There will be time allowed for discussion and planning of future forage and grazing educational meetings for the region. Lunch will be optional.

No reservations are necessary for the meeting. For more information, call David Hartman at the Columbia County Extension office at (717) 784-6660 or Phil Durst at the Montour County Extension office at (717) 275-3731 or (800) 326-7410.

Silage: Field To Feedbunk

ITHACA, N.Y. — Silage is a central component of animal agriculture in temperate climates, with most farms feeding 50-100 percent of their forage in the form of silage. Because silage is the most unstable feedstuff producers grow and handle, providing high-quality silage is a constant challenge.

"Silage: Field to Feedbunk," NRAES-99, offers the latest recommendations regarding mechanical and managerial factors involved in meeting that challenge.

"Silage: Field to Feedbunk" is the proceedings of a February 1997 conference in Hershey, Pa., where more than 490 producers, producers' advisers, industry representatives, and researchers met to discuss all aspects of silage production and use. The publication offers thirty-six papers divided among eight key area: plant and field issues; harvesting high-quality silage, storage, additives management, mycotoxins and spoilage, evaluation, feeding, and silage systems management.

The proceedings will be a valuable resource for agricultural and industry professionals including silage producers and users; extension and university educators; agronomists; crop consultants; feed, seed, and equipment sales representatives; plant breeders; animal scientists; agricultural engineers; nutritionists; veterinarians; IPM professionals; and analytical laboratory staff.

Conference sponsors were Agway Agricultural Products; the American Dairy Science Association; the American Society of Agronomy; Cargill Animal Nutrition Division/Cargill Hybrid Seeds; the Crop Science Society of America; Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.; Soil Science Society of America;; USDA Agricultural Research Service; and NRAES.

"Silagee: Field to Feedbunk" is available for $30 per copy (plus shipping and handling) from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, New York 14853-5701. The shipping and handling charge is $5 for a single copy within the continental United States.

Calif. Floods Affect Forage Seed Production

FRESNO, Calif. — Flooding in the central valley of California from earlier rains has affected 1997 seed production of alfalfas, clovers, and summer annuals, according to California seedsmen.

Flooding in the Tulare Lake bottom near Fresno affected the production of nondormant alfalfa seed. Reports indicate that 45,000 total acres were flooded in that area alone.

Saturated soil conditions in California will delay and perhaps even prevent spring planting of some seed crops, producers say. Many of the flooded acres are where annual forage crops are normally planted.

Slusser, and John and Lynn Zerpehy. The group represented a variety of livestock producers, dairy, cow/calf operations, sheep and llama producers.

The main goal of the grazing school was to help each farmer design a comprehensive working plan for their individual farm, livestock needs, and end product goals. The lectures and related printed materials were to provide tools and guides for each farmer to understand how to use pasture management to sustain a high crop yield and quality to maintain profitable livestock production. The pasture management workshop permits the farmers to work closely with their nutritionist, veterinarian, and others to impliment pasture management techniques and concepts to achieve their desired goals.

As noted throughout the seminars, there are no set formulas for pasture managements, farmers need to educate themselves on their farm, the soils, grasses, growth and nutritional content. They need to know how many paddocks needed, animal stocking rate for each paddock, when to move to a new pasture, and the rest time required for regrowth on the grasses. Weather conditions as drought will require revised grazing plans and continuous monitoring livestock needs and pasture conditions.

Each participant developed a sample farm plan and shared it with the class. The discussions following provided insights to a variety of pasture management ideas. All persons attending the grazing seminar felt they really received information that can be used in their livestock operations. Pasture is a great resource here in Dauphin County and throughout Pennsylvania. Livestock such as dairy cows, cattle, sheep, and goats, when managed properly, can efficiently use and benefit from grazing pastures, while, maintaining sound and healthy farmland. Of course, most important is a profitable bottom line for the farmer.

❖ GRAZING GAZETTE ❖

THE GRASS IS GREEN AND GROWING

Larry Muller
Penn State University

The interest in and movement "back to grazing" continues to increase.

As has often been said, grazing is not going back to the "good old days," but is upgrading an old technology that may be right for economical and environmental reasons.

Beef and sheep producers have had grazing systems for years, whereas the movement back to grazing with dairy has occurred primarily during the past 6-7 years. Management intensive grazing is not for everyone, and not everyone who adopts a pasture-based system will be successful. However, with good animal and grazing management, grazing provides an alternative that may improve profitability and lifestyle.

Grazing Meetings

Attendance and enthuisasm has been high at most local, state, and regional meetings. About 200 attended the recent two-day Pennsylvania Grazing Conference in Carlisle. There were many timely presentations on paddock layout, fencing systems, managing heat stress, reproductive management, feed budgeting, nutrition, production beef from forage, and many others. Several different producers participated in the program.

If you are interested in obtaining copies of the Proceedings of the 1997 Grazing Conference, send $10 made payable to Penn State University and send to the address at the end of this column.

Grazing meetings and pasture walks are being held on a regular basis in several regions of Pennsylvania. The "walks" and discussion groups are excellent places to exchange ideas and learn more about pasture-based systems. We encourage all groups to send us dates and locations of these meetings so we can publish a regular grazing calendar with this column.

We plan to continue publishing a column every few weeks in this Grazing Gazette column. We want the articles to be timely and informative. Please let us know by calling any topics of interest to you (814) 865-6541, or by e-mail, sed1@psu.edu. Our fax number is (814) 863-7043. Our goal is it provide for your individual needs for you to be even more successful in your business.

The Grass Is Getting Greener Grazing Tips

One of the most critical and challenging times in the grazing season is the spring. An often used quote from New Zealand is that "the difference between an above average farmer and an average farmer is about two weeks." This is two weeks in the spring. Proper management of pastures in the spring "sets the stage" for pasture growth and proper rotation through paddocks. Spring pasture management requires a lot of forward thinking and quick action.

Pasture growth has been relatively slow this spring with the cool temperatures. However, the rapid spring grass growth will occur at one time and then all grass will have similar maturity. By the time you read this article in press, most patures should have been grazed except perhaps for the northern areas. Here are some successful tips for successful spring pasture management.

•Start early. Cows should be turned onto pasture after green up or when there is two to three inches of growth. Do not wait until the first paddock is seven to eight inches tall because all of the paddock are seven to eight inches tall. Continue feeding the cows their normal winter ration, and begin to decrease feeding the barn.

•Move fast. A goal should be to top graze every paddock that is to be grazed in the spring and not set aside for harvesting. A good goal is to top graze each paddock during the first seven to 10 days. During this time you are "staging the paddocks" to different maturities for later grazing and to avoid all paddocks being ready to graze at the same time. Cows are gradually increaseing pasture intake and decreasing stored forage intake. This practice also helps to gradually adapt the rumen of the cow to a change in feedstuff.

If pasture growth gets ahead of the harvesting by cows, more of the paddocks may need to be set aside for mechanical harvesting. If unneeded paddocks are harvested early, they can be returned to the pasture system early. As a "rule of thumb" for milking cows, you may only need one acre of pasture for each 1½ to 2 milking cows during the rapid spring pasture growth.

•Keep dry matter high. Spring pasture is highly palatable, is about 15% dry matter, and is higher in protein and energey than most stored forages. During the early spring pasture growth, we want to gradually adapt the cows and the rumen environment to the new pasture. With dairy, our goal is to maintain a high DMI and high milk production. We want to gradually decrease the stored forage as pasture intake decreases. We still want to maintain a reasonable level of grain feeding similar to what is being fed in the barn for the early lactation cow. Some long fiber (hay) can help provide adequate, effective fiber that may be lacking in lush spring pastures and adds some dry forage to the wet pasture diet. Adding extra magnesium to the grain ration can help prevent grass tetany.

•Walk pastures daily. Walk all paddocks daily to visually observe pasture growth. When pasture growth is in excess of the cow's ability to keep up with it, you should consider removing some of the paddocks from the rotation for hay or silage. In addition to visually observing the pastures, feed refusals and change in refusals at the feed bank should be monitored.

Spring is a challenging time for "old" and "new" graziers. It takes excellent management of plants and animals to get that good start to grazing. Happy grazing.

Grazing Center

One of the goals of the Grazing Center is to coordinate educational activities and disseminate information on grassland agriculture. Please let us know of various grazing activities, meetings, and pasture walks during the upcoming grazing season. We will publish these activities in a Grazing Calendar at the end of the Grazing Gazette column.

Please contact us at the Grazing Research and Education Center, c/o Sue Eisenhauer, 116 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, University Park, PA 16802, fax (814) 863-7043, or Larry Muller, phone (814) 863-4205, and e-mail lmuller@das9.cas.psu.edu.

Improved Red Clover

Jimmy C. Henning,
Garry Lacefield, and
Leonard Lauriault
Agronomy Dept. U. of Ky.

"THOU SHALT SEED CERTIFIED SEED OF AN IMPROVED VARIETY" is imprinted in the fine print of every practicing agronomist's diploma, along with things like "soil test regularly," "rotate crops," and "conserve soil." However, in times of price crunches, everyone truly becomes a cost-cutter and bargain hunter just to continue to be profitable.

One area that perennially comes under close scrutiny is that of the price of the seed of better varieties of forage legumes. With the down prices of cattle, this scrutiny of seed costs will get even more intense.

But what is the true value of using better seed?

This article will examine the value of better red clover and alfalfa varieties, based on data collected from the variety testing program at the University of Kentucky.

To get to the point, seeding certified seed of red clover and alfalfa does pay, and the data are convincing, consistent, and significant. But let's look

QUALITY HA

TO PRESERVE QU

Firm, well shaped bales of uniform size are easiest to wrap and store. Due to the nature of high moisture hay, the baler must be designed for the task. Although most conventional round balers will make silage bales, premature structural failure, plugging, and inconsistent bale density should be expected after a relatively short time. Optimum bale size is 4'x4'. Larger bales can be wrapped, but due to the extra weight, have a tendency to sag which increases the risk of splitting plastic film.

Larger bales also require heavier equ nt

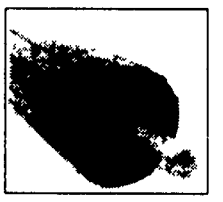
DEUTZ FAHR ROUND BALERS

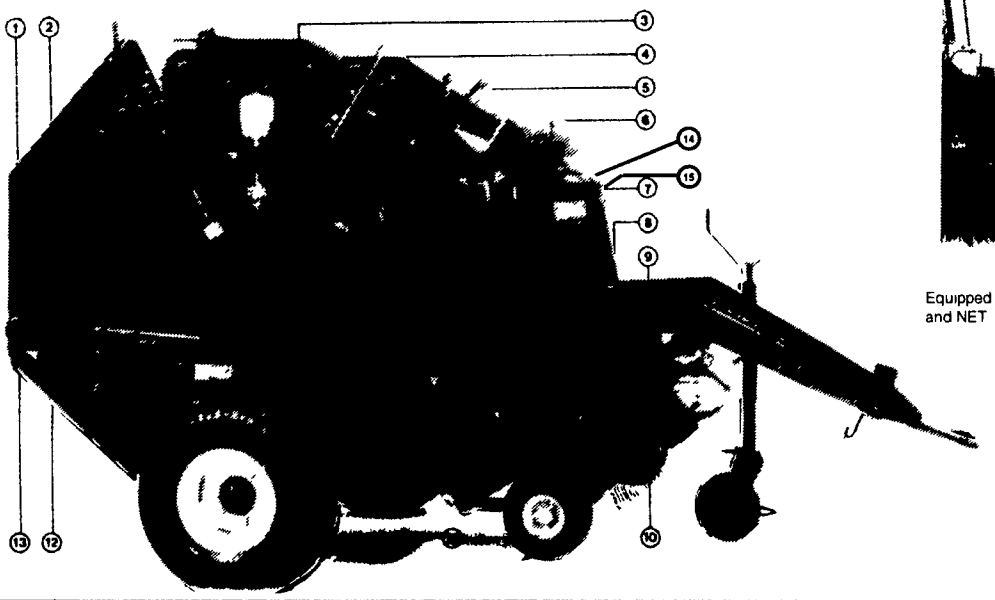
Deutz-Fahr round balers have established a worldwide reputation for innovation, durability and performance.

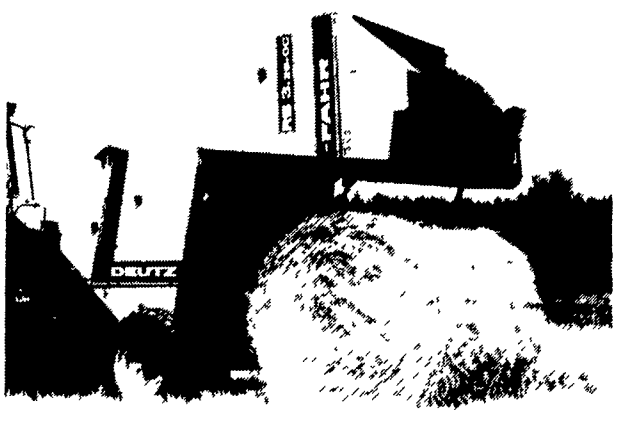


17 Thick walled ribbed steel rollers produce consistent results. Smaller diameter rollers reduce wedging and leaf loss is kept to a minimum. Splined shafts are used on all drive rollers for maximum efficient power transfer

Special features on DEUTZ-FAHR round balers are why they are able to produce consistent bales year after year of use

1. Roller bearings mounted on the outside of the bale chamber.
2. Automatic chain lubrication system.
3. Reinforced bale chamber for extra strength.
4. Closely spaced small diameter rollers.
5. Automatic "TWIN-FIX" twine tying system.
6. Netwrap option with a capacity of 270 bales per roll.
7. Easily accessible twine box holding (4) twine balls.
8. Universal drawbar with 16 positions and swivel wheel jack.
9. Adjustable baffle plate.
10. Hydraulic lift pickup.
11. Pneumatic tire pickup gauge wheels.
12. Mechanical tailgate lock.
13. Six bale density settings.
14. Splined drive shafts.
15. Extra heavy drive chain.





Equipped with optional WIDE PICK-UP OPTI CUT pre cutting mechanism combination TWINE and NET WRAP the DEUTZ-FAHR RB3200 OC is the ideal machine for custom work

All these features translate into outstanding performance and long life.

TANCO BALE WRAPPER

THE WRAPPER THAT WRAPS BALES OTHERS WON'T

A complete range of Round, Square & Rectangular Wrappers.

Tanco individual bale wrappers have all the features that experienced operators demand

* Single full width belt to handle misshapen bales.
* Five point turntable support to handle heavy high density bales.
* Extra set of side rollers form a "deep cradle" for bale stability.
* Extendable axle to widen wheelbase - No counterweights required to pickup bales.
* Extra strong chassis with integrated axle for a low profile.
* Hydraulic bale off-loading ramp.
* Wraps bales up to 5'x5'.
* Bale counter supplied with every model.
* 2 Year warranty on reliable stretch wrap applicator, adaptable for 20" or 30" film.
* In cab cable controls - no hydraulics in or near the cab.
* Easy hook-up and low horsepower requirement.
* Models available for large square bales.

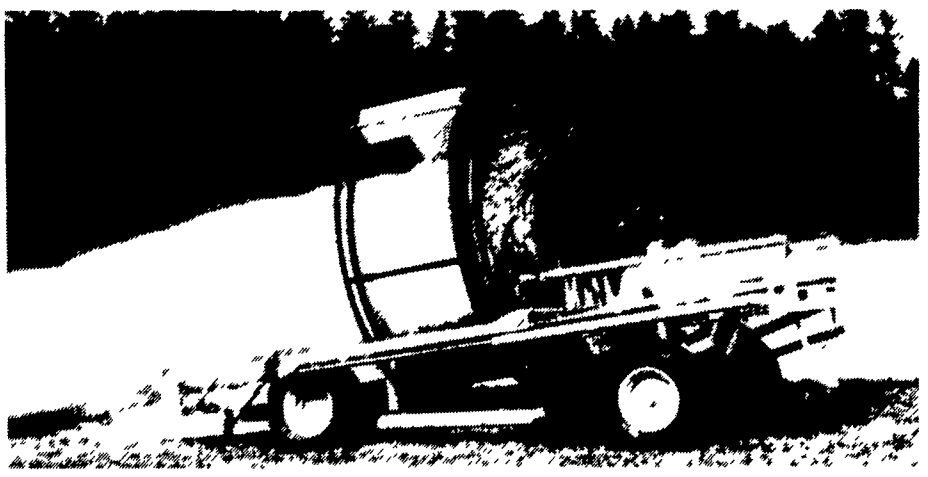
Balers equipped with a built in cutting mechanism are able to increase bale density by up to 20%, and prechopped material can be easily fed.
Be sure to use untreated sisal, plastic or nylon twine if you intend to wrap high moisture bales. Treated Sisal twine produces a chemical reaction that will burn through plastic film.

TUBE-LINE BALEWRAPPER

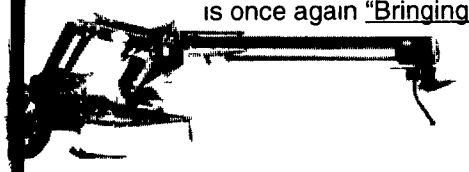


For optimum speed and efficiency patented Tube-Line Wrappers are the answer! Tube-Line Wrappers wrap a continuous row of bales. The airtight application of stretch wrap film retains moisture balance as haylage matures and prevents air infiltration. The shrink wrap also prevents wind damage and accommodates variation in bale size and shape without air gaps.

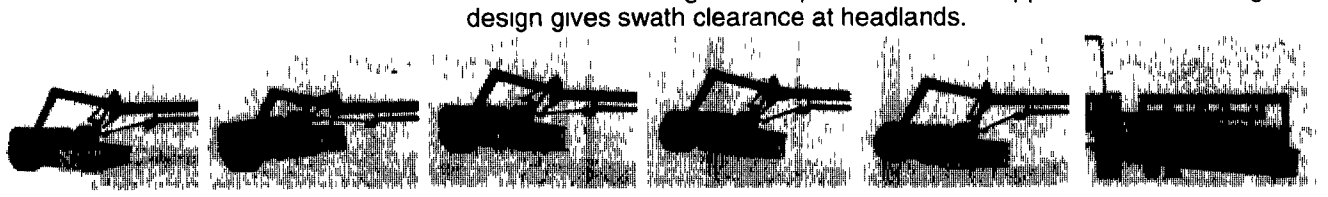
Long stem silage is better used in the animals digestive system. Feeding high quality haylage from wrapped bales can reduce or eliminate feeding grain while retaining or increasing weight gains or milk production.
Tube-Line wrappers for all round bales or large square bales are available in either manual or fully automatic models.

VICON'S New KMR Trailed Mower Conditioners Combine

A superb cut with excellent conditioning performance. Available in 7'10", 9'2" and 10'6" widths, Vicon is once again "Bringing Technology down to earth."



* Full swivel hitch - PTO stays in alignment when cutting square corners.
* "Free Float" suspension system - With 16" of free stroke in operating position, the cutterbar follows uneven ground and clears obstacles. The center hinge point also permits the mower unit to raise or lower at either side without adding excess pressure on the opposite side. The high-lift design gives swath clearance at headlands.



* Wedge shaped cutterbar - Less ground resistance, eliminates "bulldozing" in soft ground conditions, and allows for a lower cutting height when needed.
* 3 Blades per disc - Vicon 's patented design puts 1/3 less load on each blade and an even load on the drive train.
* Top service hubs on cutterbar - Easy Maintenance.
* Labyrinth seals - A specially designed labyrinth seal on the hub of each disc prevents dirt, moisture, and all foreign material from entering.
* Fully protected cutterbar - Cutterbar is supported completely with an extra shell and additional wear strips. A reinforcement rod stiffens the cutterbar to prevent flexing.
* Segmented intermeshing fully adjustable conditioning rolls.
* Adjustable formed swath doors for fluffy, easy to pick-up windrows.

Explaining The Language

It is very important to understand the meaning of the terms "improved variety," "certified seed," and "common seed" as they relate to forage crops.

First, "improved variety" refers to seed that has been improved through selection and/or breeding for desirable traits such as yield, forage quality, disease resistance, and/or persistence. An improved variety is a package of "genetics" which is an advancement over the beginning parents or plants. To make sure this "genetic package" is conserved in each lot of seed that is sold to farmers, the seed production process must be controlled to prevent the introduction of unwanted genetics.

This process of supervising seed production is called "certification." In it, an outside party (usually a state agency, such as the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association) establishes and monitors the criteria for "Certified seed." The intent of the process is to ensure that the seed produced and sold will perform true to the variety as it was originally developed and to prevent factors that would degrade the performance of the final seed product purchased by farmers.

Certified seed will always have a blue tag attached to the bag stating, among other things, the state or states which have supervised seed production.

Common seed is that seed which has not been supervised during the seed production phase and whose genetic parentage is unknown. By definition, the performance of "common" or uncertified seed varies greatly an cannot be predicted. Its use is a gamble. A farmer should purchase certified seed of an improved variety. Both adjectives are significant. Implied in this recommendation is that there is unbiased data which confirms that a variety is, in fact, improved relative to other choices. At least one source of this data should come from independent variety tests such as those run by land grant universities.

Benefits From Using Certified Seed Of Improved Varieties

Seed Quality. Certified seed must meet minimum standards for purity, germination and freedom from toxic weed seed. The standards of some commercial seed companies may exceed that required for certification. For exammple, the minimum requirement for germination of certified red clover seed is 85 percent. However, companies may specify that total germination for all of their products be 90 percent. Check seed tags to know. Five percent greater germination is like a 5 percent discount.

Consistent Performance. Certified seed is your assurance that the performance on your farm will match the purity and germination on the bag.

Finally, what is in a name? One confusing issue in the area of variety selection surrounds the performance of uncertified seed of older varieties developed by public universities. Many times, the "name" of these varieties was not "protected" from unauthorized use and anyone can use the name of their own seed without independent verification or substantiation. Seed from a field of "Kenland" red clover that would not meet certified seed standards can still be sold under the name of "Kenland." It is easy to see that a bag marked as uncertified Kenland would give the impression of having much better performance than a bag marked common or "Variety Not Stated." The perception of producers is that buying a "name" variety (even if it is not certified) is in fact the same as buying an improved variety. As the Gershwin song from Porgy and Bess goes, "It ain't necessarily so."

A strong example in Kentucky is the case of "Kenland" red clover. Very little certified "Kenland" seed is available compared to uncertified "Kenland." University of Kentucky research has shown that the performance of uncertified lots of "Kenland" vary greatly and in general are much lower in yield than certified varieties. Sigafus and Taylor (1980, Kentucky Forage Variety Trials, Ag Exp. Station Progress Report 246) found out of 10 uncertified lots of "Kenland" seed from a variety of sources only two had any measurable yield in the third year after seeding into wheat compared to 3.4 tons per acre for "Kenstar." Six of these produced less than half the yield of Kenstar in the second, or primary year of red clover growth.

Another area of possible confusion is that seed companies may choose to sell an improved variety by "name" but not as certified seed. In the case where you know that a variety is available as certified seed, and uncertified seed of that variety becomes available, let the buyer beware. For whatever reason, this is an indication that there were problems in the seed production process. In general it would be better to get the certified seed even if it is more expensive. Problems arising during seed production such as weeds or volunteer plants could have prevented that lot of seed from achieving certified standards. Ultimately, commercial seed companies are responsible for providing a quality product to farmers. In this case, they are willing to risk that the uncertified seed of the improved variety will perform up to their standards and yours.

This second example emphasizes the difference between the genetics of an improved variety and the certification of seed. The genetic "package" of a variety is up to the developing company to put together and then to preserve during the seed production process. The process of certification is independent verification that a certain set of minimum seed production standards have been met.

Availability. Proprietary varieties will be consistently available at agribusiness outlets. Their supply will show less fluctuation than the stocks of common or uncertified seed.

Improved Performance. Ultimately, there must be some measurable benefit in terms of yield, persistence, quality, or disease resistance to justify the increased cost of newer, improved varieties of forage crops. This benefit should be confirmed by independent, unbiased performance trials.

Alfalfa And Red Clover Variety Differences A Kentucky Example

Alfalfa. As the highest yielding, highest quality forage crop raised in Kentucky, alfalfa has the most variety options available. The difference in seeding better varieties of alfalfa can be seen in the comparison of disease resistance levels to older varieties.

The Present And Future Of Alfalfa Harvesting Equipment

Richard K. Adams
Engineering Research Coordinator
New Holland North America, Inc.

Abstract

Changes in alfalfa harvest are continuing. The adoption of disc mowing units will soon outpace the sales of sickle cutterbar units. Large forage harvesters and big square bales are systems rapidly adopted by larger alfalfa operations to satisfy capacity requirements. The application of field robotics by NASA affiliates may make driverless, operator supervised harvesters a reality in the early next century.

Key Words: alfalfa, machinery, harvesting, equipment, robitics.

Introduction

Our historical harvest system for alfalfa as either hay or silage has been accomplished with reciprocating sicklebars, rakes, small square balers, and pull-type forage harvesters. Today a multitude of equipment is available which is a combination of past practices (mower-conditioners) or larger, faster cutting units (self-propelled windrowers) and harvesting units (large bale packages — round and square) and S.P. harvesters. A few of the trends in North American forage harvesting are discussed with a possible scenario under development by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Cutting Processes And Trends

The reciprocating sickle as a plant cutting device has been with us since 1833 when Obed Hussey combined the reciprocating knife and slotted guard. This design remains relatively unchanged except for the use of heat-treated forged guards instead of wood, and speed and durabiilty has increased substantially. We have moved from pull or mounted mowers, to mowing and pulling a crusher; to today's 18 foot cut pivot tongue mower conditioner. This traditional cutting principle is being pressured by the improvements and performance of the disc mowing system. The advantage of these disc cutting systems are — speed and performance. Today's typical sicklebar can operate 4 to 5 mph before "stripping" or crop stubble overrun occurs. The disc cutterbar operating at 3,000 rpm can cut at two and three times the ground speed — if you can stay on the operators platform of the propelling cutting device! The disc cutting principal developed in Europe was first used in grass crops and has rapidly (and unexpectedly?) gained popularity with legume growers. The reason is "the disc will cut anything." The trend (Figure 1) shows an industry mower-conditioner prediction. The number of disc mower conditioners equals the sicklebar units in 1998 and exceeding by about ⅓ in 2001. The growth of the disc cutting has a downside of increased power but has largely been a "no problem."

Crop Conditioning

The use of crushing rolls to process the legume by smashing and splitting the hollow stem has become the standard of design for pull-type mower conditioner and self-propelled windrowers. Crop is processed and depositied on the ground in a wide swath or compressed windrow. Geographic preference, climate, and end use as silage or hay tend to dictate the choice between swath and windrow. The humid areas are laying wide swaths to maximize solar and exposed surface drying. The more arid areas tend toward windrows to reduce bleaching of the alfalfa to obtain a high value green bale. A developing phase of crop conditioning is that of intensive conditioning and maceration.

Intensive Condition. The European market is seeing manufacturers develop "intensive conditioning" for their typical grass forage crops. Intensive is the mechanical treatment that significantly breaks and abrades the plant but has minimum stem lenghts of nine inches. The disruption of the waxy surface is the objective as well as some cell rupture. The resulting reduced drying time can allow silage operations to being in 4 to 6 hours.

Maceration. The severe mechanical treatment of forage such that cell rupture occurs can be referred to as maceration. This high degree of crop treatment has three apparent advantages:

1. Faster drydown — rapid moisture loss has the potential to get alfalfa to silage moisture is 2-3 hours. Baling moisture is attainable in 6-8 hours.
2. Better ensiling — the increased surface area allows rapid lactic acid bacterial growth and has apparently improved the ensiling process.
3. Improved feed value — up to 10% increased energy/food value.

It is the latter potential of increased food energy that will really drive the maceration process to widespread acceptance.

The severe crushing techniques reduce fiber lenght and separate most of the leaves from the stem base. The potential exists for very high field losses when this material is laid back on the crop stubble. This is addressed by compressing the material into a mat and depositing it on the stubble. This process of high pressure compacting of the crop flow "knits" the loose fibers together so the resultant crop is cohesive and after a short drying period, becomes suitable for harvest as silage or dry day.

The machinery to macerate/mat is being investigated by such North American organizations as the Univeristy of Wisconsin (in cooperation with the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center), the University Laval in Quebec (with Agriculture Canada) and the Prairie and Agriculture Machinery Institute in Manitoba (PAMI). The future of maceration is still developing but the ultimate acceptance will depend on cost, convenience, and performance.

Crop Harvest

Silage. Alfalfa harvested as silage and stored in traditional vertical or horizontal (pit) silos have been in use for some time. Altneratives such as the ag bag and round bale silage are regionally popular.

The use of the round baler as an alfalfa silage harvest system has grown with the improvements to round bale wrappers. Recent designs of round balers include pickup attachments with cutting mechanisms or in baler slicing knives to reduce crop stem length for easier mechanical and animal feedout. The round baler market for North American is expected to remain constant at 18,000 new baler sales per year into the next century continued to grow in sophistication. Today's self-propelled units have up to 450 horsepower with very significant harvest capacity. These units include such features as automatic cutterhead knife sharpener, self adjusting shear bars, and crop processing rolls to crack corn kernels.

Dry Hay. The typical small square balers for harvesting dry day with the assorted handling means of bale throwers, bale accumulators and bale wrappers is being displaced by the large baler (Figure 2).

The number of large square bales is anticipated to reach 2,000 units at the turn of the century. These balers will be the focus of large hay operations and custom operators. Interestingly, the European market has moved to large square balers almost entirely either for hay or straw harvest.

NASA and Robotics

The National Aeronautics and Space Adminstrator (NASA) has established a Robotics Engineering Consortium (REC) in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The REC is an entrepreneurial entity dedicated to the development of products incorporating advanced robotics technologies. The applicators of robotics include agriculture, construction, mining, excavation, transporation, and space enterprises. In the agricultural sector New Holland has teamed with the REC on project "Demeter" (the Greek goddess of agriculture).

Demeter is the adaptation of NASA planetary rover technology to a New Holland 2550 Windrower. Modification to the 2550 in preparation for the robotics experimentation required adapting the hydrostatic drive to "fly-by-wire" or computer controlled pump displacement for forward, neutral, reverse, or any incremental portion between. The scientists at the REC applied mobile guidance and perception concepts developed on lunar programs such as "Dante," a multi-leg walking machine and "Navlab," an all terrain military vehicle retrofitted to perform general autonomous navigation research.

MOWER CONDITIONER TRENDS

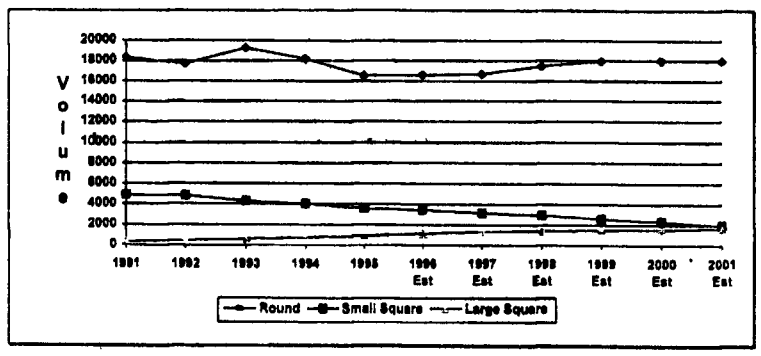
Baler Industry Trends
(Figure 2)



Large square balers (cross section greater the 2'x2') are also being designed for silage. Choices for storing these bales are bulk multiple bale stacks covered with plastic and sealed and single bales wrapped in plastic. Although acceptance of large square baleage is limited, the growth may increase significanty as large square bales grow as a harvest means for dry hay. The bale wrappers are now capable of individually wrapping these bales.

fa seed production. You will learn that alfalfa seed producers face different challenges than do alfalfa forage producers. Nevertheless, they too, are farmers.

Recently, the PFGC appointed Richard Hann as executive director. This is a new step for PFGC, and we believe that it will enable the PFGC to better serve the forage industry.

Dr. Marvin Hall, executive vice president of the PFGC, is "down under." He and his family are on a sabbatical from Penn State during the first half of 1997. They are in Australia, where Marv is learning about the Aussie's style of ag extension.

As I write this column (the last day of winter), forage production for 1997 is already under way. In the southeastern part of the state, new alfalfa fields have already been seeded. Rye is green and growing. Pastures are nearly ready to burst forth. Alfalfa is breaking dormancy and of course, chickweed has been growing all winter!

There is a visual perception system on board with which the windrower "sees" a crop cut line in the field. The defining quality at present is the percent green between the standing crop and the brown stubble of the cut crop. The video camera seeds and the computer scans the line of data to determine the junction between cut and uncut crop and then averages or weighs the points to determine machine direction. The windrower is guided at speeds of 4 to 8 mph to about a 3 inch variance from this crop cut line. Other guidance and safety instruments are on board such as GPS for navigation in case of a bare spot in the alfalfa field. An inclinometer checks to see if the machine is placed in a precarious position and a compass system for redundant guidance or the ability to make a plunge cut through the field parallel to a previous cut.

The totally unmanned yet operator supervised windrower is a combination of currently available technology. The unique combination of a cost effective, safety designed system is the challenge. Remember, the unit has to have the capability of recognizing unknown field obstables (a pickup truck from a wayward driver) and making a decision to stop operation or cut around the problem.

The system of autonomous harvesting will come, but when is hard to say. First steps will likely be as an operator assist option. A possible scenario is CutCruise, the option that allows the operator to align on the crop cut line and engage the automatic mode to offer "hands off" driving. Such things as ability to plunge cut through the field (a parallel cut offset from a previous cut) and end-of-row detector are possible options.

Stepping beyond the operator assist mode are one operator manned unit with CutCruise followed by one or more drone units. These cableless windrowers mimic the speed and performance of the "mother" unit with operator responsibility for quality of cut, mechanical function on power unit, and general field operating conditions.

The ultimate machine is the supervised cableless windrower programmed to cut the northeast eighty acres at 9:15 a.m. on Thursday. As envisioned, this step is "in the future" because we will need a long proven test period to be sure we can avoid someone's stray cow or not be guided by Johnny's stray Nintendo commands.

Choices of equipment were limited to the windrower first because of its single function (cut crop) and differential hydrostatic drive. The more complex adaptation of autonomous operation to combines, tractors, fertilizer spreaders or crop sprayers will come rapidly after the autonomous harvester system is commercialized.

The future is becoming available at a rapid pace and the application of technology to alfalfa is an exciting arena. Faster cutting with disc systems, drying improvements and better feed with maceration, and the application of field robotics to lessen operator fatigue are examples, that are present and future of alfalfa harvesting equipment.

AMERICA'S Alfalfa — Genetic Wonders that Work

KEEPS GROWING WITH AFFINITY+Z™

THE NEAR-PERFECT DISEASE FIGHTER

Affinity +Z is the only alfalfa variety with a 29 rating out of 30 for disease resistance, plus resistance for Stem nematode. That's why it has high yield potential from northern Iowa to southern New Mexico and from coast to coast. In Wisconsin yield trials, Affinity +Z beat six popular varieties an average of 8 percent. Strong winter survival capability and top leafhopper yellowing resistance.

Dormancy rating: 4

INNOVATOR+Z™

HIGH STEM PROTEIN, HIGH DIGESTIBILITY

This high-quality variety outyielded 81 other varieties in Iowa Sate University yield trials. Innovator +Z offers high digestibility, producing up to 8 percent more meat and milk than other varieties. +Z seedling resistance to Phytophthora and Aphanomyces gives extra early vigor and better stand. Innovator +Z has high resistance to five major diseases and exceptional winterhardiness.

Fall dormancy rating: 3

No-Till Alfalfa Seeding For Success

Farmers are constantly looking for a less-expensive, easier, more reliable way to establish alfalfa. With the release of successful grazing-tolerant varieties (starting with Alfagraze), more farmers are adding alfalfa to improve their pastures.

Establishing a strong stand can be challenging, especially in pastures that are steep and subject to erosion and moisture stress. Conventional tillage in these conditions is a serious threat to soil conservation and stand establishment. Enter no-till alfalfa. Procedures developed through research and refined through large-scale farmer adoption have made no-till seeding practical and widely adopted in many areas of the United States.

Two key components helping no-till aflalfa succeed — herbicides and drills — also have improved. The use of short-duration, low-residual herbicides (Gramoxone and Roundup) and the development of improved no-till seeding drills have made no-till practical and an easier system of seeding.

Advantages of no-till over conventional seedings:

- More soil saved (less erosion)
- Lower costs
- Less time involved in seedbed preparation and seeding
- Less labor
- More soil moisture saved
- More timely seeding.

Success standards for profitable no-till alfalfa:

1. Plan ahead — select your field at least one year before seeding.
2. Seed on well-drained soil.
3. Seed in spring after winter soil-frost melt, or in late summer (fall) at least six weeks prior to historic first-frost date.
4. Test soil to determine lime and fertilizer needs and recommendations. Needed lime should be applied one year before seeding. Best soil pH range is 6.4 to 6.7. Nitrogen should not be used in no-till.
5. Control plant competition before and after seeding.
6. Seed 15 to 20 lbs. per acre at ¼ - to ½ -inch depth on most soils. (Can seed at ¾ -inch depth on sandy soils.)
7. Scout often and control insects.

Seeding vigor: Alfalfa, once established, is a tough, very persistant legume. But young alfalfa seedlings can be very vulnerable. Competition with grass, broadleaf and grassy weeds, and resident legumes may cause many new seedlings to be covered or smothered during early establishment. Control of existing plants prior to seeding is a must. Short-residual herbicides, such as Roundup and Gramoxone, offer very effective broad-spectrum weed control to keep weeds from competing prior to and during stand establishment.

Where no-till works best:

- In perennial cool-season grass sod
- Following row crops
- Never Into An Old, Thinning Alfalfa Stand

Techniques for seeding no-till alfalfa:

In perennial cool-season grass sods

Spring seeding

1. Reduce the competition from existing plants with appropriate herbicides. Decide prior to seeding whether to eliminate the sod completely or maintain a portion to grow along with the alfalfa and modify herbicide application accordingly.

Since errors in seed placement are a primary cause of alfalfa stand failure, use only no-till drills designed for seeding into sod. Regular grain drills cannot be depended upon to establish an optimum stand because they lack the engineering to get the seed through the residue and into the soil at the proper depth.

2. To eliminate as much of the sod as possible (if desired), mow or graze in early autumn and apply 1 qt. of Gramazone or 1 to 2 qts. of Roundup per acre. In early spring, a follow-up application of 1 pt. Gramoxone may be used to acheive total control. No-till seed alfalfa in early spring.

(NOTE: When using Gramoxone, always include the recommended rate of surfactant for better control.)

3. To maintain a portion of the sod, graze or mow closely in early autumn and apply 1 qt. of Gramoxone of 1 to 2 qts. of Roundup per acre. A follow-up spring application of 1 pt. of Gramoxone is necessary only if winter annual weeds are a threat.

4. In areas where perennial broadleaf weeds such as dock, horse nettle, thistles or other persistant weeds are present, apply 2,4-D and/or Banvel at locally recommended rates and dates.

Late summer seeding (a new technique)

Graze or mow existing cover by late spring. Apply 1 qt. of Gramoxone of 2 qts. of Roundup per acre. No-till seed 20 to 25 lbs. per acre of foxtail (German) millet per acre. Harvest the millet for hay or sialge in 7 to 8 weeks (at early head stage). If weeds or other plants survive the spring herbicide and summer smother crop, apply 1 qt. of Gramoxone per acre for fall cleanup. Seed alfalfa no-till at 15 to 20 lbs. of seed per acre at least six weeks ahead of historic freeze date.

Following row crops

1. Following corn (harvested as grain or silage), seed a small grain for winter cover. If triazine herbicides (atrazine/simazine) are used in row crop production, their residual effects can injure legumes planted the following spring, so stick with labeled recommendations for best results. The following spring, apply 1 to 2 qts. of Gramoxone in 20+ gallons of water per acre on the small grain when 4 to 6 inches tall. No-till drill 15 to 20 lbs. alfalfa immediately. Should small grain regrowth occur (5 to 6 inches), mow just above the alfalfa or graze to help prevent smothering.

2. Alfalfa also may be seeded without tillage into standing small grain (8 to 10 inches) prior to harvest as silage. Rye, harvested for silage in the boot stage, will usually produce regrowth that must be mowed or chemically controlled with Poast at 4 to 6 inches of growth. Winter barley (where adapted) and wheat cut in the dough stage help reduce regrowth potential.

3. When small grain silage is made before the boot stage, wait 5 to 10 days for regrowth and apply 1 pt. of Gramoxone in 20 gallons of water per acre, pior to seeding no-till alfalfa.

4. When the small grain is harvested as grain, fall seeding of alfalfa is best. Just before seeding, at least six weeks before historic freeze date, apply 1 to 2 qts. of Gramoxone per acre to control weeds when soil moisture conditions are favorable. Volunteer small grain should be mowed of controlled with Poast after seeding — if it reaches 5 to 7 inches in height and threatens to smother the alfalfa seedlings.

No-till seedling is cost-effective

Despite additional herbicide costs, no-till seeding of alfalfa is comparable in cost to conventional seeding when managed properly, according to many years of university research. The added benefits of no-till — reduced trips across the field, less machinery wear and tear, reduced seedbed preparation and seeding time and labor, reduced soil erosion, increased soil moisture — offset increased expenses in chemicals.

No-till alfalfa works

Obviously, successful no-till seeding of alfalfa requires attention to detail and proper management to obtain a good stand. Farmers who follow a precise system that combines the proper use of quality varieties, herbicides, seeding equipment, seeding accuracy and scouting can make this practice work. No-till alfalfa is not a "quick fix" operation, but years of research and practical on-farm experience prove that no-till seeding can be as reliable as conventional seeding — while saving farmers time and money.

BOOST SILAGE MILEAGE

CHEMGRO SI2000

Making great silage and haylage isn't easy. You have to beat the weather, the natural ups and downs of good and bad crop years, mold, and spoilage. Then you have to worry about what it cost you to feed silage for the value you received.

Chemgro silage inoculants SI 2000 and SI 2000ws can eliminate a lot of the guesswork. Designed to allow you to choose dry or water applications, either products will add quality and silage mileage no matter what your crop.

You get fast-dropping ph, rapidly-rising lactic acid production, and quicker fermentation than you find in both untreated silage or crops treated with other inoculant brands.

The result is silage that is more palatable for the cows, higher in total nutrients, and that contains more total digestible dry matter - a higher return on your investment.

Call us today to find out more about Chemgro SI 2000 and SI 2000ws silage inoculants and applicators.

Chemgro PROP PLUS

for High-Value Haylage & High Moisture Corn

Chemgro's Prop Plus is the power additive for quality Haylage and High Moisture Corn you've been waiting for. Prop Plus's two breakthrough bacteria produce proprionic acid that:

- Keeps the crop fresh throughout fermentation.
- Kills yeast and molds that cause spoilage.
- Promotes lactic acid production for thorough fermentation.
- Keeps ph low to keep nutrition levels high.

Improved Red Clover

Varieties such as Buffalo, Saranac AR, Liberty, and Arc are susceptible to Phytophthora Root Rot, where almost all other varieties of alfalfa marketed in Kentucky have at least an "MR" or moderately resistant rating to this disease. Older varieties would also lack resistance to "new" diseases such as aphanomyces root rot.

Yields differ as well. Choosing any one of the top five varieties from Lexington, Bowling Green, or Princeton location data would generate an average of 1,440 pounds of dry matter per acre each year compared to the check varieties of Arc, Buffalo, Liberty, and Saranac AR. The difference in seed cost between the checks and the best varieties is about $2 per pound. At a 20 pound per acre seeding rate, the extra cost of seeding the best alfalfa compared to the checks would be $40 per acre, which is certainly a significant figure. A difference in dry matter of 1,440 pounds amounts to 1,700 pounds of 15 percent moisture content hay. At $85 per ton, this equals $72 extra revenue per acre per year from better varieties of alfalfa. Over 5 years, this extra yield totals 4.25 tons of hay per acre on average, and at $85 per ton, an extra $361.25 per acre over the life of the stand.

Red Clover. Using improved, certified varieties of red clover has been a consistent UK recommendation. The difference in cost between uncertified, common red clover and improved certified red clover seed can exceed $1 per pound.

Research was begun at the University of Kentucky in the spring of 1991 to compare the yields of improved, certified red clover to that of four unidentified common medium red clovers obtained from local distributors. It is important to realize that testing seed of common red clover will never result in the ability to predict the future performance of a given common red clover as can be done when testing seed of an improved variety. The reason to include common seed in these tests is to document what would have happened had you chosen that seed at the time.

In the first year, the difference between the avereage performance of the certified varieties in the test and the average of the four commons was over 1,000 pounds of dry matter per acre. In the second and third years, the average effect of seeding an improved, certified variety of red clover was worth almost 2,000 pounds per acre and 3,000 pounds per acre, respectively. If a farmer is going to plant a better variety, he or she is not going to select the "average" variety, they are going to go after the best. Also, since buying a common variety of red clover is, by definition, getting an unknown product, it is valid to compare the difference between the best and the worst red clovers in the trial. Difference in plant height were visible within 18 months of seeding. In addition, there was a visible thinning of the common stands by fall of the first full production year. The advantage of using the "best" variety compared to the worst common according to these yield tests was 5.3 tons of dry matter or over 6.2 tons of 15 percent moisture hay over the life of the stand. Most of this difference in yield occurred at the end of the stand life when the commons failed to persist. The bottom line is that seeding an improved variety of certified red clover seed pays in terms of yield and stand, period.

Putting an economic value on the forage generated from the investment in better seed is equally impressive. Seeding 10 pounds of red clover seed in tall fescue would cost approximately $10 more per acre compared to common seed. If you value the 6.2 tons nof hay at $80 per ton, then the net improvement in income per acre over a three year period would be $496 minus $10 or $486. Seeding better red clover truly pays.

Summary

Improved alfalfa varieties will continue to have the advantage of superior disease resistance profiles. In addition, Kentucky data indicates that improved varieties will average 1,700 more pounds of hay per acre each year compared to Arc, Buffalo, Saranac AR, and Liberty. Further, Kentucky data show top varieties of red clover will persist longer and yield up to 6.2 tons more hay per acre than common red clover (over 3 years). The extra value gained by seeding improved alfalfa or red clovers can total $361.25 and $496 per acre, respectively, over the life of the stand (depending on the value placed on hay). Truly, seeding improved legume varieties pays, period.

Revised Alfalfa Analyst Publication Released

WOODLAND, Calif. — The Certified Alfalfa Seed Council announces the development of a revised version of its popular "Alfalfa Analyst" publication. As stated in its introduction, "The purpose of the Alfalfa Analyst is to provide an identification guide to some of the more important alfalfa diseases, nutrient deficiency symptoms and problem insects." It is suggested that readers use it to identify alfalfa problems and then secure specific up-to-date management recommendations.

Editors of the three sections are Diseases — Fred A. Gray, Professor of Plant Pathology, Univeristy of Wyoming; Deficiencies and Damage — Keith A. Kelling, Professor and Extension Soil Scientist, University of Wisconsin-Madison; and Insects — Wayne C. Bailey, Associate Professor of Entomology, University of Missouri-Columbia.

The original Alfalfa Analyst and its first revision was 12 pages in length. Its popularity can be measured by a total of more than 700,000 requested copies. The new Revised Alfalfa Analyst is 16 pages in length, with an expansion of the number of diseases, deficiencies and insects covered, plus revisions and updated information on these alfalfa problems. The format of the newly revised publication also has been moderated to more closely tie in descriptive material, photos of the alfalfa problems and national maps showing areas of occurrence.

The new Revised Alalfa Analyst can be ordered through the Certified Alfalfa Seed Council, P.O. Box 1017, Davis, CA 95617-1017, (916) 752-0544. The publication can also be ordered through the Internet: http://www.alfalfa.org. The price is $2 each for a single copy of $1.50 each in quantities of five or more.

For more information, contact Jerrold Johnson, Certified Alfalfa Seed Council, 23 Toyon Drive, Woodland, CA 95695, (916) 662-6565.

It Takes Commitment To Produce High Quality Seed

Producing high quality alfalfa seed is no accident. It is the result of much time, work and wisdom. High quality alfalfa seed is seed of a superior variety that is genetically true, free of weed and other crop seed, and possesses high germination percentage and excellent seedling vigor.

The first priority in producing high quality alfalfa seed is maintaining genetic purity of a given variety. This involves producing the seed so there is not cross-pollination with other varieties. This is done by selecting production fields that are isolated from other alfalfa seed fields and that will not have volunteer alfalfa plants in them. When two different varieties are grown next to each other, isolation strips are harvested first and that seed is kept separate from the remainder of the field. Genetic purity can also be lost when combines and seed cleaning equipment are not properly cleaned between varieties.

Weed control is also important in producing high quality alfalfa seed. If a production field has significant amounts of green weeds at harvest, there can be a problem with too much moisture in the harvested seed. The result is overheating and germination of the seed in the bin. This, in turn, reduces the germination percentage of the alfalfa seed. Green or dry weeds result in weed seed in the alfalfa seed. Depending on the amount and types of weed seed, it can be impractical, if not impossible, to clean all of the weed seed out, and thus the quality is reduced. Control of weeds begins with selecting fields free of perennial and/or noxious weeds.

There are two primary insect pests that can affect the production of high quality alfalfa seed: lygus bugs and the alfalfa seed chalcid. A lygus bug damages seed by piercing individual seeds with its stylet. Saliva that is toxic to the seed is injected causing the seed to turn dark brown to black and become shriveled. This seed will germinate poorly or not at all. The alfalfa seed chalcid damages the seed by laying an egg inside it; the egg hatches and the larva eats the inside of the seed. Upon completing development into an adult wasp, the alfalfa seed chalcid emerges from the seed, leaving an empty hull which blows out of the combine at harvest. If the larva is immature at harvest, the infected seed will stay in the combine and end up in the bin. The larva will then complete development in the seed and emerge in storage. These damaged seeds will not germinate. Insect control during alfalfa seed production again requires proper timing of both cultural and chemical methods. Burning crop residue and tilling the fields after harvest are the primary control measures used for alfalfa seed chalcid. Insecticides and natural predators are effective in controlling lygus bugs.

Time of harvest can have a significant impact on alfalfa seed quality. If harvest is begun too early when there is a high percentage of full but green curls, the germination percent and seedling vigor can be reduced. If harvest is delayed and rainy weather comes, seed may sprout in the curls. If seed is harvested too soon after rain, before the moisture level of the seed drops to the proper level, cracking of the seed coat is likely to occur. Even in good, dry harvest weather seed coat cracking can occur when combines are improperly adjusted. The cracks that occur in the seed coats are often so fine that they cannot be seen without magnification.

The conditioning of the alfalfa seed at the cleaning plant is the final step in alfalfa seed production. Conditioning of the seed eliminates most of the contaminants and damaged seed that reduces the final quality of a lot of alfalfa seed.

PFGC Elects Officers, Directors

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — At the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council's annual meeting, the council installed the directors and officers for 1997.

Directors elected by the members for a three term from 1997-1999 were Dave Hileman, farmer; Ed Koncle, industry; and Duane Pysher, representing education. Other directors are John Thompson and Ed Rits, representing producers, Richard Adams and Richard Kauffman representing industry, and Paul Craig and Dennis Buckmaster representing education.

The board elected Richard Kauffman as president, Paul Craig as vice president, Marvin Hall as executive vice president, Richard Hann as executive director, and John Baylor as executive vice president emeritus. John Rodgers was appointed as the council's representative to the Ag Advisory Council and Doug Beegle to the Pennsylvania Plant Food Education Society.

Secretary's Report

The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) was supported by its 220 members and supporting organizations as well as the Pennsylvania State University personnel during 1996. Some of the major activities and programs conducted by the council in 1996 were:

•The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council cosponsored the Pennsylvania Crops Conference held January 30 at the Embers Inn in Carlisle.

•Cosponsored the Agricultural Progress Days held at Rockspring Farm of the Pennsylvania State University, August 13-15.

•The council conducted a hay show held in conjunction with Ag Progress Days.

•Farmshine magazine provided a special section for the members of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council four times during the year.

•The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council Newsletter was published four times during 1996.

•The council presented scholarships at Penn State in the amount of $750 to Kurt Haas, agronomy student from Orefield, and to Barry Hauck from New Berlin.

•The council presented a scholarship at Delaware Valley College in the amount of $750 to Tony Noll.

•The council held its annual summer social event at the Wayne Harpster farm on August 14, during Ag Progress Days.

•The council sponsored Mena Hautau to attend the Alfalfa Intensive Grazing Conference in Grand Rapids, Mich. in mid November.

•Awards were presented at the Crops Conference to Dr. James Starling, PFGC Special Award; Clyde Myers, Teaching/Extension Award; Axel Linde and Millie Widmann, Forage/Conservation Award; Robert Hetrick, Conservation Award; Elwood and Pauline Fox, Pasture Producer Award Southeast Region; and Mike Egleston, Pasture Producer Award from the Northeast Region.

As we stare out over the landscape we can see a tint of green appearing among the brown. Yes, this means spring is around the corner and grazing season is right behind it.

If we put the grazing system to rest in the fall properly it should take minimum time to put it back in service this spring.

We need to check our fences for needed repairs and maintenance requirements. Check for downed wires, broken posts, missing clips, broken insulators, broken gate hooks, etc. Check for charger and its grounding system and lightning arrestors. This is the real heart of the system and if it is going to keep your livesotck where you put them it must be working properly and correctly connected to the fencing system.

Depending on how well we drained our water system, there may be few, if any, problems. Once the danger of freezing is over in your area you need to pressure your system and check for leaks. Check all the lines, fittings, valves, and troughs to see if any damage has occurred and make the necessary repairs and replacements.

Determine your fertilizer program for the year and plan that initital application. If you have adequately balanced your grass with a legume at about a 70:30 mix, you need not think about nitrogen (N) applications. The legumes will provide most of the N needed by the grasses, and you need only be concerned about phosphorous (P) and potassium (K) levels. A soil test should be the basis for your making a decision concerning any application of these nutrients, as well as lime.

Laneways are also an item that need to be checked. Did any washing take place over the winer months? If so, filling in those gullies is in order but this is only the band-aid. We need to stop any future erosion from taking place by keeping surface water from running in the laneways. Water diverters can be installed to turn the surface water back out onto the grassed areas. If you need to apply a surface coat, now is a good time to do that. If large stone or coarse material is visible on the surface, you need to cover them with a fine material to prevent hoof problems.

Check stream crossings to make sure everything is in order and no winter damage has taken place. If you

Cold Tolerance, Ice-Sheeting, And Winter Injury In Alfalfa

Dr. Mike Peterson,
Research Director,
W-L Research, Inc.

Q: What are the primary factors which influence winter survival (winterhardiness) in alfalfa?

A: There are six primary factors which influence winter survival in alfalfa: variety, stand age, cutting management, soil fertility and PH, soil moisture, and soil/air temperatures (includes snow cover effects).

Q: Which alfalfa variety charactistics influence winterhardiness?

A: Improved disease, insect, and nematode resistances have enhanced winter survival in many new alfalfa varieties. However, resistance to cold temperatures is still the most important factor in determining varietal winterhardiness in northern latitudes. The overwintering behavior of alfalfa is under complex genetic and environmental control, and breeders are just now beginning to understand how to combine fast recovery and high yield potential with resistance to severe cold temperature stress.

Q: How does stand age influence winterhardiness?

A: In general, the older an alfalfa stand is, the more susceptible it will be to winter injury. This primarily reflects on the fact that older plants are subject to greater amounts of pressure from root diseases, nematodes, and insects; this accumulation of root damage over time reduces the amount of healthy root tissue available to store the carbohydrates needed for successful overwintering.

Q: How do ice sheets kill alfalfa?

A: Under certain winter conditions, excessive amounts of soil and surface moisture can cause the formation of ice sheets. These ice sheets create an anaerobic (oxygen-free) environment under the ice that allows toxic metabolites from the alfalfa (carbon dioxide, ethanol, and methanol) to accumulate to high concentrations in the alfalfa plants. It is these toxic metabolites that cause alfalfa roots to die and rot when covered by ice sheets.

Alfalfa cannot usually survive this smothering for more than 21 days, and ice sheeting is often lethal to alfalfa. However, occasional thaws that melt the ice sheets can reduce or eliminate injury altogether. There is generally an interaction between the thickness and duration of the ice-sheeting: a thick ice sheet that covers alfalfa for more than 25 days almost guarantees significant plant death and stand loss.

Q: Can proper alfalfa variety selection reduce my risk of stand loss from ice-sheeting?

A: Unfortunately, no consistent differences have been observed between winterhardy (fall dorman) and moderately hardy (semi-dormant) alfalfa varieties for resistance to ice sheet injury. All varieties, regardless of their "built-in" cold tolerance, appear to suffer similar levels of injury and death when covered with thick ice sheets for extended periods of time.

Q: How can I reduce the threat of ice-sheet injury to alfalfa on my farm?

A: First, it is important to realize that stubble protruding through the ice sheet will not protect alfalfa from injury. Leaving a long stubble in the fall provides certain benefits to overwintering alfalfa (e.g. catching snow and providing insulation), but protection from ice sheet injury is not one of these benefits.

Ice sheet formation and subsequent alfalfa injury or death can only be reduced or eliminated through careful field selection and proper seedbed preparation prior to stand establishment. Choosing well-drained fields and preparing level seed beds will significantly reduce the opportunity for excess moisture to collect in low areas and form ice sheets.

PFGC ❖ Pasture Ponderings ❖

do not have stream crossings, now may be a good time to consider them in your system. Keeping your livestock out of the streams and limiting their access is important. In conjunction with crossings is the consideration of streambank fencing. Many programs offer you technical and financial assistance with these practices.

If you need to make some new seedings, time is a wasting. You should already decided on what you are going to seed. In the event you have not, make a determination of the site conditions regarding soil drainage, fertility levels, etc. and select a specie or mix of grass and legume that are compatible with the site conditions. Then make the seeding at the proper time for your area and allow it to adequately establish before you graze it. This should not be before the later summer or early fall and then only a light grazing so the new seedlings have a good enough root system to withstand a grazing.

One of the other things we need to plan for is to get the dates of pasture walks and field days on your calendar. These functions are important ways in which you can learn more about grazing and it is also an important way in which you can share your knowledge and experiences with others to help them learn more. If you don't have a local graziers group that is holding such events and you would like to learn about setting up such a group, give me a call or send me a note and I will get you that information.

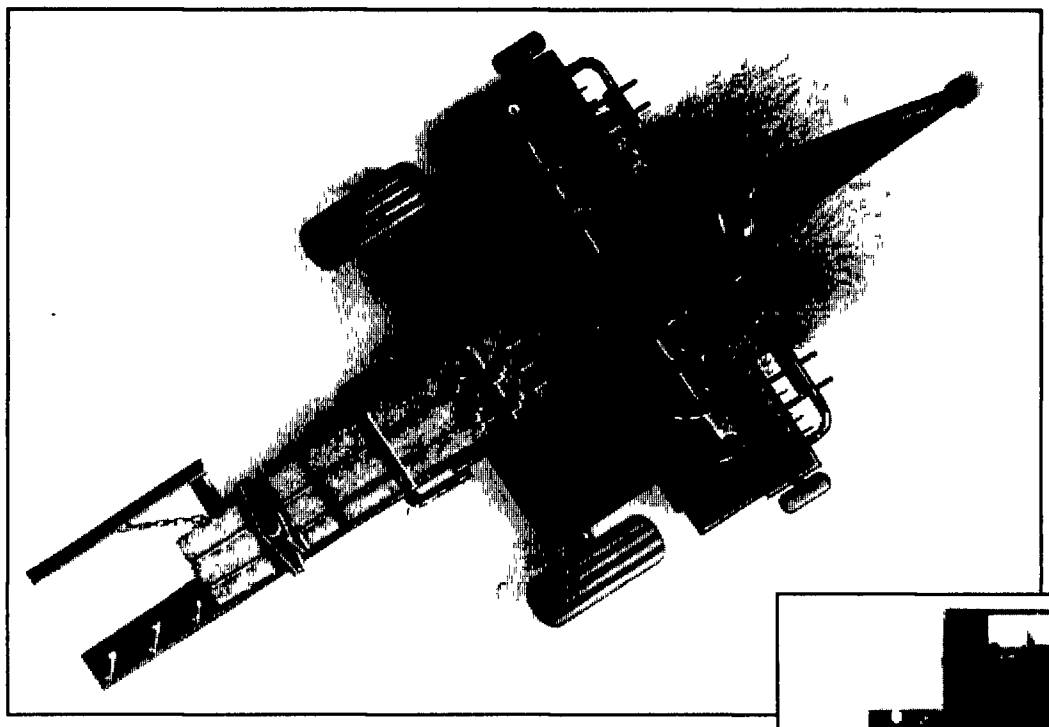
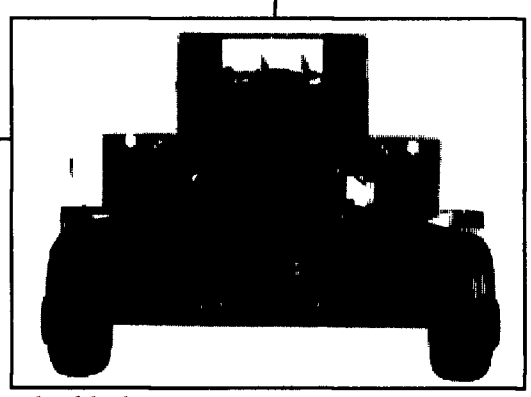
CENTER-LINE BALERS





Straight-through Hay Handling Saves Leaves and Nutrition

Hay moves in a straight line from pickup to kickout, so a finished bale contains more high-protein leaves than a bale from a side chamber baler.

HOOBER MECHANICS KNOW HAY TOOLS!

- Bob Gochenour (Left) farmed 23 years and has worked for Hoobers on Balers for 8 years.
- Dennis Engel (Right) has worked on Big Square Balers for 8 years; he joined Hoobers in 1993.
